Cotolo's Cup Picks

Veteran handicapper Frank Cotolo breaks down tonight's Pepsi North America Cup card at Mohawk.

by Frank Cotolo

In some events for tonight's Pepsi North America Cup program at Mohawk I choose as many as four contenders. However, there are other races where I may only note two or three, assessing the remainder of the finishing positions to be cases of general chaos, which is an opportunity for players to go with exotic partners that close with high odds.

Race 3 - $253,000 Armbro Flight

7 BROADWAY DONNA - She's getting better with every race at four and will be a major threat to the top the division this season, as well as worth her price here.

3 CHARMED LIFE - Ready to challenge her main rivals off great elim win.

9 CAPRICE HILL - Should be in the thick of all exotics, more dangerous than will be displayed through odds.

4 HANNELORE HANOVER - She has a tougher season than the majority would agree to this early in the season.

Race 5 - $100,000 Mohawk Gold Cup

6 GREAT VINTAGE - He has grown into a tough older pacer and could be a deserving price in total command of the mile. There will be too much money on Dr J Hanover due to his opportunistic Canadian record two back.

1 NIRVANA SEELSTER - All things being equal, clearly the second best in this lot.

Race 6 – $75,000 North America Cup consolation

1 HURRICANE BEACH - Don't penalize him for not making the final. He was a gift in his Somebeachsomewhere division and rules here.

2 STEALTH BOMBER - Could suck along and complete the exacta and for price's sake, is probably better there than Normandy Beach, whose absence from a trifecta will raise its price substantially.

Race 9 - $440,000 Fan Hanover

7 AGENT Q - A top member of this division expected to be under-rated here, thus offering a price better than her chances.

4 IDYLLIC BEACH - The obvious and probably over-bet public choice.

Race 10 - $251,000 Goodtimes

1 SHAKE IT OFF LINDY - Primed to take this second of his season and go on to be a threat in the Hambletonian division.

10 GUARDIAN ANGEL AS - Either a speed move to a good position early or picking up tired ones late, he may complete a pricey exactor worth the shot.

Race 11 - $365,000 Roses Are Red

6 CALL ME QUEEN BE - Looking for a powerhouse season, the conquest begins here and at a fair price considering the popularity of her competition here.

2 LADY SHADOW - The obvious.

Race 12 - $1 million Pepsi North America Cup

4 FEAR THE DRAGON - Before the season began it was documented that I had no trouble making this guy the division's best despite the swarm of votes for Hunstville. Even with his short mistake in the elim he won. He is tons the best against his biggest rivals (one of which may be off the board in this), which will afford him a fair price, albeit low, to win.

2 DOWNBYTHESEASIDE - The obvious.

Gural confident Vernon Downs will survive

The track owner has announced closing dates for both the Vernon track and casino, but he is hoping the New York Assembly will side with him to avert the closure.

by Bill Finley

Though he has announced closing dates for both the racetrack and casino at Vernon Downs, track owner Jeff Gural said Friday that he still believes the track will survive the latest crisis and continue racing.

Due to increased competition from nearby casinos, Vernon Downs is losing, Gural says, $150,000 every month it remains open. Gural sought tax relief from the State of New York that would offset the losses and the New York State Senate has passed legislation that would fix his situation. However, the New York Assembly has not passed the same legislation.

Under New York laws, employers must give their workers at least 90 days notice when they plan layoffs and Gural has taken that step. The casino is set to close Sept. 17 and the racetrack will cease operations on the regularly scheduled closing day of the meet, Nov. 11. As things now stand, Vernon would not race in 2018.

But Gural has promised lawmakers that if he gets the relief he is asking he will not only keep Vernon open, but will guarantee that it will continue to race for at least the next five years. He is optimistic that the Assembly will eventually pass the legislation and that Gov. Andrew Cuomo will sign it.

"I am pretty confident... I'd be shocked if they don't," Gural responded when asked if he thought the Assembly would act in his favor. "But I was shocked when they chose del Lago over Tioga for the casino license in the Southern Tier, so anything is possible."

