Racing halted in Chicago as Hawthorne bounces checks to horsepeople

by Neil Milbert

ADVENTURES IN ILLINOIS
with NEIL MILBERT

Bounced checks are the latest problem to beset financially beleaguered Hawthorne Race Course.

"For the second time in a matter of weeks the Illinois Harness Horsemen's Association (IHHA) has been made aware that checks issued by Hawthorne Race Course have been returned unpaid by banks," Jeff Davis, president of the collective bargaining agent for owners and trainers, posted on the IHHA website. "This is another embarrassing failure of Hawthorne Race Course.

"To that end we are publicly calling on Hawthorne to provide a letter from their bank stating that returned payments are indeed a glitch in their system and not a lack of funds available in their account. We cannot take Hawthorne's word that this second round of bounced checks is an anomaly. Horsemen's livelihoods depend on this money and we are well beyond the point where we can trust what Hawthorne tells us."

Coinciding with the bounced checks turmoil, the Illinois Racing Board shut down racing and simulcast betting at the track and its off-track betting outlets on Saturday (Jan. 3) and Sunday (Jan. 4).

"At the dates hearings in September they never received a license for 2026," said IHHA executive director Tony Somone. "I'm told it was contingent on them meeting some of their financial responsibilities. Since then they have not met these responsibilities and, as a result, they have not received an organization license for 2026.

"If they are able to rectify this issue when the banks reopen on Monday (Jan. 5) the Racing Board will grant them a license for 2026 and they'll be able to resume simulcasting at the track and OTBs on Monday or Tuesday and we'll be able to resume live racing next weekend."

Tim Carey, president and general manager of the family-owned track, has not replied to a phone message from Harness Racing Update asking for his response.

The first bounced checks episode was in mid-December.

According to Davis, the impact, "was even more concerning because it happened the week before Christmas – a time when families are relying on these funds for basic household needs, bills and holiday expenses.

"Let me be clear: this is not acceptable. These payments are not discretionary. This is how horsemen get paid—it is their paycheck—and any disruption creates real and immediate hardship for horsemen and their families."

The IHHA has requested that Hawthorne reimburse any documented bank fees and penalties incurred as a result of the returned checks, including purse distribution and driver and trainer earnings.

This is the third major financial controversy that has confronted the Chicago metropolitan area's only remaining racetrack in recent years.

Dating back to the 2024 fall/winter harness meeting, because of non-payment of simulcast fees, Churchill Downs, Inc. has blacked out its simulcast signal to Hawthorne, 13 off-track betting locations in the Chicago suburbs and downstate Illinois, self-activated mutuel machines at the track, the Club Hawthorne mobile wagering ap and clubhawthorne.com.

There also are unpaid fees for the 2020 demolition of significant portions of the grandstand and clubhouse for construction of a casino addition made possible by a major 2019 Illinois gaming expansion bill passed by the legislature and signed by Gov. J.B. Pritzger. In 2024, several companies involved in the demolition filed liens, claiming Hawthorne owed as much as $5 million in unpaid bills.

Carey said at the time the creditors will be paid when financing for the casino is finalized.

Originally Carey said it was going to be a $400 million state-of-the-art facility that would open in the spring of 2021, enabling a legislatively-mandated portion of the adjusted gross revenue to begin flowing to the purse accounts of harness and thoroughbred horsemen.

But Hawthorne has been unable to secure financing for the casino, even though Carey has reiterated every subsequent year at the dates hearings that it is on the cusp. Compounding the problem, President Donald Trump's tariffs have increased prices for steel and building materials, escalating the cost of the casino to an estimated $500 million.

At last September's hearings Carey said: "We anticipate that we'll be able to make an announcement sometime in the fourth quarter (of 2025) in terms of where we are with the project."

No announcement was made. Instead, in December the news broke that Hawthorne was bouncing its checks to horsepeople.

On the IHHA website Davis has advised horsepeople:

"To document the scope of this issue and pursue reimbursement of costs, please email both jeffihha@gmail.com and tsomone@harnessillinois.com.

