

Hambletonian Picture Could Be Crystal Clear After Zweig

By Bill Finley

Can anyone beat Jimmy Takter in this year's Hambletonian?

That question will be a lot easier to answer around 4:30 this afternoon as Takter will send out four of his Hambo

Pinkman looks like the one to beat in today's Zweig at Vernon Downs hopefuls in the $370,000 Zweig Memorial at Vernon Downs. The Takter quartet, which will be coupled in the wagering, consists of Uncle Lasse, Canepa Hanover, Pinkman and Whom Shall I Fear. It's not a matter of Takter separating himself from the pack but, now, one of his horses giving off signs they are the superior 3-year-old trotter in their stable.

"It's going to be very difficult to beat any one of Jimmy's horses, let alone all four," said trainer George Ducharme, who will challenge Team Takter with Wings Of Royalty. "My horse has to step up a little bit to think he can go at this level."

The situation is reminiscent of last year when Takter trained what most considered the top three members of the division in Father Patrick, Nuncio and Trixton. He wound up winning the Hambletonian with Trixton. This year, he has even more depth as he has at least five horses pointing for the race. His list of contenders also includes The Bank, a winner of a division of the Stanley Dancer who will sit this one out.

Of his four Zweig starters, Pinkman has been the most consistent and would be the favorite if the group were able to race uncoupled. The 2014 Dan Patch Award winner, he has lost just once this year from six tries. He will be driven by Yannick Gingras. Uncle Lasse is also a strong candidate as he gave Pinkman all he could handle when losing to him by just a head in the Beal Final at Pocono Downs.

Then there's Canepa Hanover. He was a $300,000 yearling buy at the 2013 Harrisburg sales and, though he's made only $129,868 in his career, he appears to be a horse with a huge upside. With Takter driving, he finished third behind Pinkman in a Dancer division, which was his first start in four weeks.

"He raced really, really well," co-owner Marvin Katz said of Canepa Hanover's last race. "He hadn't raced in 28 days and considering he didn't race a full race in finals of the Goodtimes (when he broke stride) it really had been five weeks since he raced. I know he trained well at the farm in between starts, but that was a big effort, a fast mile and he trotted home in a fast time (27). It was a great effort.

"I know this is a process and I have all the confidence in the world in Jimmy Takter. There's no one better when it comes to bringing a horse to a big race like this. I don't get discouraged or encouraged. I just sit back and watch the master at work."

Whom Shall I Fear hasn't hit the board in his last four starts and looks like the weakest of the group.

Ron Burke once thought his best shot at winning the Hambletonian was going to come with the filly Mission Brief. But she hasn't been as sharp as she was last year, which has moved Habitat to the top of Burke's Hambletonian contenders. Habitat was second in the Dancer, a neck behind Pinkman. Mission Brief will also appear on the card, racing in the Zweig division for fillies.

"Habitat is just always so consistent," Burke said. "I think they will both do well this weekend and I enjoy racing at Vernon because it is such a nice track."

As for Mission Brief, Burke has said she has been battling back problems throughout the year. He hasn't ruled out racing her in the Hambletonian, but it seems more likely he will go with her in the Hambletonian Oaks. In her last start she lost by a nose in the Del Miller. It was the first time she has lost when not breaking stride.

"I know she was beaten last week," Burke said. "But I really like how she came out of the race and I think we are ironing out her back issues at the right time. We've definitely been doing a lot of work on it."

"I thought Mission Brief raced super last week. I know how I feel when my back bothers me so I can only imagine what it is like for her. She fought back on the inside but I don't think she ever saw that other filly (Spirit To Win) coming on the outside. You also have to give it that other filly. Mission Brief trotted her last quarter in :26.3 and the winner trotted in :26 flat."

Ducharme won the 2013 Hambletonian with Royalty For Life, like Wings Of Royalty, a son of RC Royalty. He doesn't think this year's candidate stacks up to his Hambletonian winner, but he sees a horse that is on the improve.

"I don't think he has the raw speed that Royalty For Life had," Ducharme said. "He seems to be more a grinder type horse that seems to be getting better at the right time of the year. But Jimmy will be tough. I think he's definitely got all the best cards in his hand." | share story |

Sorella-Coleman Team to Break Up By Perry Lefko

Horse owner Adriano Sorella is ending his partnership with trainer Casie Coleman, putting all the horses they own up for auction with the exception Vegas Vacation, with which they won the 2013 Little Brown Jug, because of financial reasons and philosophical differences.

Vacation is not part of the sale because he is currently sidelined with an injury, Sorella said. Sorella owns at least 25 percent of the horses and in some cases 50 percent.

Sorella, who has been active buying horses in recent years and is also one of the more high-profile owners in Ontario, contacted Harness Racing Update to provide specifics for the dispersal, amid various rumours, including suggestions he is broke.