Tioga Down eventually received a casino license, in addition to the one granted to the del Lago casino.

Gural said the announcement that Vernon was closing likely woke up some members of the State Assembly.

"I think it helped," he said. "I wanted to make sure nobody thought we were bluffing. I think they actually have confirmed and agree I am losing $150,000 a month keeping Vernon open. There's no debate on that."

Calls placed to Harness Horse Association of Central New York (HHACNY) president Rick Papa regarding the Vernon situation were not returned.

The same act that allowed del Lago and, eventually, Tioga to be able to open Las Vegas style casinos is what has led to Vernon's problems. According to Gural, the expansion of non-Native American casinos in New York led the Oneida tribe to build the Yellow Brick Road casino in Chittenango, NY. Chittenango is just 18 miles from Vernon.

"Counting Yellow Brick Road, we have four casinos in this area that we are competing with," he said.

Gural added that all he is looking for is for the bottom line at Vernon to return to what it was before he was squeezed by the competition.

"We're looking to come back to where we were before all these other casinos opened," he said. "The fact is I've given them a five-year commitment and by doing so I'm taking a big chance. Odds are that with the relief we have asked for we will be profitable in the short term, but my guess is that by the end of the five years we will be losing money. It just won't be catastrophic."

Vernon Downs opened in 1953 and is considered one of the most picturesque tracks in the sport and a vital part of the New York Sire Stakes program.

"It's a great facility from a horse standpoint and the track surface is good," Gural said. "It would really be a shame if it closes. This was never a good investment on my part and it has already cost me a lot of money, but it would be a catastrophe if we had to close the track."

Twister Bi unstoppable in Oslo Grand Prix

by Thomas Hedlund

American native trainer Jerry Riordan has always a smart and fast comment after his horses races. But when five-year-old Twister Bi won Oslo Grand Prix in Norway last Sunday (June 11), Riordan seemed almost speechless.

Italian bred Twister Bi (Varenne—Lorraine Bi) was a real long shot in this year's edition of Oslo Grand Prix. He was invited for the Elitlopp in the end of May, but did not qualify for the final in that race and with a tricky number behind the gate, no one thought that the Jerry Riordan trainee would be the winner in Oslo Grand Prix.

Dante Boko was quick for the lead and Lionel joined him on the outside after the half mile. When the pace was slow, it should have been difficult for the horses further back in the 10-horse field. Twister Bi was placed third over by his driver Christoffer Eriksson and with a half mile to go, Eriksson stepped the pedal and the son of Varenne quickly moved towards the duo in front.

When Lionel disarmed Dante Boko, everything looked great for the Norwegian favourite who was victorious in the Olympiatravet in April, but it might have been the lack of races thereafter that didn't make him a winner this time.

Twister Bi was incredibly strong in the home stretch and for Eriksson, this was his biggest victory to date.

"This is something you dream about when you start in this business," Eriksson said while Jerry Riordan just looked like he was, indeed, dreaming.

"Lisa America was already a star when she won Oslo Grand Prix 2010," Riordan said. "Twister Bi is a rising star, just like Christoffer Eriksson. I had to admit that I didn't see so much of the race's last 200 meters, but Lionel is a big star in Norway and when I heard that the spectators went silent just before the finish line, I understood that we had won."

The victory was worth 1.5 million Norwegian crowns ($177,000 U.S.) and Twister Bi will most certainly show more of his capacity during the big races in Europe later this season.

The approximate mile time over the distance two 5/8ths was 1:56.4.