"Indicate name, phone number and role (trainer/driver/owner etc.);

"Type of payment (purse distribution/trainer earnings/driver earnings);

"Check number, amount and day issued (if known);

"A brief description of what happened (returned unpaid, replacement check requested etc.);

"Proof of any bank fees or penalties incurred (screenshot, receipt, bank notice or statement line item)."

FINISH LINES

Following completion of its thoroughbred meeting that ran from March 20-Nov. 3 Hawthorne began its Nov. 7-Feb. 15 harness meeting. Through December, there was racing on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. If the track is able to rectify its problems to the satisfaction of the Illinois Racing Board, starting next weekend it will go to a Saturday and Sunday schedule for the rest of the meeting with a 3 p.m. first post-time.

The IHHA leaders said moving the first post to 1 p.m. in December was a "moderate success" and they are hoping the 3 p.m. post will produce "even better results."

HRU announces its Elite Eight winners

In the fifth annual edition of The HRU Awards, our contributors make their picks for the very best of 2025 in eight categories.

Harness Racing Update is proud to present the fifth edition of The HRU Awards. We asked our contributors to give their picks for the best of 2025 in eight categories. Keep in mind, we purposely left the interpretation for each category up to the contributors. Some chose to think nationally or globally, some chose to think more regionally, focusing on the area they cover or to which they are most familiar. Contributors that felt they could not provide an educated opinion for a question left it blank.

Dave Landry

Beau Jangles received the most votes for Horse of the Year from HRU contributors.

1. HORSE OF THE YEAR

Neil Milbert: Beau Jangles. He did nothing wrong. You can't beat perfection.

Adam Hamilton: Leap To Fame (Bettors Delight—Lettucereason—Art Major). For a third successive year, but in a much closer call this time. The emergence of Kingman (Always B Miki—Gotta Go Dali Queen—Dali) in the last few months and two defeats to Don Hugo showed the champ has more challengers than ever. Against that, he raced 22 times in 2025 for 16 wins, five seconds, and a third and banked $1.8 million.

Jay Wolf: Beau Jangles. I know he didn't race outside of Ontario, but he was the best in his division and the sport.

Thomas Hedlund: Dream Mine (Maharajah). Jörgen Westholm's 4-year-old proved to be outstanding within the Swedish crop. With victories in the $800,000 Swedish Derby and the $480,000 European Derby, it is clear that Dream Mine is one of the most exciting horses in Europe.

Frank Cotolo: Beau Jangles. Bound to be a great sophomore like some of the other freshmen who age with grace.

Gordon Waterstone: Tie between Miki And Minnie and Louprint. Both tough million-dollar-winning 3-year-olds traveled across the continent, both winning six times at six different racetracks.

Melissa Keith: Beau Jangles. Far from "playing it safe" by racing exclusively in Ontario, undefeated Beau Jangles won eliminations and finals for two-thirds of the only Grade 1 stakes for his division, also setting Canadian records for two different sized tracks.

Debbie Little: Louprint. He wasn't perfect (12 10-1-0), but considering emergency surgery in July and fractured ribs in the Crown final, he was pretty close to it. He traveled and raced a tough schedule against Grand Circuit company throughout. Everybody can't say that.

Murray Brown: Beau Jangles.

Dave Briggs: Beau Jangles. He was not only perfect, he was impressive and handily won his division's two biggest races – the Metro and Breeders Crown – against Grand Circuit company. That he didn't race in the U.S. holds no weight with me. It's a borderless industry and the biggest races in his division in 2025 just happened to be in Canada.

2. PERSON(S) THAT MADE THE BIGGEST CONTRIBUTION TO HARNESS RACING IN 2025

Thomas Hedlund: Not just one person, but all the grooms who keep the industry running from the ground up.

