

Elitlopp Winner Magic Tonight Looks For Better Performance at Vernon

By Bill Finley

Hambletonian Day was a day of surprises for Swedish trainer Roger Walmann. He thought he could win the

Magic Tonight Will Look to Rebound Tonight at Vernon Downs

Cashman Memorial with Magic Tonight and thought D'One was up against it in the Fresh Yankee. He left that afternoon with a win, but not the one he expected. Magic Tonight, the Elitlopp winner, was dull in the Cashman and finished eleventh. One race later, stablemate D'One was brilliant in the Fresh Yankee, mowing down former Horse of the Year Bee A Magician to win by a length.

Both will be back at Vernon Downs tonight. D'One, the mare, will take on Bee A Magician and seven others in the $177,000 Muscle Hill and Magic Tonight will try again against older male trotters in the $200,000 Crawford Farms. The card also includes the Artiscape for older female pacers.

As he is the star of the Walmann Stable and the winner of one of the most prestigious events in the world, the focus remains on Magic Tonight. Can he rebound from his off day in the Cashman, which was his first race since the Elitlopp? Walmann believes he will be better than he was at the Meadowlands, but remains a bit worried. He revealed to HRU yesterday that Magic Tonight came out of the Cashman with a blood count that was less than satisfactory and a throat problem and it remains to be seen if he'll be ready tonight for his very best.

"We had a little problem with his blood and a little problem with his throat," Walmann said. "It was not very much but enough to take him down a little bit. I hope it is better this time. We may not have had enough time to get him perfect and he may not be 100 percent for this race. But he was in very good shape before the problem with his throat and blood and he should race good, but maybe he's not yet at top."

With division leader JL Cruze ineligible for this race and slated to go instead a night later at Pocono, the horse to beat in the Crawford Farms will be Flanagan Memory. A blue-collar sort who won only two of 19 starts last year, he has come into his own of late for trainer Rene Dion and has won two straight, including the Cashman. Brian Sears will drive. Every starter but one, the longshot Rossini, is coming out of the Cashman.

Though Magic Tonight failed to get the job done in the the Cashman, Walmann and driver Örjan Kihlström didn't come away from the Meadowlands empty-handed that afternoon as D'One turned in a stellar effort to beat Bee A Magician and Shake It Cerry, both Dan Patch Award winners.

"You never know with horses," Kihlström said when asked about the irony of winning with the horse he thought was his second best shot. "I'm too old to get surprised when they race good or don't race good. You never know. That's way it is with racing, We just hope Magic Tonight is better now."

Despite the win with D'One, Kihlström is taking nothing for granted.

"I am not confident at all, but I have my hopes," he said. "I just hope she is as good as last time and gets a good trip. We'll see what we can do. There are good horses against her and we need some racing luck."

Walmann had said prior to the Cashman/Fresh Yankee that of his two horses Magic Tonight was training the best, so he chalked the Fresh Yankee win up to a pleasant surprise.

"She can beat (Bee A Magician) again, but we must have some luck in the race," the trainer said "Last time, there were two very fast first quarters. If you have three four lengths to make up on Bee A Magician and she doesn't race too fast early it will be very difficult to catch her."

Though beaten last time out, Bee A Magician will likely go off as the favorite based on her reputation and near perfect record this year.

In the Artscene, the rugged mare Anndrovette looks to be on top of her game and looms the one to beat. It's worth noting that driver Doug McNair has chosen to drive Lady Shadow for trainer Ronald Adams over Precocious Beauty, who is trained by his father Gregg.

Trond Smedshammer is a well-known name in the harness racing industry, having trained and driven the likes of Trotting Triple Crown winner Windsong's Legacy and Arch Madness, who earned over $4 million and equaled his own world record at the age of nine.

Kentuckiana Farms sells as agent • www.libfeldkatz.com

The Norway native is a new face in the Thoroughbred industry, but has already found success at Saratoga thanks to Pagan, a debut winner Monday who is one of Smedshammer's first Thoroughbred purchases.

Smedshammer bought Pagan along with another juvenile colt by freshman sire Girolamo, who is now named Charming Indy, at last year's Fasig-Tipton Saratoga New York-bred sale for $40,000 each. Both are trained by Dominick Schettino.