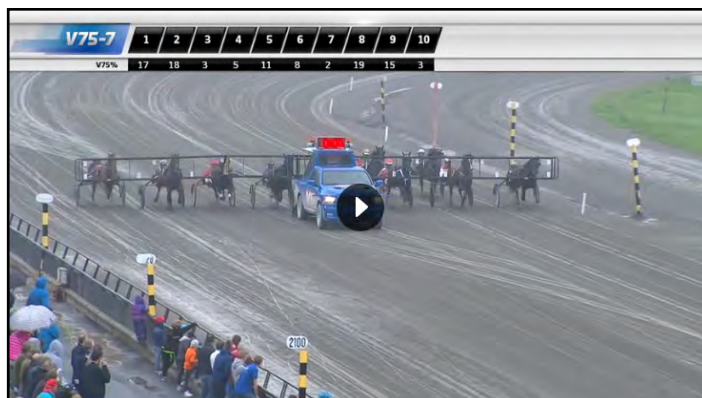

Lionel was second and French bred and trained Aubrion du Gers was third.

Eriksson, 30, has 38 horses in training, but is more known as one of the freshest and more successful catch drivers in Sweden. In May, Eriksson won Kungapokalen at Åby, Sweden, with Peter Forsberg's Diamanten and the month before he was victorious in the Prix Etain Royal in Seinäjoki, Finland, with Twister Bi.

Jerry Riordan left Italy for Sweden a couple of years ago and he has had great results, with both young and older horses since he established in Halmstad in south of Sweden.

Italian horses dominate his stable and Twister Bi may very well be his next superstar.

A replay of the race is available below:

Västerbo Highflyer wins Östersund

In one of the biggest races during the summer for the open trot in Sweden was held in Östersund last Saturday (June 10) and over two 5/8ths, the nine-year-old Västerbo Highflyer (Look de Star) was too hard to catch.

Per Linderöth, who started his career in Östersund, steered the Daniel Redén-trained horse for the first time and controlled the field without making any mistakes. The victory was worth 700,000 Swedish crowns (approximately $81,000 U.S.) and the mile time over the distance was 1:55.

"I get a little bit sentimental and touched by this moment. I've seen this particular race since I was 14 years old and it was incredibly nice to drive this horse. This is really a big moment for me," said Linderöth, 37, after the victory.

Twelve-year-old Elitlopp contender Spring From finished second and On Track Piraten bagged the bronze.

Pepsi North America Cup Night normally draws the biggest crowd of the year at Mohawk. Will a first-time admission fee of $10 impact attendance this year?

The admission test

Tonight, Woodbine will be charge $10 for admission to watch and wager on the North America Cup. I think it's the correct strategy.

by Dean Towers

There are a great many opinions in harness racing. Whether a discussion is about uniform rules, passing lanes, drivers sitting back in the bike, takeout rates (or a hundred other things), you're going to hear vociferous feedback.

Charging admission at slot tracks is no exception. When such a charge is suggested — for what formerly was a free event — people can get very testy.

"Why are they charging for entry, when these people would be using the $10 to bet?"

"Why are we turning people away?"

"Why are we making racing less accessible, rather than more accessible."

On the surface those arguments resonate, and I don't think they are without merit. However, there is evidence that what Woodbine is trying this evening is the right thing to do.

Products are often priced with something called "value based pricing". This is a pricing strategy "which sets prices according to the perceived value of the product to the consumer, rather than according to product cost, or historical prices." When successful, it improves profitability.

The value to the consumer — in the context of a big night, like the North America Cup — is, in my view, pretty clear.

There are free hats, giveaways, and concerts from two Canadian country music stars who have top ten hits.

There's entertainment on the racetrack, in the form of a $1 million horse race, which is nationally televised on The Sports Network.

There's a trackside party atmosphere, and those who choose to attend the event are sharing their space with like-minded people in a unique and comfortable setting.

Can you find $10 of value in the above? I sure can. In fact, it feels more like $20 or $30 of value; especially in a big city like Toronto, where people pay $20 to get into a club for the privilege of consuming a $12 bottle of beer, or a $20 glass of wine.

There's another reason why value-based pricing can, and does, work. When a business or event charges for something, it is immediately assigned value in the minds of the consumer.

Maybe you've been to a baseball game where seat cushions are given away for free. After the first poor on-field call, these cushions can litter the field in a torrential rectangular foam meteor shower. If fans paid even $2 for the cushions, this simply wouldn't happen in any grand scale. Not too many people throw away something they just paid two bucks for.