Melissa Keith: Since 2025 appears to be the year of the racing influencer (see Griffin Johnson, Big Sport of Turfdom Award), my vote goes to the original racing influencer: The Manager (John Cutrone), who first started dancing and providing winner's circle theatrics for Brian Sears at Yonkers in 2012. An 18-second video of The Manager posing with Matt Kakaley and filly Win With Lynlly on Dec. 17, 2025 has 2,300+ views on X (Twitter), well in excess of official harness racing year-end awards posts.

Adam Hamilton: Kevin Seymour hands down. The leviathan Queensland owner, breeder, sponsor, and benefactor should have a statue built of him. Not only does he own the great Leap To Fame to promote the game in every possible way, but he has been the driving force behind plans to redevelop and protect the future of key harness tracks Albion Park and Globe Derby. More personally, the support and doors he opened for popular Albion Park track photographer Dan Costello when doctors said he would lose a cancer fight has given him a second chance at life.

Neil Milbert: Ron Burke. He hit the Dan Patch Awards trifecta.

Frank Cotolo: Debbie Little. She handles the mass editorial duties at Harness Racing Update which is the last outpost for the sport's journalism.

Dave Briggs: Marvin Katz. The Breeders Crown Charity Challenge he launched years ago continued to be huge in 2025. Plus, he sold a yearling for $1 million at Lexington (Dejeuner) – the second million-dollar baby he's sold in his career – and he made further history in Harrisburg by spending $1 million or more on three horses from his partnership dissolution dispersal with Al Libfeld — mares French Champagne and French Cafe, along with weanling Parisian Cafe, the first standardbred weanling to ever be sold at auction for $1 million. He also launched his Clear Creek at Brittany breeding farm in Kentucky and topped everything off by being announced as an inductee in the 2026 class of the Harness Racing Hall of Fame.

Dave Landry

Ron Burke received the majority of the votes from HRU writers for Trainer of the Year.

3. TRAINER OF THE YEAR

Gordon Waterstone: Ron Burke. Annually posts outstanding numbers, and in 2025 he went astronomical. His wins and earnings are simply incredible.

Frank Cotolo: Marcus Melander. Too often in the shadow of more well-known trainers, Melander sends stock to the track with dire intent and for bettors he often presents overlays.

Thomas Hedlund: Ron Burke. Always Ron Burke.

Adam Hamilton: Luke McCarthy. The older brother to U.S. stars Andy and Todd reminded everybody in 2025 what a wonderful horseman he is. He trained two different horses Kingman and Don Hugo (both pick-ups from premier trainers Emma Stewart and Clayton Tonkin) to beat the great Leap To Fame a combined four times. The way he guided mighty mare Eye Keep Smiling to win 12 wins and a second from 14 starts against her own sex this season has been masterful.

Murray Brown: Ron Burke.

Melissa Keith: Dr. Ian Moore. His best year by purse winnings ($3,794,816 Can.) in his 39th official year as a trainer, led by a horse who may be his best ever. Small stable, big impact from the Canadian Hall of Famer (inducted in 2024).

Jay Wolf: Ron Burke. His stable had a two-month period (September and October) this year that may never be matched.

Dave Briggs: Ron Burke. The numbers are incredible.

4. DRIVER OF THE YEAR

Jay Wolf: Ronnie Wrenn, Jr. He was the regular pilot for two Dan Patch Award winners - Loua Dipa and Louprint, and earned a career best $9 million and recorded a .388 UDRS.

Murray Brown: Jason Bartlett.

Adam Hamilton: Goes to Luke McCarthy again for his deeds at the very highest level with Don Hugo and Kingman. He is unquestionably one of the greatest big race drivers we've ever seen Down Under. Have to mention young gun James Herbertson, who despite almost two months away traveling will win the Australian Drivers' Premiership by a huge margin again. America got a glimpse of him and may well get to see a lot more in years to come.

Melissa Keith: Guy Gagnon. Rideau Carleton's reigning champ reached a new personal best UDRS (.478) in 2025, leading North America. Not just a talented catch driver, Gagnon also reached his 2,000th career training win Oct. 8 with pacer Smokestack.