"I have been wanting to get into Thoroughbreds for a while," Smedshammer said. "Last year I finally went to the Saratoga yearling sale and bought these two yearlings. I brought them home and broke them and trained them all the way until June. I trained them at White Birch and sent them to Dominick [Schettino] right after the [GI] Belmont S. [June 6]. He finished them off, getting them used to the starting gate and getting a few fast works over a bigger track."

Despite his lack of experience with Thoroughbreds, Smedshammer knows plenty about equine conformation and picked out both horses himself at the sale.

"I kind of had an idea of what I wanted the horses to look like," he commented. "I have been to enough Thoroughbred races to tell the difference between an average Thoroughbred and a good Thoroughbred. I know what they are supposed to look like, at least in my mind. I asked a lot of people as far as the pedigrees and stuff because obviously I don't know anything about that."

The fact that the New York-bred duo were by a first-crop sire is part of what attracted Smedshammer to them.

"I wasn't willing to spend a fortune on them and those New York-bred sales prices can be very high if you buy popular stallions," Smedshammer said. "I also wasn't willing to give up too much on the conformation, so that's why I went to a first-crop sire, which the Thoroughbred people tend to shy away from. That is why I took a chance on those two. I talked to a lot of people and they said Girolamo did have a lot of speed himself. It looks like we got lucky. There have been some other Girolamos that have showed up also."

Smedshammer owns the two juveniles in partnership with Wanda Polisseni's My Purple Haze Stables and Mike Parisi's Joemar Racing Stables, who are both also prominent members of the harness racing industry. Polisseni also races Standardbreds as Purple Haze Stables, with her current stable star being 3-year-old trotting filly Barn Doll, who has been a force to be reckoned with in the New York Sires Stakes series. Parisi is owner of White Birch Farm in Allentown, N.J., an 800-acre Standardbred breeding and training facility where Smedshammer's operation is based.

"I wanted to get into it and Purple Haze is my primary owner for Standardbreds and [Polisseni] is also a big Thoroughbred owner, and Michael also owns Thoroughbreds," Smedshammer remarked. "When I told them I wanted to buy some Thoroughbred yearlings they said, 'Sure, we will go in with you.'"

Smedshammer continued, "This wasn't just for us to buy to let somebody else train them. I wanted to mess around with them myself and try to train some myself, which is why I bought them. It's been a pleasant experience so far. That's for sure. The horse won his first start, so that's great. Maybe it's a little bit of beginner's luck."

Pagan and Charming Indy spent about 10 months at Smedshammer's barn following their purchase at Saratoga. Smedshammer did all of the early breaking and training on the pair with the help of one of his Standardbred grooms Megan Scran, a lifelong equestrian.

"Pagan took to training very easy, but Charming Indy was smart and played some games with us," Scran said. "They were saints from day one. Charming Indy was a natural at everything. He had a lead change, had the heart to want to run and he really enjoyed work. Pagan was a little lazier and much easier on himself mentally and physically."

The 23-year-old added, "It was one of the most rewarding feelings teaching them everything and then watching them mature even more as they learned to be racehorses in Dominick's barn. It was an incredible feeling seeing Pagan win Monday."

Smedshammer was equally delighted and also quite surprised by Pagan's debut win.

"I was quite shocked actually," he remarked. "I really didn't know what to expect for the first start. Dominick put him on the turf because of his pedigree and stuff. It was a really big thrill to watch, that's for sure."

The New Jersey resident added, "I was [at Saratoga] Sunday for the sale again and I bought a couple of new ones, but I didn't stay over for the race. I had to come home because I was going to Yonkers [Monday], so I watched it from home. [Pagan] is not the better of the two. [Charming Indy] has always been quite a bit better. He was supposed to race [Wednesday], but he is not going to race. He is starting to have a little problem with his shins, so we don't want to race him yet."

Smedshammer's two new purchases are also by freshman sires. He went to $25,000 for Hip 461, a colt by undefeated 2012 GIII Holy Bull S. hero Algorithms, and $20,000 for Hip 517, a son of three-time graded stakes winner Rule.

"I'll break them right away," the 48-year-old said. "They are at White Birch already. I'll do what we did last year. We worked them quite hard in the fall last year up until Christmas and then I turned them out for the winter when the weather was cold and the ground was hard, but I had galloped them quite a bit up until Christmas. They had already gone some quick quarters up until Christmas. We will do the same thing with these two if they look like they have any ability."