"I'm just trying to make a decision based on the fact the horses aren't doing well," he said. "The stable as a whole is not doing well."

Sorella said the plan was to include Vegas Vacation, who did not race in 2014 because of an injury and has only started six times this season without a win, in the sale. He said he abandoned the idea because of how it would be perceived selling a Jug winner. It became a moot point when the horse suffered another injury.

"I'm going to stay in horse racing," Sorella insisted. "I'm getting out, but I know I won't be out for long. I'll be back in horse racing, but there's a couple other things I'm doing right now that are a lot more important to me. I'm merging my company with another company and this is taking up a lot of time. I have no time for all these horses. When the racing is going bad and you have no time for all these horses, you have to start picking and choosing your priorities. That's just it. It's easy for people to say, 'oh, look at you, you're a quitter' but you've to say to yourself 'what do I have more time for?' I'm looking at the horse racing, I'm losing money and my business is booming."

"It wasn't an easy decision, but it wasn't a hard one, either. Up until two weeks ago I had 16 horses racing and the stable would have made just $500,000. We're in the middle of summer. I understand there's a lot of two-year-olds that haven't raced yet, but if your two-year-olds are already qualifying and you can tell they are sires stakes horses or lower-stakes horses at best, you've got to say to yourself what makes financial sense here? If you're spending hundreds of thousands of dollars and you can't foresee yourself making that kind of money or even breaking even in the stable, you've got to start making changes."

He said he discussed the idea of buying claiming horses "just to keep the ball rolling," but Coleman, who switched a few years ago to racing young horses bought at sales or homebreds, didn't want to go that route, so Sorella figured it was best to end their business relationship.

"I totally understand (her decision)," he said. "I've got respect for her. She only wants two-year-olds, three-year-olds, good free-for-alls and I get that. She cut her stable down to 40-plus horses. She wants to have the best she can possibly have. I like that mentality of only having the best, but at a certain point I need to start making money, too."

Sorella said he asked one of Coleman's assistant trainers, Andrew Harris, if he would claim horses for him, and he agreed. But Coleman didn't favor that idea and Sorella said that contributed to his relationship with her going in a

"downward spiral."

"I understood what she was trying to say, but I didn't get it," he said. "I understood her point, but I didn't get her point. There's some really nice horses going into the sale and it really sucks because you've got so much money tied into it. But what are you going to do? It has to make sense. I'm trying to wipe the slate clean and start all over again."

Sorella, who began as a harness racing owner seven years ago with Casie through a program to introduce new owners to the business, is hoping to remain friends with the veteran trainer, who has won numerous awards and major races in recent years. Coleman has been voted Canada's trainer of the year several times.

"You've got to look at it from my point, it's a business decision," he said. "A dozen-plus horses and every one of them is losing money in that barn and you have to say to yourself 'I know there's good horses here, I can see them,' but in that stable, it's a high-powered, high-results stable, and what's the politest way of saying the bills are expensive in that stable, so your horses have to be performing to the maximum peak. That's basically what I'm saying. I don't know what the nicest way of saying that is because that's what the truth is. You're in a high-powered stable. If you play for the Detroit Red Wings it's a little bit different than if you play for the Minnesota Wild because there's more expected from you. There's a lot more that comes with the territory. The horses get everything that they need, they are treated great, she's good staff. Her two assistant trainers - Anthony Beaton and Andrew Harris - are the best assistant trainers I've ever met in my life. Those guys could both be (head) trainers someplace else. I have all kinds of respect for them. It's hard because I like those guys, but what are you going to do?"

"At some point you have to say what makes sense and what doesn't? I'm in the middle of building a $3 million house, do you think I want to stare at millions of dollars lost in horse racing? It doesn't make sense. The accountant looks at me and says, 'You're crazy, dude.' She's saying, 'Adriano, you're nuts. You're bleeding out of every single finger right now.'"

"When you're backed against a wall and you've got to make a decision, you don't want to be a statistic (where people are saying, 'Look at that guy, he lost all his money on horse racing.' That's not happening here. I can go on taking a beating on these horses, but I'd rather wipe the slate clean and know I've lost $200,000, $300,000, $400,000 in livestock and start all over again.

"The big thing I'm trying to make people understand is these horses are not garbage. I'm trying to max out as much money as I possibly can get out of these horses going into the sale, but I'm trying to make people understand they're not going to sale because I'm trying to get rid of bad horses. They're going to the sale because I'm getting out, wiping the slate clean. Some people are going to benefit from it buying some nice horses and they'll eventually see I'm starting fresh and most likely it's got to be a different trainer.