Frank Cotolo: Jacob Cutting. He began driving among veterans and was always a plus steering even mediocre stock.

Thomas Hedlund: Carl Johan Jepson in Sweden. He has taken his driving to a completely new level. No driver works harder than Aaron Merriman, and that deserves recognition. However, one driver who made a strong impression on me this summer was James MacDonald, when he climbed aboard Conversano in the Hambletonian Oaks and delivered a top-class performance.

Gordon Waterstone: Jason Bartlett. He stepped out of his comfort zone of Yonkers Raceway in 2025 and showed he can race with the best of them. First in earnings and second in wins, and added a pair of Breeders Crowns to his resume.

Dave Briggs: Tie between Jason Bartlett (a most deserving USHWA Driver of the Year) and Dexter Dunn, who drove five (six if you count his part-time work with Ervin Hanover) of the 12 Dan Patch winners announced already.

5. OWNER(S) OF THE YEAR

Adam Hamilton: Kevin Seymour for the reasons above, but in a dead-heat with the amazing, unassuming, and largely behind-the-scenes, Mick Boots. Depending on who you talk to, Boots may own as many as 300 horses across Australia and New Zealand, headed by champion stayer Swayzee. He's a backbone to so many different stables.

Murray Brown: Dave McDuffee. He didn't have a particularly good year, but he constantly stays at it, breeding some of his own, buying yearlings, and taking great joy in watching his horses train.

Jay Wolf: Knox Services. Despite focusing on the Midwest, they were the third leading money winning owner in the country. The Brechler family were the co-owners of a Breeders Crown champ, Sippinonsearoc, and several sire stakes champions (Ohio — Lindy Dragonwater, Seaside Shuffle, and Harrisburg Heist, Pennsylvania — Frantic Hanover, and New York — AI).

Thomas Hedlund: Stall SoFo in Sweden. For the third consecutive year, a horse owned by Stall SoFo won the $600,000 Swedish Kriterium for 3-year-old trotters (Fame And Glory, Bullet The Bluesky, Omega River). Given the relatively small number of horses they own in each crop, this achievement is nothing short of remarkable.

Gordon Waterstone: The entire Burke Brigade, including Burke Racing, Weaver Bruscemi LLC, and partners such as Larry Karr, Phil Collura, and Knox Services. And a lot of their 2025 success came with homebreds, which made their year even sweeter.

Dave Briggs: Burke Brigade et al.

6. RISING STAR (HUMAN)

Melissa Keith: Mathys Lapointe and Jacob Copley. 20-year-old Mathys Lapointe won 11 of 37 drives on the Circuit régional des courses de chevaux du Québec, including four wins and two place finishes from six drives on Aug. 23 at Ayer's Cliff Fair, in only his second year of amateur driving. 17-year-old Jacob Copley (UTRS .436) sent out 19 winners from 71 starters this season at Rideau Carleton, a strong start for the high school student in his first year training.

Adam Hamilton: If 25 is young enough, then it's James Herbertson. If you want even younger then it's Queenslander Angus Garrard. Amazingly, the 22-year-old has driven over 100 winners for the past six years (yes, since he was 17). He almost hit 200 this year in a season where he passed 1,000 career wins and grabbed international coverage for his win in the awesome, inaugural Ladbrokes Ultimate Driver Challenge at Albion Park back in February, beating the likes of Dexter Dunn, Yannick Gingras, and Bjorn Goop.

Murray Brown: John Rallis.

Thomas Hedlund: Among drivers, the apprentice Fredrik Plassen — born in Norway and working in Sweden — who this year ranks among the top 25 drivers in Sweden.

Frank Cotolo: Jacob Cutting. He is still developing his talents as a driver and a trainer even after many others peaked.

7. RACE OF THE YEAR

Murray Brown: Beau Jangles' Metro Pace followed by Ervin Hanover's Breeders Crown.

Gordon Waterstone: Lexus Kody winning the Dayton Trotting Derby at Hollywood Dayton. Driver Yannick Gingras found himself pinned on the inside and shuffled to last at the three-quarters before finding room to maneuver and out closing the field. Horses — especially trotters — aren't supposed to be able to overcome that kind of journey.