Along the same lines, when an event has an admission fee it encourages customers to stay longer than they may have, and in turn, bet. How many free events have you walked into, only to immediately turn around and walk out of? Conversely, if you pay $10 to get into a similar event, I bet dollars to donuts you at least try and get your monies worth. Harness racing needs people staying until the feature event, not leaving early and hitting the slot machines.

When the sport doesn't charge even a dollar for a big day, it is signalling to the consumer that harness racing isn't worth their time, or their money. That's not the right message to send.

For another built in edge, charging admission on a day like this allows for customer loyalty options.

If there's a value assigned to a day, something can be given back to regulars. The casino industry long ago figured out it is a great customer service and consumer retention tactic.

Perhaps you – as an everyday customer – will receive free passes to the card. Perhaps you are a heavy hitter and will get coupons and a seat in the great restaurant at. Perhaps you are a horse owner, or participant in the races; you'll get in free as well. This goes a long way to making regulars feel appreciated, whether the customer mucks a stall or bets $3,000 a night.

As I am sure many of you know by now, I am unabashedly pro-customer, and pro-racing. I think horse owners and horseplayers being nicked and dined at every turn (especially with slots money flowing like Niagara Falls), is abhorrent; high takeout rates, charging for forms or data that regular customers need to bet – myriad things – do the sport no good at all. But regarding charging admission on racing's big days, I am wholeheartedly with the program.

Tonight, maybe only 3,000 fans show up at Mohawk, and maybe that top-line number will frighten the industry. But I believe 3,000 fans paying $10 a pop, enjoying watching and wagering on harness racing is a good thing. In my mind it trumps 8,000 fans who stay for five minutes, not giving the sport a chance, because they believe if you think your sport isn't worth anything, why should they think it is.

Idyllic Beach driven to victory by Yannick Gingras last Saturday in her Fan Hanover elim.

Gingras likes Idyllic Beach's versatility

The filly will try to become the sixth Fan Hanover winner for trainer Jimmy Takter.

by Ken Weingartner / Harness Racing Communications / USTA

Idyllic Beach spent a lot of time near the front of a lot of races last year, but driver Yannick Gingras says the filly doesn't need to be setting fractions to be successful.

"I really like her versatility," said Gingras, who will drive the award-winning Idyllic Beach in tonight's $440,000 Fan Hanover Stakes for 3-year-old female pacers at Mohawk Racetrack. "As a 2-year-old maybe she was a little ahead of the other ones early on. I think I maybe got caught up racing on the front too many times and at the end of the year she was a little tired.

"But she can do it either way. She's got huge speed, but you can use her any time you want. If I can race her from behind I think she's better chasing down horses. But if it's a slow pace we'll take it."

Last year Idyllic Beach won eight of 14 races and never finished worse than third on her way to $647,678 in earnings for trainer Jimmy Takter and owners Christina Takter, John Fielding, Brixton Medical Inc., and Marvin Katz. She received Dan Patch and O'Brien awards for best 2-year-old filly pacer in the U.S. and Canada.

Idyllic Beach led at the first quarter of six races last year and was in front at the half-mile point 11 times. Only once was she worse than second at the half, when she rallied from sixth to win her elimination for the She's A Great Lady Stakes at Mohawk. A week later she captured the final to join her dam, Idyllic, as a winner of the event.

This year, Idyllic Beach is unbeaten in two starts. She won her Fan Hanover elimination by two-and-a-half lengths in 1:51. She was fourth at the half.

"She was very good," said Gingras, who won the 2006 Fan Hanover with Darlin's Delight. "She needed the start. I think it will do her a lot of good and she'll be even better this week."

Idyllic Beach, a daughter of stallion Somebeachsomewhere out of Idyllic, is the 9-5 second choice on the morning line behind favorite Tequila Monday at 8-5. Takter has won four of the last six editions of the Fan Hanover, including last year's with Pure Country. He has five Fan Hanover trophies overall.