"I'm building a house right around the corner from Mohawk Racetrack, I'm not getting out of horse racing. We just seem to not be on the same page anymore, myself and Casie and that's never good. There's a possibility of getting destroyed and losing millions of dollars when you're already coming off a really bad year where you lost $750,000. Do you really want to get killed like that?

"I notice on social media people saying, 'maybe he got too big.' Does it really matter if you have 20 horses losing money and you cut down to 10 horses losing money? It doesn't make any sense. So big deal, instead of losing 10 horses losing $100,000 each, you're losing five horses losing $100,000 each. That makes no sense to me. That's not business." | share story |

Magic Tonight Third in Meadowlands Qualifier

In his first appearance this year on a U.S. racetrack, Elitlopp winner Magic Tonight finished third in a qualifier yesterday at the Meadowlands, hitting the wire in 1:54. He finished five lengths behind the race winner, Lindy's Tru Grit.

One race later, his stablemate D'One won her qualifier by three lengths in 1:54.3. Marcus Johansson drove both horses for Swedish-based trainer Roger Walmann. Magic Tonight is being pointed for the Aug. 8 Cashman Memorial at the Meadowlands. D'One will race that same afternoon in the Fresh Yankee.

It was a busy morning at the Meadowlands with 15 qualifying races, eight of them for 2-year-olds. One of the more notable winners among that group was Bene Bene, a Kadabra filly that sold for $400,000 at Lexington. Trained by Nifty Norman and driven by Dave Miller she went in 1:59.2.

As is almost always the case, the big winner among trainers on the morning was Jimmy Takter as he won three of the eight baby races.

Canadians Conquer Jersey

Making his first start outside of Canada, Split The House took off in the stretch to win last night's $200,000 SBOA

Trainer James Dean won his third Jersey Classic over the last five years

New Jersey Classic at the Meadowlands for the Canadian team of trainer James (Friday) Dean and driver Randy Waples. The colt is by Rocknroll Hanover.

Among this group of Jersey-breds, the big name was 2014 Dan Patch Award winner Artspeak. Sent off as the 13-10 favorite, he had to settle for third.

This was Dean's third win in the Jersey Classic over the last five years.

After failing to make the finals of the North America Cup, Split The House won two straight against lesser company in the Summertime

Series at Mohawk, where he might just have picked up a dose of confidence.

Last night, Waples hustled him off the gate but yielded when Artspeak and Scott Zeron made it clear they were intent on controlling the pace. Waples drafted in behind Artspeak and then came after him near the top of the stretch. He got by him fairly easily and then had little problem holding off a late bid from 13-1 shot Revenge Shark. He won by a half-length in 1:48.3.

"I just wanted to draft as long as I could," Waples said. "I have a lot of respect for Artspeak. He was going to be a tough horse to track down, whether he's at the top of his game or not right now. He's a very good animal. I was hoping to draft along and just hope my horse had pace. At the head of the lane he swelled up and I swung him to the outside and he dug down. He is a really, really nice horse. He has all the parts."

Four races earlier on the card, Wicked Little Minx won SBOA Miss New Jersey for 3-year-old pacing fillies. She drew the ten post but driver Brett Miller did a good job working out a trip on his way to a 2 1/4-length win. The winner is trained by Nancy Johansson and the winning time was 1:50. It was only the second win on the year from eights starts for the 3-year-old filly.

"I love this filly," Johansson said. "She tries so hard. She is very strong. She's like a big diesel, Mack truck. Once she gets rolling she's pretty honest and she'll go there."

Sent off as the 6-5 favorite The Show Returns finished third.

"Super" in the Gerrity

The rugged half-mile track specialist P H Supercam picked up his biggest win on the year as he scored a game victory in last night's Joe Gerrity Jr. Memorial Pace at Saratoga harness.

The 8-year-old gelding by Million Dollar Cam rarely ventures into Grand Circuit action, but last night made the most of a big opportunity in a $260,000 race. In his 172nd career start, he went after Dancin Yankee on the third turn but couldn't get past that rival. Instead, the two got locked into an elongated battle with P H Supercam getting the worst of it on the outside. Driven by Jason Bartlett, P H Supercam hung tough and out fought Dancin Yankee to the wire to win by a neck in 1:50.1. He paid $11.20 and is trained by Jeff Bamond Jr.

Domethatagain was third. Luck Be Withyou, the second choice at 2-1, failed to show his customary speed, settled into last and never seriously challenged while finishing sixth.

The win was the latest for the red-hot Jeff Bamond Jr. stable. A week earlier, Bamond won the $430,600 William Haughton with Mach It So and the $213,450 Golden Girls with Anndrovette. Both races were at the Meadowlands.