Thomas Hedlund: The Prix d'Amérique. Idao de Tillard raced virtually the entire event in the third lane.

Melissa Keith: Camluck Classic. When winning favorite Brue Hanover got airborne, leaping across the finish at The Raceway at Western Fair on May 30, a lengthy inquiry ensued. His Dave Menary stablemate Ervin Hanover was placed first, his first 2025 win, en route to divisional Dan Patch honors.

Jay Wolf: Dayton Trotting Derby. I limited this response to a race that I saw in person. Lexus Kody's remarkable victory despite being shuffled to last early in the race, to rally and showcase his strength and resilience.

Adam Hamilton: Photo-finish and they both came late. Kingman beating Leap To Fame was one of the greatest New Zealand Cups in the 100-plus year history of the iconic race in November was incredible. But I'll go with the Group 1 Blacks A Fake on Dec. 6 when Leap To Fame, The Janitor, and Don Hugo staged a thrilling three-horse battle down the Albion Park straight before Don Hugo won by a whisker with The Janitor a close-up third. They smashed the track record and all three were monstrous.

Dave Briggs: Lexus Kody in the Dayton Trotting Derby.

8. WHAT CONCERNS YOU THE MOST ABOUT THE FUTURE OF THE SPORT OR GIVES YOU THE GREATEST OPTIMISM?

Frank Cotolo: Sports betting is a concern. It looms as a major defiance for the pari-mutuel crowd. It's spontaneous wagering with a roulette consciousness.

Neil Milbert: The demise of Balmoral Park and Maywood Park following their 2015 meetings relegated the Chicago circuit to the verge of irrelevancy. The top horses, trainers and drivers no longer make pilgrimages to North America's third biggest metropolitan area. Making a terrible situation worse, corporate owner Churchill Downs, Inc. shut down Arlington International Race Course — which had a treasure chest of thoroughbred racing tradition and was acclaimed "the world's most beautiful racetrack" — following its 2021 meeting to kill competition for nearby Rivers Casino that it had acquired two years earlier. CDI spurned offers from groups that wanted to perpetuate racing at Arlington and sold it to the Chicago Bears with the stipulation that there be no gambling of any kind on the property, eliminating the possibility of a racino. To lower their property taxes, the Bears tore down the magnificent track. As a consequence, Hawthorne Race Course is the only remaining track in the metropolitan area, forcing the standardbreds and thoroughbreds to time-share, leaving both of life support. Churchill Downs is the biggest name in American racing and its decision to destroy one of the country's most prestigious tracks in the country's third biggest metropolitan area is sending the message that racing is a dying sport.

Jay Wolf: Concern: I would love to see more cooperation with race dates to make sure the historic Grand Circuit events remain important.

Optimism: The next crop of yearlings and the 2-year-olds turning 3.

Murray Brown: Major concern is that nobody goes to the races anymore. I am one of the guilty. We have made it so easy to stay home and watch them, that the incentive to be there has been lost. Going to the track is what made me a fan of the sport.

Adam Hamilton: Keeping the sport relevant is the biggest thing. In a world of rapidly evolving sports, keeping harness racing exciting, entertaining, and slick to new generations is the greatest challenge. Ultimately, that will shape whether we can maintain wagering interest in the sport, which is paramount to prize money Down Under.

The optimism comes from the sheer talent we will see lock horns in 2026. On the open class pacing front, I can't wait to see all the big guns come together — Leap To Fame, Kingman, Don Hugo, Swayzee, The Janitor, Captains Knock, and even the best Kiwi, Republican Party. But it's trotting mare Keayang Zahara that is the single most exciting. With 20 wins (and a second) from just 21 starts, the daughter of Volstead (out of Keayang Yankee, by Muscles Yankee) will have this year to conquer Down Under's biggest races before connections look to a race like the Elitlopp and maybe the U.S. in 2027.