Tequila Monday won her Fan Hanover elimination in 1:50.4 with Brian Sears driving for trainer Chris Oakes and owners Susan Oakes and Chuck Pompey. Tequila Monday has won seven of 10 career races, including last year's New York Sire Stakes championship and this year's Lismore Pace, and never finished worse than second. She has earned $303,853.

"The race could go a lot of different ways; I'm not really sure," Gingras said, adding with a laugh, "If it's a slow pace I'm racing on the front, if it's a fast pace I'm racing from behind. So we'll see how that goes.

"Tequila Monday was really good too last week, but I'm confident in my horse. She's got a big-time shot in there."

Tonight's card at Mohawk also includes the $1 million North America Cup for 3-year-old male pacers, $365,000 Roses Are Red for older female pacers, $253,000 Ambro Flight for older female trotters, and $251,000 Goodtimes Stakes for 3-year-old male trotters. Racing begins at 6:30 p.m.

Bettors Up (with James MacDonald in 2016) has a shot at Fan Hanover glory tonight, says her trainer Scott McEneny.

McEneny says Bettors Up ready to battle in Fan Hanover

The man who trained Bettor's Delight said the daughter of the stellar sire has a shot to win tonight's $440,000 event for sophomore pacing fillies.

by Ray Cotolo for WEG Communications

Following a second-place finish to odds-on favourite Tequila Monday in an elimination for the Fan Hanover last week, Bettors Up, a Bettors Delight filly from the Western Hanover mare Fresh Ideal, returns for the $440,000 final tonight on the Pepsi North America Cup undercard.

"She was a pretty good filly last year — she won in 1:51 in a division of Pennsylvania Sires," said Scott McEneny, who trains Bettors Up for his wife, Michelle McEneny and her fellow owners Brad Grant and Teresa Davidson. Scott also trained Bettors Up's sire, Bettor's Delight.

Over 14 career starts, Bettors Up has won seven, including three divisions of the Pennsylvania Sires Stakes (PASS) and a division of the Eternal Camnation last year, compiling $227,749 in earnings. She has made four starts this year, improving from a seventh-place finish in her debut against conditioned mares on May 6 to a sharp 1:51.1 victory on June 2 ahead of the Fan Hanover eliminations.

"Coming back up here to Canada we had a tough spring to get them ready," Scott said. "A lot of rain, so getting some fast miles in them was tough. She had a couple of starts under her belt, but then I put her on Lasix and it seemed to help her. We had missed three weeks (after scratching sick from a Sires Stake), so she needed that race because she's not a really good trainer; she's really lazy.

"She's not a very big filly, but she's filled out over the year.

She doesn't wear very long hobbles — she just has a big heart. We paid $15,000 for her and she has a good pedigree, but her biggest problem is her size."

As a two-year-old, Bettors Up's only other stakes venture following PASS action was in the Three Diamonds at Woodbine Racetrack. She finished sixth in the final.

"The final of the Pennsylvania Sires Stakes was at Chester and she just didn't like that track," Scott said. "When I raced her there the first time, she hit her knee really badly, and so I was fighting a bad knee the whole year.

"Then we had six weeks off before any other stakes, and I think she just got a little stale; just wasn't sharp."

Last Saturday, Bettors Up was sent to the front, attempting to wire the field in the second of two Fan Hanover eliminations before being caught in the final strides by Tequila Monday, who won by a length in 1:50.4.

"I knew she'd be good because she likes to race tough. When she won in (1):51, Doug McNair raced her first up," Scott said. "I think she got a little lazy up front in the elimination, plus I thought we could've gotten the third-quarter to be a little slower; Scotty Zeron (driving Shes Watching) was coming kind of hard, so she went a big third-quarter but still came home in :27. I was pretty happy with her."

Tequila Monday got the better of Bettors Up in their elimination, while Idyllic Beach took care of business in the other split. The elimination winners will likely be the favourites at post-time, but Scott said his filly, who will start from the rail, can be right with them and be a player.

"That was a tough filly that beat her," Scott said. "Some of the other fillies, like Idyllic Beach, we've beaten before, so I think she can go with them. It's going to come down to who gets the right trip and there are four, five, six good fillies in there. It's not going to be a cake walk for anybody."