Meadowlands Qualifiers Moved To Friday

Next week's qualifiers and baby races at The Meadowlands have been moved to Friday, July 31st to accommodate those horsemen racing on The Adios card at The Meadows on Saturday afternoon. This will be the last qualifying session at The Meadowlands until just prior to the fall meet beginning in November. Any questions should be directed to The Meadowlands race office

Check Six powered to the point with a quarter-pole move for Gingras and held off the late thrust of McDave to down him by a neck in 1:52.3, with Mr Right Hanover third. Burke trains the son of Somebeachsomewhere-Southwind Vanna for owners Burke Racing Stable, Weaver Brussemi, William Switala and James Martin.

"That was a horse race down the stretch — he wouldn't let them go by him," Gingras said. "He has all kinds of potential, He has the size, a nice gait, speed and guts. He has the package. Pacing colts are a little fickle at this stage. In another month, they'll separate the men from the boys."

Do Over Hanover pulled the pocket down the backside to avoid the faltering leader, Genovese, and held off Another Daily Copy by a neck to triumph in 1:52.4. Allie's Cruiser earned show.

"He's very versatile and good mannered," said Jim Campbell, who trains the son of Western Ideal-Driven To Sin — a $25,000 yearling acquisition — for Jeffrey Snyder, Michael Snyder and Robert Unice. "I'll give him a week or two off because he's gone hard the last three weeks. We'll probably get him ready for the next sires stake leg."

Spider Man Hanover and The Catamount Kid took the other Albatross divisions.

The Romola Hanover, $182,016 PASS, 3-Year-Old Filly Pacers

Doctor Terror unleashed a huge uncovered bid from sixth that carried her to victory in 1:50.4 for Corey Callahan and trainer Blake MacIntosh, who owns the daughter of Western Terror-Doctor Seth with Stuart McIntosh. Imagine Dragon was second by a head, with Momas Got A Gun third. With the victory, Doctor Terror soared over $200,000 in career earnings.

The other Romola Hanover split also went to a daughter of Western Terror, as Safe From Terror and Gingras edged her stablemate, Storm Point, by a neck to win in 1:51.1. Macarena Mama completed the ticket. Burke conditions Safe From Terror for Our Horse Cents Stables, Stable 45 and J&T Silva Stables.

$60,000 PA Stallion Series – 3-Year-Old Filly Pacers

Off a layoff of more than two months, Dobre Povedane matched lcommandmyspirit's stake record of 1:51.3 when she followed cover and brushed home to defeat Lean On Yourself by 1-3/4 lengths, with Angel Or Terror third. Callahan drove for trainer John Butenschoen and owners David Prushnok and John Prushnok.

"We thought she could use a little time," said Tyler Butenschoen, the winner's assistant trainer. "She raced good her last race but maybe seemed a little sore afterward. Nothing major, but we gave her a little time, and she trained back great. I expected her to race good, but a 1:51.3 mile was an eye-opener."

Mezzanine Fashion and Repeat Please captured the other stallion series splits.

Special 'Delivery' For Menary Courtesy Of Woodbine Entertainment

Even before his three-year-old pacing geldings Robert Hill and J Js Delivery swept the Ontario Sires Stakes Gold Series divisions at Mohawk Racetrack on Saturday, trainer

J Js Delivery (New Image Media)

Dave Menary was having a pretty amazing weekend.

"I'm pretty pumped. I wasn't at the races tonight myself. I was watching them at home on TV, because yesterday morning I had a daughter born," explained the rural Cambridge, Ont. resident. "Julie and I, my fiancé, we had a beautiful baby girl born yesterday morning. We just come home from the hospital tonight."

As if in celebration of daughter Mikayla's birth, the Menary Stable had an extraordinary evening at Mohawk. In addition to sweeping the Gold divisions, the trainer captured an overnight event and posted three seconds and one third.

"I had seven in to go, including three colts in the Sires Stakes, and it couldn't have gone any better," said the trainer. "Everything we raced tonight has been unbelievable."

Adding another touch of the extraordinary to the evening was the fact that James MacDonald was in the race bike behind both of Menary's Gold Series winners, just one night after being involved in an accident at Mohawk that sent him to the hospital for stitches in his arm.

In the first $105,000 Gold test, MacDonald and Robert Hill started from post six and were sitting seventh when Shoe Shine reached the opening quarter in :26.4. At the :54.1 half and 1:22.1 three-quarters clocked by fan favourite Drachan Hanover, Robert Hill was still at the back of the pack, although MacDonald had moved him into the outer lane.

At the top of the stretch, Drachan Hanover still had a short lead and another Menary other starter, Sportsmanship, looked poised for victory, but when MacDonald gave Robert Hill a clear look at the wire the gelding powered down the stretch to a one and three-quarter length victory in a personal-best 1:51.1. Sportsmanship finished second, giving Menary a one-two sweep, and Thinkofagameplan rounded out the top three.