Thomas Hedlund: There is a strong possibility that the Swedish betting flagship V85, which replaced V75, over time, will turn out to be a failure. This would result in lower revenues for a sport that is already bleeding heavily, with declining numbers of owners, breeders, licensed participants, and — most importantly — the number of foals born each year. The situation is not yet as acute in France, but even there the betting audience is beginning to drift away.

In Sweden, hope now rests with the newly appointed CEO of the Swedish Trotting Association, Jörgen Forsberg. His previous role as CEO of Solvalla and his deep roots in the sport are factors that give us reason for optimism.

Gordon Waterstone: Harness racing needs to find new owners. There doesn't seem to be much interest from outside the sport so it needs to find new blood from within, hopefully progeny of current owners will keep the legacy alive.

Melissa Keith: Concern: The idea that losing smaller tracks is irrelevant, or that the sport can withstand losing racetracks at the current rate. When any track dies, so does the surrounding area's interest and participation in the sport as a whole.

Optimism: The 2025 Atlantic Classic Sale was absolutely buzzing, with record prices reflecting the quality yearlings.

Dave Briggs: Concern: The lack of owners and declining number of betting customers as sports betting grows more popular with younger gamblers. Optimism: There has never been more purse money in the game. Plus, reading old trade journals tells me people have been predicting the sport's decline for nearly 100 years. It's still here and more resilient than the doomsayers suggest.

BETWEEN THE LINES

with BRETT STURMAN

An interview with Jason Bartlett on a key new rule change at Yonkers

The 2025 Dan Patch Driver of the Year and Yonkers dash winner talks about a memo which states that effective opening night 2026 (Jan. 19), penalties ranging from warnings to fines to lengthy race day suspensions will be imposed on drivers who set 30-second, second quarters.

by Brett Sturman

USTA
Driver Jason Bartlett.

I've seen the Yonkers Raceway memo floating around that states the expected pace should be nothing slower than 30 seconds for second quarters along with a list of penalties for those that fail to adhere to the rule. As leading driver at the track and someone who wins many of those races on the front end, I'd think the new rule impacts Jason Bartlett as much as anyone. So, I reached out for a conversation.

My own initial reaction is mandating how drivers manage pace in a race isn't a role of the track, but even more so, I'm not sure how it's going to help. The track has already done away with the passing lane in hopes that it would force drivers to pull earlier and that hasn't happened – I think the track just naturally lends itself to lineup-style racing. But readers of this column would be more interested in what Bartlett has to say on the subject.

Jason, what's your take on the new rule?

"I like the rule. For a half-mile track it's very hard to do a lot of work on the outside. Saratoga is a half and Yonkers is a half, and you can drive Saratoga totally differently than you can Yonkers. At Saratoga you can pull at the three-eighths pole and do some work on the outside and live to tell about it. And also at Saratoga, you can tip three-wide down the backside. At Yonkers on the other hand, if you're pulling at the three-eighths pole you better both have a damn good horse and the horse on the front better not be great in order for him to come first over and win or be second. At Yonkers, a lot of us like to pull as late as possible because, you know, you're coming into a faster third quarter and for them to do that on the outside from the five-eighths home, they've still got to be pretty good first over. Whatever the reason for it is, time and time again, you move early at Yonkers and your results are just not great.

I completely agree with those points and – whether it be the track configuration or other things – Yonkers has proven to be a very difficult track to race on the outside through multiple turns. But how will this new rule help against that?

"Because I think a lot of times you know the horses are leaving and they get :27 for the first quarter and then they're able to back it down all the way to the five-eighths pole, and then they're back on the pedal again. With them keeping the race going a little bit, I think that it might bring in the back horses some more, because they're going to have to keep the pace a lot more honest than usual. And for a driver – it's really going to be up to the driver of how much he trusts himself knowing what 30 seconds is in that second quarter, especially with factoring in things like the wind. So, I think you're going to find a lot quicker halves than normal because the guys are going to be just a little bit skeptical of going a :29.4, within a fifth of a second of getting fined or more."