While Smedshammer is enjoying his foray into Thoroughbred racing, the Standardbred trainer will keep his Thoroughbred string small for now.

"This is almost like a hobby right now, so we will see how it develops," he concluded. "It's for fun and keeps me a little bit interested in something else. When you get older, the Standardbreds are a lot of wear and tear on you, sitting in the bike, racing and driving. Being a Thoroughbred trainer is certainly a lot easier when you sit on the side and watch. It is not as physically demanding."

JK She'salady About Three Weeks Away From Qualifier, Eyeing Red Mile Meet

By Bill Finley

It's been a tough year for JK She'slady, who is just 1 for 4 and hasn't raced since finishing fifth in the June 27 Lynch Memorial at Pocono. But trainer Nancy Johansson remains confident her star filly will still have a productive year.

Sidelined by lung problems that were likely responsible for her poor performances this year, JK She'salady is about three weeks away from a qualifier and Johansson said she is hopeful to have the Art Major 3-year-old back for the Grand Circuit Meet at the Red Mile.

"She's doing well," Johansson said. "She's trained about four times since we had to treat her with the antibiotics. She seems to be herself again. But we won't know until we're at the point where we're going in 50 with her. There's a big difference between going in 2:15 and 1:50. But she seems a lot more like her old self; she's more alert and happier. Everything is heading in the right direction."

Johansson said that following the Lynch it was discovered that her filly was suffering from lung problems.

"She had an irregularity in her lungs," she said. "We put her on two different types of antibiotics and then when they put her on the treadmill her oxygen levels decreased, so at the end of her miles she wasn't getting enough oxygen. There was something in her lungs causing this, an infection of some sort."

JK She'salady could be back by the Red Mile meet

The irony is that JK She'salady has been suffering from a similar problem that ended the racing career of Father Patrick. Father Patrick is trained by Johansson's father, Jimmy Takter.

"There are plenty of big races left for her," Johansson said. "It's a different situation compared to Father Patrick. He has a lot of value as a stallion and that's something you have to keep in mind with him. She'll be a broodmare for the Three Brothers Stable when we retire her, so I had a little bit more flexibility. If we can't get her together in time to have her race at high level by the end of this year they're not against bringing her back next year at four."

One David, Five Goliaths in Moni Maker

Say this for trainer Mickey Peterson, he's not afraid of a challenge.

Sistas will have her work cut out for her in the Moni Maker

Tonight's $174,000 Moni Maker at The Meadows is emblematic of the current situation in harness racing where two stables dominate and it's a long, long way back to whoever is No. 3. There are six horses in the Moni Maker and five of them are trained by either Ron Burke (three starters) or Jimmy Takter (two starters).

Then there's Mickey Peterson, who will carry the hopes of every trainer who has grown tired of getting crushed by the Burke and Takter monsters. He'll send out the Andover Hall filly Sistas. The good news is that she's riding a four-race winning streak. The bad news is that she has been racing at a much easier level than the Burke and Takter horses, particularly Mission Brief and Wild Honey.

"It's going to be a big job," Peterson said. "She's probably a class, maybe two classes, below the level of competition in there but she's been racing very well and she deserves a chance to race against these horses and see if she can take the next step up. The owners (Albert and Michelle Crawford) felt they wanted to see her have a chance against a little better class of horses."

Though there's just six horses in the field it couldn't be a harder sport for Sistas. Burke's Mission Brief is coming off a second-place finish in the Hambletonian and Takter's Wild Honey just won the Hambletonian Oaks.

"There's no question it would be a huge thrill to beat those guys," Peterson said. "Just to be in the race against those guys and those two horses is a great privilege. I'm not thinking about beating them. I just hope I'm reasonably competitive against them and we put on a good show and she races well for the owner."

Burke will also start I'm So Fancy and Gatka Hanover. Takter's other start is Smexi.

Chalkies Travel Playlist, Joe Larry N Curly Wins 151G NYSS Jim Crawford Pace

By Frank Drucker

Publicity Director, Empire City @ Yonkers Raceway

YONKERS, NY - Thursday, August 20, 2015—Yonkers Raceway Thursday night hosted the $151,624 New York Sire Stakes Jim Crawford Pace for 2-year-old colts and geldings.