Enterprise and David Miller winning their Goodtimes elimination last Saturday at Mohawk.

Enterprise looking for warp speed in Goodtimes

The lightly-raced trotter is a perfect five-for-five in his career for trainer Marcus Melander.

by Ken Weingartner / Harness Racing Communications / USTA

When he first began racing, Enterprise sometimes looked for the quickest way to exit the track. Over time, though, he seems to have settled for the fastest way to the winner's circle.

Enterprise is five-for-five in his career as he heads to tonight's $251,000 Goodtimes Stakes for 3-year-old male trotters at Mohawk Racetrack in Ontario. Last week the Marcus Melander-trained colt won his Goodtimes elimination by two lengths over AWOL Hanover in a lifetime-best 1:53.1.

The Goodtimes is one of the major stakes on the road to August's $1 million Hambletonian. Last year's Goodtimes winner, Marion Marauder, went on to win the Trotting Triple Crown (Hambletonian, Yonkers Trot, Kentucky Futurity) and received awards for Trotter of the Year in the U.S. and best 3-year-old male trotter in Canada.

Nine of the 10 Goodtimes finalists are eligible to the Hambletonian: Enterprise and fellow elimination winner International Moni as well as Shake It Off Lindy, Jake, Southwind Woody, Seven And Seven, Southwind Cobra, AWOL Hanover, and Guardian Angel As.

Tonight's card at Mohawk also includes the $1 million North America Cup for 3-year-old male pacers, $440,000 Fan Hanover Stakes for 3-year-old female pacers, $365,000 Roses Are Red Stakes for older female pacers, and the $253,000 Armbrø Flight Stakes for older female trotters. Racing begins at 6:30 p.m.

Enterprise will start the Goodtimes from post four with driver Tim Tetrick. The colt, owned by Courant Inc., raced only once last year, winning by nine-and-a-half lengths in 1:58.1 at Harrah's Philadelphia in December, and worked his way through conditioned-level competition before facing stakes-caliber foes.

"He was very immature," said Melander, who began training

Enterprise in late summer last year. "When he saw an exit (from the track) he wanted to go out. I trained him on the straight track all fall and in November he felt great and ready to go. He felt like a good horse, but I wanted to race him once to see how he was. He was still very immature in that race. If you take a look at it, you'll see he was going like a snake down the stretch. But he had plenty left."

A son of Chapter Seven out of the mare Shes Gone Again, Enterprise is a half-brother to New Jersey Sire Stakes champion Guess Whos Back and his family includes Dan Patch and O'Brien awards winner Poof She's Gone. Enterprise was purchased for $100,000 at the 2015 Lexington Selected Sale.

Enterprise prepped for the Goodtimes with wins in conditioned races at the Meadowlands before capturing a division of the New York Sire Stakes at Vernon Downs.

"I didn't mind that he didn't race much last year," Melander said. "If he wasn't ready, he wasn't ready. It was good in a way because he didn't have to race against the best ones right away, even if he probably could. He needed the experience, that's for sure. He's behaving pretty good; at Mohawk (last week) he was perfect. I'm very happy with how his races have been going so far. It's exactly how we planned."

"He moves so easy, even though he's a pretty big horse. He's got speed, but he never gets tired. Of course that will happen when he faces tougher horses; maybe it will happen in the final on Saturday. But he's a very strong horse. He's got the tools to be a good horse."

The 25-year-old Melander trains 30 horses in central New Jersey. In addition to Enterprise, he has a Hambletonian hopeful in colt Long Tom, who earlier this season won the New Jersey Sire Stakes championship. Melander's uncle, Stefan, won the 2001 Hambletonian with Scarlet Knight.

"It's still several weeks until the Hambletonian and anything can happen," Melander said. "But I wouldn't trade either of my horses for anyone. I couldn't be happier right now. We'll see what happens. I try to not think about the Hambo, I just try to think about the next race. I feel pretty calm about that. We just take one race at a time because I know a lot of things can happen on the way. Of course, that's what we're aiming for. But you never know what will happen. It's a long road."