In appreciation of the efforts made toward this initiative, the Stallion Restriction Condition (Gural rule) will be waived for those stallions nominated to this plan so that their foals of 2025 may be nominated for Meadowlands Stakes & Early Closers for the life of the horse including the 2028 Meadowlands Pace.

Participation in the Meadowlands Early Closing program for foals of 2025 will be contingent upon the sire having been nominated by payment of 50% of the cost of one 2024 breeding by February 15, 2026.

If a stallion is NOT nominated by the February 15, 2026 payment, the 2025 foals of that sire will be ineligible to race in Meadowlands Stakes & Early Closers for the life of the horse.

What about the difference in needing that 30 seconds in the second quarter depending on how hard your horse has been used early? Shouldn't there be a difference in how that second quarter gets treated when it comes to making the early lead easily compared to being parked to the quarter in :27 and change?

"But you can't also jam up a field that's behind you because you got stung. Where we're having a problem is saying, 'Okay, you got stung, but yes, but there's still six or seven other guys behind you getting jammed up.' And now we're forced to come at the three-eighths pole, which we know is not a recipe for good results. So, then you're forced to pull but now you're going to be stuck out and the horse on the lead is still going to get a breather because if that horse on the outside comes hard then he's going to get cooked. So, now you're back to getting another breather to the five-eighths pole again."

It's tough. I think the passing lane would also help with this rule a little bit. Because if I'm letting a guy go – say that I want a 2-hole trip and I'm letting a guy go – I still don't want to take him a quick quarter because now I know he has to go at least 30 seconds. So, when am I going to be able to race my horse out of the 2-hole, am I going to have to pull early? We might not make that guy work hard to the quarter because we still want a chance to race with no passing lane. With the passing lane, I think that might push the pace a little bit more but that's a whole other topic. As a driver, letting a guy go, you still have to think. It has to play a part in letting someone go and how much you want to take them, if you're going to take them. Without the passing lane, that still throws a little bit of a 'what if' for the drivers. And for argument's sake, the 2-hole trip is becoming a potentially not very good spot to be in. Now, the 3-hole seems like it might be alright to be in and come first over or something. There's a couple of more aspects than just the 30 seconds that have to come into play here. You mentioned the wind earlier. The rule is being listed as 30 seconds across the board, but what if there are differences in winds from night to night? What about differences in gaits and classes and track conditions – 30 seconds to one group might be much different than 30 seconds to another.

"It's a track rule and not a judge's rule. But I think the big one is going to be the wind. Variation in the wind catches us a lot there. Lately we've been going a lot more 30 second quarters than usual, but it's been really windy and that plays a part. A couple of nights, too, the track guy had the track a little deeper than usual because it was so cold out and he didn't want the track to freeze on us. But I don't think you can go entirely by the variant either because a lot of times even if it's windy the track is still fast. Drivers being able to know the 30 seconds with those conditions will all be part of the strategy, like letting horses go, or if there's two leads what happens then? If a horse gets hung three wide, he's now pot committed so he has to keep rolling. All these things might be able to bring in the back horses more.

> "Saratoga is a half and Yonkers is a half, and you can drive Saratoga totally differently than you can Yonkers. At Saratoga you can pull at the three-eighths pole and do some work on the outside and live to tell about it. And also at Saratoga, you can tip three-wide down the backside. At Yonkers on the other hand, if you're pulling at the three-eighths pole you better both have a damn good horse and the horse on the front better not be great in order for him to come first over and win or be second."
> ~ Jason Bartlett

"Overall, I do think something needs to happen, and it might not be perfect but at least it's a start. I think it's a good rule because I know a lot of us drivers — and we all do it – we all come with the same conclusion that something does need to happen. Because we all abuse the 30 seconds at times and so I think as a whole, as a driver group, we're all on board that something needs to happen. Is it perfect? Probably not. It will probably take some tinkering, maybe with the conditions and things. I'm really on board with it. I think it could make the racing a little bit better. We need to bring in the back horses more somehow, and this is maybe the start of something that could help do that."