Travel Playlist (Andy Miller, $2.90) fooled very few in the opening ($75,112) division, two-moving before busing the race wide open (:27.4, :57.4, 1:27, 1:54.3). Seated third early from post position No. 5, the odds-on number worked around early leader Red Roll (Jason Bartlett), then ran up the score.

No worse for wear after a scratched-sick from his last schedule start in western New York, tonight's final margin was 5¼ lengths. It was 37-1 shot Cenovis (Scott Zeron) getting second and Red Roll lasting for third. Autotune Hanover (Tyler Buter), the winner of the Sheppard Pace here earlier in the winner, was a non-threatening fourth.

For Travel Playlist, an Art Major colt owned by Ronald Michelin and trained by Erv Miller, it was his third win in as many seasonal (NYSS) tries (2-for-2 here). The exacta paid $53.40, with the triple returning $101.

Thursday night's second ($76,512) sire stakes event those even less of those same people who weren't fooled by Travel Playlist not be tricked by Joe Larry N Curly (Jim Morrill Jr., $2.60)

Leaving from post No. 4, he took over from first leader Skip Jive (Bartlett), the set unpressured intervals of :28, :58, 1:28 and 1:55.4. The final margin was 2 ¼ lengths. Fine Diamond (George Brennan), who lost touch in the three-hole down the backside, did finally snatch second, with Skip Jive holding third.

For Joe Larry N Curly, a son of Roll with Joe co-owned by (trainer) Mark Harder, Joseph Jannuzzelli and Dawn Colucci, he's now 4-for-6 this season (1-for-3 here). The exacta (two wagering choices) paid $4.50, with the triple returning $24.80.

The Raceway's live season continues Friday night (first post 7:10 PM).

Burke Sweeps Pass Splits at Harrah's Philadelphia

By Mike Bozich for Harrah's Philadelphia

CHESTER, PA - There were three divisions of Pennsylvania Sire Stakes action for freshman pacers on Thursday afternoon (Aug. 20) at Harrah's Philadelphia, each going for a purse of just over $81,000 each.

Big Top Hanover (Brett Miller) springing the upset. The son of Western Ideal - Blind Ambition latched onto live cover at the half, and was able to out-close leader Ideal Jimmy (Marcus Miller) to pick up the win. Heavy favorite Spider Man Hanover dropped back sharply through the field and was distanced in the end.

It was the first career win for the Ron Burke trainee, who completed the mile in 1:52.4. He paid $69.20 to win.

In division two, another Ron Burke charge, Check Six (Yannick Gingras), was victorious. The son of Somebeachsomewhere - Southwind Vanna showed tactical speed from post 7, putting him in position for a quarter brush, which he utilized just after the quarter. He led the rest of the way, winning by 2-1/2 lengths in 1:53. I'm Some Graduate (Tim Tetrick) closed sharply to be second while Allie's Cruiser (Matt Kakaley) closed up the inside for third.

It was the fourth straight victory for Check Six, who returned $5.00. He is owned by Weaver Brussemi, Burke Racing, Bill Switala, and James Martin.

Division three completed the Ron Burke sweep as JK Will Power took advantage of a perfect trip to win. The son of Somebeachsomewhere - Whats New Pussycat prevailed in a stretch duel over another Burke trainee, Manhattan Beach (Yannick Gingras), to prevail in 1:53.1. JJ Flynn (Brett Miller) finished third.

It was the second career win for JK Will Power, who is owned by 3 Brothers Stables. He paid $5.00.

Big Top Hanover won the fastest PASS split with a 1:52.4 score for driver Brett Miller and trainer Ron Burke.

In the first division, it was Jt45 and Burke

BITS ON BREEDING

Dean Hoffman

As Geldings, Big Names Likely to Have Staying Power

What's bad news for breeding farms is good news for harness racing.

It's at this time of the year that breeding farms are searching the stakes scene for suitable stallion candidates. This season the search is not likely to be very rewarding. The stars of 2015 are dominated by geldings and females with only a scant selection of suitable entire males. Where have all the stallion prospects gone?