"Last week I think Sportsmanship went the mile of his life, and tonight when they come up to the head of the stretch I was cheering for him, but then all of sudden, when he was getting conquered it was by my other horse, so I had to change cheering," said Menary. "I had to jump off one bandwagon and get on the other bandwagon."

Menary conditions Jeremes Jet son Robert Hill for Tom Hill of Lancashire, Great Britain and Sportswriter son

Sportsmanship for Kenneth Ewen of Georgetown, Ont., Denis Breton of Welland, Ont., Thomas Kyron of Toronto, Ont., and Parkinson Farms of Lucan, Ont.

In the second Gold division, MacDonald and J Js Delivery also lined up at post six, but the Guelph, Ont. resident hustled the Jeremes Jet son away from the starting gate, reaching the opening quarter in :26.1. The duo yielded to Go Daddy Go through the :53.2 half, but were back out and powering toward the front at the 1:21.1 three-quarters.

J Js Delivery turned for home with a narrow lead and had to battle all the way down the stretch to secure the victory, keeping a neck in front of Go Daddy Go and Star Cover. The 1:49.4 clocking was a personal best for J Js Delivery, who had posted one second and one third in the first two Gold legs.

Bob Hamather of Exeter, Ont. owns J Js Delivery, who is a half-brother to $1.1 million winner Secrets Nephew.

"It's been a non-sleep week. I'm lucky I have a good staff around me," said Menary. "Everything has just fallen into place, partly because of luck, partly because of the people, but mostly because of the horses."

Joining J Js Delivery in the winner's circle was lucky "Be A Winner" contestant Nick Tolti, who had his photo taken with the gelding and driver MacDonald. In addition, Tolti will be back at Mohawk for the Sept. 26 Grassroots Championships enjoying dinner for four and a $100 wagering voucher.

In regular racing action, Shamballa earned his third straight win in the $34,000 Preferred Pace -- and fifth in his last six starts -- for the Rick Zeron Stables of Oakville, Ont. and Tao Racing LLC of Pompano Beach, Florida. Zeron guided the five-year-old Somebeachsomewhere gelding to the 1:49.4 victory over Evenin Of Pleasure and Piston Broke.

Freaky Feet Pete is Freaky Fast at Hoosier Park
By Emily Gaskin

ANDERSON, IN (July 25, 2015) - After winning the opening round of the 2015 Champion Drivers Series at Hoosier Park Racing & Casino on Saturday, July 25, Trace Tetrick would find the winner's circle once more on the evening as he guided Freaky Feet Pete to a stunning 1:48.4 score in the $75,000 Indiana Sires Stakes Final for three-year-old pacing colts and geldings.

With the win, Freaky Feet Pete extended his win streak to five, established a new lifetime best, and equaled the track record at Hoosier Park for three-year-old pacing colts in the process. The previous mark of 1:48.4 was established by Always B Miki and Peter Wrenn in Indiana Sires Stakes action in 2014.

Freaky Feet Pete was unhurried off the gate through opening splits of :26.1 and :55 set by Gallipolis and Tyler Smith. Tetrick gave Freaky Feet Pete the green light down the backside and the three-year-old colt quickly took command just past the half.

As the rest of the field struggled to stay within striking distance at the three-quarter-clocking in 1:22.1, it was clear the race belonged to Freaky Feet Pete as he effortlessly opened up on the field with a six length lead turning for home. Freaky Feet Pete used a :26.3 final quarter, under no urging from Tetrick, to overpower his competition by nine lengths

"He's an amazing animal," trainer Larry Rheinheimer said of his star pupil. "He amazes me every time he is on the track. We always knew we had a nice colt but I don't think any of us dreamed of him being this nice."

Freaky Feet Pete notched his fourth win from five outings this season with his only defeat coming from Wiggle It Jiggle It in the opening round of the $75,000 Indiana Sires Stakes finals earlier in the season. The homebred son of Rockin Image-Skyway Lori has now won fourteen of sixteen lifetime outings while amassing $387,100 for his owners Mary Jo Rheinheimer and Marty Rheinheimer.

Revisiting the Three Year Old "Crown" - It's Doable, and Needed

It's been close to three years since my Harness Racing Update column titled "Harness Racing Needs a Triple Crown." I wasn't the first to write such an article, nor was I the last, but it amazes me how relevant that article is today; more, I believe, than it was many years ago.