Frank M. Antonacci said drivers wearing owner colors in big stakes events "just makes sense."

The Color of Moni

Last Saturday, driver Scott Zeron wore Lindy Farms colors rather than his own while driving International Moni to victory in his Goodtimes elimination. Lindy's Frank M. Antonacci said he hopes it's just the beginning of drivers wearing owner colors in marquee events.

by Dave Briggs

Anyone thinking Lindy Farms was staging a publicity stunt last Saturday when driver Scott Zeron wore the farm's colors while driving International Moni to victory in his Goodtimes elimination at Mohawk don't know the Antonacci family.

It's just the beginning, Lindy head trainer Frank M. Antonacci told HRU Friday evening. Pending judges' approval again this week, Zeron will be wearing Lindy's black, blue and white colors rather than his own white, blue and red tonight when he drives International Moni in the $251,000 final of the Goodtimes for sophomore trotting colts (race 10) on the Pepsi North America Cup undercard.

"I believe in it. It's something we're going to give a shot and I encourage other owners to do the same," Antonacci said of drivers following the thoroughbred tradition of jockeys wearing owner silks rather than their own. "To me, it just makes sense. Do I think every overnight is going to have guys with owner colors? No. But the places where we showcase our sport and showcase our breed, why wouldn't owners and farms demand that these guys wear these colors? It's their horses, their product and it's the greatest billboard you can have for your brand – your winning horse."

Antonacci said it's not only a great way to help attract new owners, but the particular colors Lindy is using may also have a competitive advantage.

"It's a company called Speed Silks that makes jockey silks," Antonacci said. "There's traditional jockey silks that's the same material as our traditional colors, but this company called Speed Silks makes the tighter material that's more aerodynamic, less wind resistant and has less drag. Think about what professional cyclists wear. In my opinion, our regular colors are the least aerodynamic thing that we do. We put a driver in the back of a sulky that's wearing, pretty much, parachute material. It's like stopping a dragster."

"We do all these things – wheels, bikes and all these other things – to pick up fractions of a second. If you think of it, a fifth of a second is a quite a long distance when you talk about a horse race. It doesn't take much to move the needle."

Antonacci said his younger brother, Phil Antonacci, was the one that took the initiative and got the Lindy colors made. It was a subject the brothers discussed with HRU last October (full story here).

"We talked about it last fall in Lexington and it just took us a little longer to get the colors situated," Frank said. "We had it in the back of our minds going into this year that we wanted to try it. Scotty has been game for it and we figured it was the right horse to do it with. I'm glad it worked out and hopefully other jurisdictions will allow us to do it throughout the year."

Frank said both the Mohawk judges and International Moni's co-owner David Reid "were fantastic" to let Zeron wear the Lindy colors and the track announced the change. When International Moni won, the new colors immediately got attention in the industry.

"I got a bunch of texts from a lot of people in the industry saying they loved it," Frank said. "There was a lot of comments on Twitter about it, especially from the Europeans. This is stuff that they do all the time. Nuncio, he raced in the Elitlopp in (Stefan) Melander's colors. It's kind of what they do there. It's what we do in thoroughbred racing here. As unique as it is for us in the standardbred industry in the States and Canada, it's par for the course and the standard in many other places."

Though Lindy also qualified Shake It Off Lindy for the Goodtimes final with a third-place finish, driver Brett Miller was wearing his own purple and white colors and will be doing so again tonight.

"They really are a custom set," Frank said of the Speed Silks. "We had Scotty's measurements going into the season and had them specifically made for Scott. So, we would do the same for Brett and do the same for Timmy (Tetrick) and all the other guys that we use on a regular basis, as long as they're willing to do so. I haven't had a specific conversation with Brett, yet, but my hope would be that Shake It Off Lindy is the type of horse that he'd be willing to come on board and do this, as well.