That's good for harness racing as the sport benefits when established stars campaign over many years. Think about the indefatigable Foiled Again and the people who have come to North American tracks to see the richest Standardbred ever.

Hambletonian winner Pinkman and Meadowlands Pace

As a gelding, JL Cruze is one of many harness racing stars that should be around for a while champ Wiggle It Jiggleit, both geldings, are likely to be drawing cards wherever they race over the next few seasons. Ditto for soph sensation Wakizashi Hanover and aged trotting star JL Cruze. And then there are the mares Mission Brief and Bee A Magician.

The only entire male among the top seven money-winners this season is Domethatagain, the Rene Allard-trained pacer that recently pushed his earnings past $1 million. But when Domethatagain was racing at ages 2, 3, and 4 for trainer Erv Miller, he was just a very good horse. He was not the standout stakes star that breeding farms seek for the breeding shed.

The fact is that with the rapid decline in harness racing in the last decade, as evidenced by the downward spiral in the size of foal crops, fewer stallions are needed. It's simply a numbers game. With fewer breeders active in this era, fewer stallions are needed.

Hanover Shoe Farms, a powerhouse in harness racing for almost 90 years, plucked off an intriguing candidate in Sebastian K, the world's fastest trotter for the mile. His facile speed stunned horsemen last year; his outcross pedigree offers appeal, too.

But in states such as Illinois and Michigan, it's not likely many farms will be casting about for the lower-tier stallion prospects. Racing has declined so rapidly in there that pessimism has prompted an exodus of trainers while owners and breeders simply slip quietly out of the business.

The arrival of slots breathed life into Ohio racing and many stallions have flocked there in search of opportunity. Dozens of stallions have set up shop in the Buckeye State.

Some will surely get the short end of the stick. It may be a situation of Indiana redux: soon after slots arrived in the Hoosier State, the joke was that there were more stallions in Indiana than mares.

In such situations, those stallions with access to quality mares in sufficient quantities are usually the ones that move to the top. Many stallions lose out due to lack of opportunity.

Some stallion owners may seek to have their stars burn the candle at both ends: breed and race in the same season. That was the 2015 plan for Father Patrick, the dominant colt of his class in 2013-14. He bred mares early in 2015 and then began his campaign with a smashing win over Bee A Magician, but lung problems derailed his season.

Some owners retire stallions dreaming of riches only to realize that their stallion might be more profitable on the track. For example, Archangel, a standout son of Credit Winner, bred 43 mares in 2013 and now has 30 yearlings. He was put back in training for the 2014 season and dropped his record to 1:50 and added $234,393 to his bankroll.

Both Standardbred and Thoroughbred racing share a pattern: superior horses usually surface as 2-year-olds and then often compete in the high-profile sophomore classics. That is when they makes headlines and gain a following among the public. All too often, however, the colts retire to a lucrative stud career and never race beyond age three. Just as the public is starting to become familiar with the stars, they vanish from sight.

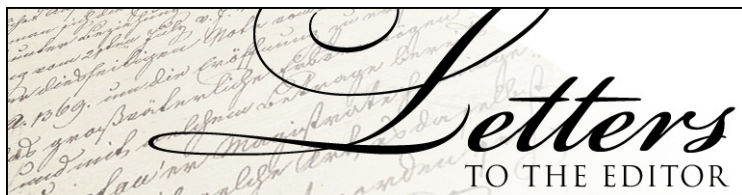

Imagine what would happen in the NBA is LeBron James played two seasons and retired.

Imagine how much Thoroughbred tracks would love to have American Pharoah race in 2016 as a 4-year-old.

Keeping the stars of the sport on the track was the purpose of the policy of Jeff Gural that became anathema to some. Gural knew that harness racing could promote its stars if they stayed on the track instead of going to stud. With races that he controlled, Gural restricted the eligibility of offspring of stallions retiring early.

Some owners and breeders denounced the rule and said that Gural was effectively controlling a top horse's career. Owners focused on their horse's value and their investment. Gural focused on what is best for harness racing as a whole.

Fortunately, the "Gural rule" does not apply to Wiggle It Jiggle It, Pinkman, Wakazashi Hanover, and JL Cruze. With luck, harness racing fans will be able to watch these stars for many years to come.