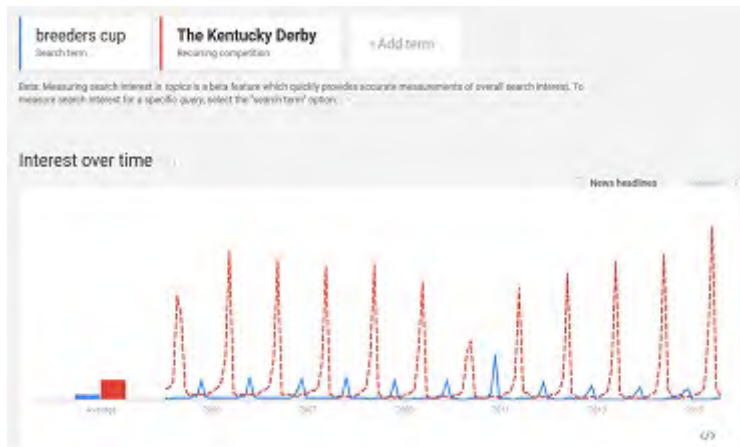

In June, American Pharoah won the Triple Crown of Thoroughbred racing. There's been quite a bit of chatter about what this means for Thoroughbred racing, or horse racing in general. I am not going to bore you with grandiose tales - stories that are filled with words like 'game changer', 'savior' or the like. Let's hope that more people watch and bet the sport, or more owners look to buy horses, sure, but I, like you, wouldn't be betting on anything game changing. What American Pharoah did, and the Triple Crown does in general, is sustain a sport in the nation's consciousness. It, year to year, keeps people watching, and over time, one hopes the number of people watching and wagering on horse racing increases.

The above graph shows web interest in the search term "Triple Crown of Horse Racing" (blue) versus "The Stanley Cup" (red). There are two simple takeaways from the above graph: i) both events seem to be growing and ii) they, most notably in Triple Crown years, overlap. Thoroughbred horse racing is not as popular as a major league sport like hockey, but for a few big event days a year, it is, and that's an unqualified success.

This is not seen with any other event in Thoroughbred horse racing. Take, for example, the Breeders' Cup.

When comparing the Breeders' Cup (blue) to the Kentucky Derby (red) there is simply no comparison. Even the 2010 year, which featured Zenyatta going for 20 in a row in prime time in the Breeders' Cup Classic, it did not crack the magic of any Derby. The old, storied Triple Crown race dominates its newer rival; this despite the Breeders' Cup being on network television for 30 years, being branded by the Cup team quite well, and being, in itself, a pretty storied event.

The public is conditioned to understand the Triple Crown series - a three year old trying to win three races in a prescribed period of time. They're not conditioned to understand an 8.5 furlong juvenile filly turf race, or a Breeders' Cup Sprint or Marathon. The Triple Crown is understood and generational, the Breeders' Cup hopes to build upon the interest already shown in the Triple Crown to stock its own viewership pool in November.

This is why an event of three, or possibly four races for Standardbred 3-year-olds is possibly beneficial for harness racing. The public grasps the concept because they have been conditioned to, yes, but taking it one step further, fans of Thoroughbred racing love the series, and it's incredibly easy to sell a similar event to them. That is a large pool of potential bettors, viewers and fans. Politicians, the government and others who hold the purse strings for racing (through slot purses and regulation) understand it as well. They are becoming more and more important to speak to, through these events.

In addition, harness racing is smaller and more disparate than Thoroughbred racing. There's also a heck of a lot less money to promote the sport. If the Thoroughbreds have resources to only promote two large events per year, and quite frankly, excel in only one of them, how can we expect harness racing to promote itself 365 days a year? It would be great if the Hoosier Cup, Battle of Lake Erie, Yonkers Trot, Canadian Trotting Classic and a half dozen other good events had unlimited money to promote to the masses, but that's unrealistic.

I think it's pretty clear that one series, with the backing of the sport itself, is the answer to at least one major question: "How can harness racing remain in the nation's consciousness?"

Whenever this topic is broached in the sport the inevitable argument that Yonkers "owns" the Triple Crown trademark for harness, or that the event has to be comprised of the Cane, Messenger, and Jug rears its head. Then the idea gets stuck in a bog. I say poppycock. Ninety-nine out of 100 people could not even name the three races in the harness Triple Crown, and who says it has to be called a Triple Crown anyway?

Another criticism (one that I think is valid) is that the sport runs on slots and if a race is chosen as a 'Triple Slam' race, it might not be here in ten years, if the state or province that holds it loses alternative gaming. That's probably an easy fix, though: Pick three races that have backing, or have succeeded without slot machines. The Meadowlands Pace, North America Cup and Little Brown Jug fit that bill just fine. As for the logistics - staking, purses, a slush fund to market the brand - that's not overly difficult. Despite what you may hear (or sometimes read in this column) harness racing is filled with capable individuals with ability to put it together.