"It's really not that difficult. Guys like Scotty that are willing to try things, I've got to give him credit for that. You read Yannick's article (in last week's HRU, full story here), we should be doing everything and anything to help the game. I think you've got to put this in that category, as well."

The fact that International Moni – a Love You colt out of Antonacci and Reid's famed mare Moni Maker – is in the spotlight right now certainly helps the colors debate gain some traction.

"If the horses keep getting the attention, then it makes this an even better conversation," Frank said.

USTA suspends Northfield Park membership

The U.S. Trotting Association announced Friday (June 16) that it has suspended the membership of Northfield Park due to an alleged violation of USTA Rule 20.09 on financial responsibility. Northfield Park was notified of the suspension on Thursday (June 15).

Rule 20.09 Financial Responsibility states that, "Any participant who shall demonstrate financial irresponsibility by accumulating unpaid obligations, defaulting in obligations... may be denied membership in the USTA or may be suspended on order of the Executive Vice-President."

This action by the USTA is a result of a dispute over payment for eTrack and related services provided to Northfield Park and, as a consequence of Northfield Park's suspension, also means that the track's director, Dave Bianconi, has lost his qualifications to continue his service on the USTA Board of Directors.

"It's an unfortunate situation that has been ongoing for some time, but track members must be held to the same level of accountability as individual members," said USTA Executive Vice President and CEO Mike Tanner. "We hoped to achieve resolution with Northfield, but have been unsuccessful."

The ruling for the Northfield Park suspension will appear in the USTA Current Fines & Suspensions Bulletin that will be posted on the USTA website on Friday (June 16).

Lou Lamoriello to present North America Cup

Woodbine Entertainment Group (WEG) is pleased to announce that Lou Lamoriello, general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, will be making the winner's circle presentation for this Saturday's $1 million Pepsi North America Cup at Mohawk Racetrack.

A native of Rhode Island, Lamoriello became exposed to harness racing during his 28 years as the general manager of the New Jersey Devils. During his time in the Garden State, Lamoriello led the Devils organization to three Stanley Cups, five conference titles and nine division titles.

In July of 2015, Lamoriello was named GM of the Toronto Maple Leafs and recently led the organization to a playoff appearance.

Lamoriello became a Hockey Hall of Fame inductee in '09.

The $1 million North America Cup features the continent's finest three-year-old pacers and is Canada's richest harness race. This year's event marks the 34th edition of the North America Cup.

Lamoriello, who recently attended the North America Cup eliminations, will present the prestigious trophy to the connections of the winning horse along with Michael Hall, Director of Business Development for PepsiCo.

The Pepsi North America Cup is carded as Race 12 on Saturday's 15-race card. Live racing begins at 6:30 p.m., with the North America Cup scheduled for approximately 10:40.

Hambletonian champ Market Share wins Big M feature

One is closing in on $3.8 million in lifetime earnings. The other has a hump. But both Market Share, the 2012 Hambletonian champion, and Guyanastan Gal, the 2017 Cameltonian champ, shared the spotlight on Friday night at the Meadowlands.

In the featured $15,000 conditioned trot, Market Share was last in the compact field of six through the opening half mile. Roundtown Rocker fronted the field through the half mile in :56.3 and three-quarters in 1:25.4.

As the field turned for home, Hall of Famer John Campbell, who was driving Market Share for the first time in his 94-start career, tipped the son of Revenue off cover and the 32-time winner exploded with a :27.2 last quarter to win by a length as the 2-5 favorite in 1:53.3.

Roundtown Rocker held second while Jewels In Hock, one of two mares in the field, held the show spot.

Meanwhile, Friday night also marked the annual Camel and Ostrich races.

In the "Cameltonian," Guyanastan Gal dominated her three humped rivals to win by open lengths. Earlier in the evening, Lone Petunia rallied from a slow start to sweep the field and win a three-bird photo in the 6th Annual Ostrich Derby, despite her driver dropping his broom in deep stretch.

A large and enthusiastic crowd cheered on all of their favorite two and four-legged animals despite rain showers earlier in the day.

Total handle on the 10-race card was $1,744,602.