Kudos to the Mission Brief Team

Sometimes you just gotta take the shot.

other owners of Mission Brief – Our Hrs Cents Stable members Marcia Gingold, Eugene & Scott Kurzrock & Stephen Springer, Mark Weaver and Mike Brussemi, Jerry and Teresa Silva and Mark Weaver for not doing the easy thing, maybe even the sure thing.

Entering Mission Brief in the Hambletonian gave us a fantastic story line, a real contest, fan excitement, and six days of speculation and anticipation. With her in the race, we got serious coverage and something special to talk about.

Thank you for what you gave the sport.

The filly did herself and everyone proud.

Watch out Pinkman...she's got her sights set on you.

BEE A MAGICIAN looks to rebound from her defeat two weeks ago in the Fresh Yankee at the Meadowlands, just the second time she's lost all year. It took a record :25:2 opening quarter on Hambletonian day to sting her just enough that she couldn't hang on late that day but she shouldn't have to work as hard tonight; will control it from the onset and use the post advantage on her new rival. D'ONE was a 14/1 winner in this print upon her North American debut last out and that was some sweep from the Swedish champion; welcome to the US. Driver Kihlstrom may elect to race her once again from behind but she should be even tighter with that Meadowlands start under her belt; tremendous rematch coming. SHAKE IT CERRY closed bravely in the Fresh Yankee and there's no shame in being a tick outkicked by #7 in that race. She hasn't been able to yet replicate that mile four back against JL Cruze but we all know her best puts her squarely in the middle of this; should offer another decent price too. ALLIE LABROOK had to go first over last out in her second start East and didn't disgrace herself for Midwest connections; she can land a share of this with a smooth journey. CLASSIC MARTINE was used hard in that fast opening quarter last out and makes her fourth start for Elliott; seems due for something more.

7 1 Anndrovette	Riverboat King	Bamond/Tetrick
8 1a Venus Delight	Bettor's Delight	Bamond/Bartlett
9 8 Fancy Desire	Real Desire	Renaud/M MacDonald
10 9 Color's A Virgin	Always A Virgin	O'Sullivan/D Miller

After beginning the season by winning just one time in eleven starts, the amazing ANNDROVETTE has now won two of her last three including big time wins in July with the Golden Girls (at 36/1) and then most recently earlier this month in the Lady Liberty. The 8-year-old is clearly back and when she's on her game she outclasses almost any other mare; bound to be showing early speed from the outside for regular pilot Tetrick and looms the one to beat. Entryrate VENUS DELIGHT had some belated pace to offer in the Lady Liberty once free and Bartlett continues to keep the drive on this one; deserves respect in her own right. COLOR'S A VIRGIN makes her fourth start since the switch to Dave Miller driving and that sweep from two back was a real sparkler. The problem here is the post and it would be tough to see her leaving with all the speed to her inside; I'm guessing she'll have too much ground to make up. SANDBETWEENURTOES is one that I've went to the well on throughout this summer but I have to admit she's come flat more often than not; maybe the change in scenery will help. LADY SHADOW beat many of these including ANNDROVETTE in the Roses Are Red back in June. She's only raced one time since but her very best would give her a shot; has won over half of her lifetime starts. PRECOCIOUS BEAUTY doesn't leave Canada too often and now picks up Sears; was best early in her career.

OBRIGADO didn't have the easiest trip when last seen in the Cashman and now returns to the Empire state for New York connections. He's been a bit of a tough horse to figure at times as well as a tough luck one; 5-year-old by the obscure Maine sire Boy Band can beat these at a price. FLANAGAN MEMORY has now scored twice in a row at double digit odds and he's able to retain new pilot Sears for this one too. Both of his last wins came off golden trips but you can't fault him for winning; in sharp form for trainer Rene Dion. MARKET SHARE was hard used in the Cashman but I'm not sold he can beat these anyway based on the year he's having; I'm gladly swing against if the price is short as expected. MAGIC TONIGHT was a disappointment upon his return back to the States last out although I never recalled him being a FFA type trotter even when he was here; would need a complete turnaround to now win. LINDY'S TRU GRIT and MASTER OF LAW might take some action due to the coupled entry from popular connections but both are likely aiming a bit high. MELADY'S MONEY continues to race gamely despite the long campaign; has earned my respect.