Harness racing is small, compartmentalized and off the radar with the general public. It does not have mega-millions to promote every event, at every track from Cal Expo to Pompano, from Charlottetown Driving Park to Fraser Downs. Harness racing needs an event -or series of events - that can tap into the general public's built-in awareness of horse racing; an event or series of events that can be branded; an event or series of events that can attract viewership and betting dollars; an event to remind politicians and others it exists; an event or series of events that can be run from a central office, with a goal in mind. The easiest and most beneficial set of events is a Triple Crown type series for 3-year-old pacers. Harness racing should focus on the concept and develop it for 2016 and beyond.

Bill Finley is a Disgusting Moron

(Editor's Note: We normally don't post things written on Twitter or Facebook about HRU or any of its writers, but couldn't resist as the following may be the single best thing ever written about us. It is in response to Finley's column about consolidating racing dates and increasing purses in order to improve the product at racetracks. We don't get the fella's point, either, but it sure gave us a good laugh.

Let me be blunt..@BillFinley3's column in the new HRU is disgusting. Just another moron journo justifying 30% takeout harnessracingupdate.com.

- @InsideThePylons

How Much Does it Cost to Smile?

There have been talks over the last couple of years regarding ways to get new fans into the game. Discussions surrounding new owners, lower takeouts and non-gaming attractions abound. However, I feel the real key to bringing new players and keeping the older ones lies in the customer experience. With the pari-mutuel system in place, the tracks want the players to win. This isn't always the case as well all know. While we cannot guarantee the players win, we can provide them with a positive experience. Win or lose, if the customer is enjoying themselves there is a good chance they will be back.

Tracks must play to their strengths. Most casual fans and first timers have no idea about the takeout associated with different types of wagers. Nor do they have a great understanding of the different classes of races put on. Races such as the Triple Crown series for the flats have been ingrained in American society and as such are much more than race cards; they are events. When the Breeders' Cup races were created, it became over time a huge event for all race fans and I believe the handle and attendance speak to that. These events are wildly successful, not only due to the quality of racing being presented but also due to the frequency of them.

There has been much concern over declining horse populations. While this is true, I think the real problem is the number of races being run on a normal week. Look at the average attendance and handle for tracks that run multiple times during the week year-round. There is nothing appealing or attractive to these. Most are simply gambling operations churning out as many races as they can fill. For the novice and new player, what is so exciting about these?

There will always be some tracks that do well. Saratoga has a certain charm and atmosphere that is hard to copy. The fan experience of being able to sit under the trees and essentially picnic all day by bringing in your own food and beverages makes it equally affordable and attractive for everyone involved. The fact they run such a short meet also adds a sense of urgency to it; enjoy it before its gone.

Parx has recently decided to take a much needed break and come back with the trendy "racing festival" this fall with higher purses and better quality fields. The Meadowlands and Monmouth Park are trying to run non-gaming promotions every week as well as entertainment. Canterbury has seen huge increases in attendance, yet the handle has decreased over the years. It has yet to be determined if they will work in the long run, but at least they are trying.

Tracks must be willing to try something different, and if they fail try again. Cut back on race days, spend money on promotions and advertising and improve the customer experience. Preach to your employees that customer service is key, after all they are the front line interacting with your customer base. How much does it cost to smile? What about having a quarterly meeting between management, staff and fans? Let everyone express their concerns or ways they feel things can be improved. Let them know how important they are and how vital they are to this game we love.

Resources and racing dates need to be coordinated across state lines, as well as a general governing body, but that is a discussion for another time. Ultimately, if the fan can leave with a smile on their face and a pleasant memory in their mind, they will be back. You can bet on that.

People Racing For Lower Purses Need Love Too

The recent article dealing with Pennsylvania racing is not really pertinent to the situation in New Jersey. We are all aware that slot money available in other states allows them to raise purse monies for horse owners. For years, Yonkers Raceway has raised their purses to the moon. However, this has not helped the owners and trainers of the low-priced claimers who for years struggled until a casino arrived.

Now, the higher quality horses from the Meadowlands race there and the handle is terrible. I would love to see at least one article in this publication that shows some concern for the owners, trainers and drivers of the horses that race for less than huge purses.

New Jersey racing is failing because the politicians have not allowed slots at the track. Pennsylvania and New York owners of high value horses have made out because of slot money, not because they have cut back on racing days. Without slot money in New Jersey, eventually the Meadowlands will be forced to run races where $10,000 claimers are the top race of the day. Freehold will end up closed. All New Jersey tracks have cut back on live days in operation. Cutting back is not the way to increase revenue.

Unfortunately, the ball is in our politicians court and they have shown no leadership skills.

Thank you,

- Alan Gatto

We Are Still Mired in the Last Century

Mr. Finley's article is a trifle misleading since he and the industry confuse "product" and "market." Here is a quote from his article:

"At the recent industry summit put together by the USTA, Hanover Shoe Farm's Murray Brown hit the bulls-eye with his blunt shot across the bow when he said "our product sucks." Brown couldn't have been more right. If harness racing wants to attract more customers, which means higher handles, it must come up with a way to greatly improve what it is selling. "

This is exactly correct but then Mr. Finley goes on to extoll the virtue of the Parx purses and the quality of horses they will attract. This is great for the horsemen but does exactly nothing for the fans and the bettors we want to attract. Replacing the Chevrolets with Cadillacs does not do anything for the "product." The fans and bettors we need to attract really don't care or don't know the difference. To most a horse is a horse.

The Standardbred industry needs to look at the product from the consumers' (the market) point of view. For example, one of the reasons that the Thoroughbreds are more popular than the Standardbreds is varying length of race and size of field.

We are still mired in the last century – 10 horses racing a mile! Every race!

Hockey has changed the rules, football has changed the rules, basketball has changed the rules, stock car racing has changed the rules – all with a view to making their sport more attractive to the consumer. They have seen immense surges in popularity and they don't even have betting! Not only that, these sports are more accessible to the people attending and don't get me going on about how we mistreat and ignore the people who own the teams (the horses) – the investors.

I have been an owner for over 10 years and have heard it all - all this talk is still talk. People like Mr. Finley have the ear of the industry - they need to be more critical of what is (not) happening and ask the hard questions, especially ones like how are we going to change the "product" so that it attracts more fans, bettors and investors. The sooner we regard and manage our industry as a "business" the sooner it will recover.

- Ken Morden

In Support of Chuck Sylvester

I refuse to believe that Chuck Sylvester is in any way involved in the administration of any illegal substances anywhere at any time. If Jeff Gural is seriously considering banning Chuck from his three racetracks, then he might as well just shut the doors.

- Murray Brown

Another Opinion on Sylvester

Isn't it ironic that right beside the story of Sylvester's positive there is an advertisement for Lucky Chucky (who was trained by Sylvester)?

As expected, Sylvester was surprised at the positive and has no idea where it came from. Where have we heard that before? Well...every time a big name gets a positive. What are the odds the split sample, at no surprise to those who understand the pulls and clicks of the big boys, comes up negative?.

Gural had to pull the strings and dump him, I'll bet if it comes back negative, Gural's horses don't return, not after all the publicity about cobalt. The slap on the hand attitude of Pennsylvania is an insult. Every study has reported that the levels established make it impossible to feed a horse enough cobalt to test positive. If Sylvester uses an older vet, maybe he can convince him, $$$$$, to fess up and retire. If you can't do it right turn your horses over to Rene Allard.

- David Towne

A Less-is-More Advocate

I couldn't agree more with Publisher Bill Finley's editorial saying basically what I have always felt, that less is more. Also with Murray Brown's assertion that we have allowed our product to become crap. Now the industry is worrying itself sick about declining foal crop when that is the last thing we should be worried about. How about less racing days and spending more time and money worrying about how to make those days more special? More Little Brown Jugs where people show up to have a good time.

The way to fix declining USTA membership and attendance at the tracks is to have more owners. To do that just make the product more fun, like it was a sport. Oh, that's right it is a sport! A damn good one that a lot more people would crave getting involved with if we honored the owners while they are watching their fabulous equine athletes. Make a special section with plush chairs with big private monitors on the finish line that only owners can sit in. Make the owners stars and they will provide a lot better interviews than most of the trainers and drivers. Because they are the stars. They make our sport go.

Until we worry about improving the fun quotient at the track I think it would be a waste to spend a percent of our purse money to advertise. First fix the product. Then spend heavily! Advertise how much fun it is to participate by ownership in a sport that features the greatest athletes on Earth.

- Bruce Trogon (Emerald Highlands Farm)

It's Not Just About Gambling

I have always believed that marketing harness racing as "primarily betting" with "a dose of sport thrown in" meant you lost the marketing war before it started!

Harness racing is a sport! It needs fans, not just gamblers! There are too many other ways for people to gain money by risking it, without having to have any knowledge about it, to have the sport of harness racing chosen as their betting choice!

Don't teach people to love and appreciate the team sport of harness racing and it will go the way of the stage coach!
- Sherry Skramstad

Showplace Closing is Sad

What a terribly sad state of affairs. I was at Showplace when it first opened and raced at the minor NJSS they conducted there along with training a few horses. I think the rate was between $10-$20 a day at that time. It was also a time when the real estate industry was in the manure pile with 18%+ mortgage rates and nobody was doing much development at the time. But sad as it is it wasn't unexpected. What was unexpected is that it stayed in business as long as it did being that the ground is far more valuable for commercial/residential use than as a training facility. I only hope they didn't make the mistake that Brandywine made by selling out just ahead of the casino regulations being enacted.