Wally Hennessey is the definition of the William Haughton Good Guy Award

by John Berry

About 1:49.3 after the announcement of Wally Hennessey as the winner of the William R. Haughton Good Guy Award, HRU's Debbie Little called and asked, "Since you know Wally as well was anybody, could I impose on you to write a column about it?"

"Is there a cow in Texas?" I responded.

This is a pinnacle honor for me since my first writing appeared in print on Feb. 4, 1961.

But then I got to really thinking about it.

Hennessey has so many friends in this industry — literally hundreds and hundreds and more hundreds — that this honor should be bestowed on them, as well.

So, without further ado, here's a sampling from around North America of tributes to the William R. Haughton Good Guy Award winner for 2025, Walter James Hennessey.

• Lee Drake, Red Shores Racing, Charlottetown, PEI: "First, so happy to be included in this tribute to a 'great guy,' Wally Hennessey. We do go back a long ways as our dads raced against each other here in the Maritimes. The great thing about Wally — we all know about his talent in winning 12,000 races — is that he respects the entire industry and has a very deep respect for the very people that keep racing alive, meaning owners, other horsemen and women, and, as important, the fans.

"I think you'd have to look far and wide to find a horseman that has achieved the same respect as Wally Hennessey. He is the ultimate ambassador for our sport and I am honored to have him as a friend."

• John Campbell, horseman extraordinaire and, currently president, and chief executive officer of the Hambletonian Society: "Wally has been a 'good guy' for many, many years and I am happy that they finally got around to giving him an award. We go back about 40 years and always had a connection as he started on a small track in Prince Edward Island and I at a small track in Ontario, so our education and learning process started out in a very similar manner.

"From the first day we met, I have had the utmost respect for him as a driver and a person and Wally has conducted himself in an exemplary manner here in North America and, of course, in Europe with Moni Maker.

"I am constantly amazed by his ability to compete and win at this stage of his career. At Saratoga, they have a very talented and youthful driving colony and he keeps putting up impressive numbers year after year.

"I'll close with this, anybody that knows or meets Wally Hennessey, and they spend more than two minutes with him, will be guaranteed to leave with a smile on their face."

• Paul O'Neil, Saratoga Springs, NY: "It's difficult to pick out specifics of how Wally fits the Good Guy Award but, for the past 15 years, his integrity, care of our horses, safety and their performance consistently over the years make him, unquestionably, a good guy and sets him in a class by himself.

"That's the business side of it. The most profitable part of the business has been the friendship that has evolved because of the business, and you can't put a price on that. We started out with him training a horse he wanted to buy from us all those many years ago and it led to this path — this track, you might say — of a lifetime friendship, which has nothing to do with business, but everything due to him being the great individual he is.

"By the way, Wally, trainer Jaymes McAssey is alongside me and wants to chime in here."

• Jaymes McAssey, Ft. Edward, NY: "Hey, Wally, they must have had a shortage of good guys this year. You know, just kidding, Wally. There are no sufficient words to describe what you have done for me and harness racing."

• Mark Beckwith, Wilton, NY: "We all know that Wally is an icon in this business, but to me, he is equally iconic as a father with one instance being when daughter Kristi became extremely ill and Wally turned over every rock to assure she got the best treatment. That proved to me that greatness on the racetrack, sometimes, doesn't necessarily spill over from there, but in Wally's case, that solidified his greatness in stone."

• Mike Murphy, Lexington, KY: "I've known friend Wally for many years, and, of course, we all know he's a great horseman, but beyond that, he has human qualities that are, literally, heroic in nature.

"In 2018, I was in very bad shape with my kidneys failing, and, of course, J.W. Fox, my wife's son, proved to be a match and he saved my life by donating a kidney to me. But Wally took all my horses behind the gate and won three-in-a-row with Four Socks to save my stable.

"On a lighter note, the last year we raced at Pompano, we were packing to leave the next morning and we had to get our things loaded. Wally drove up with a case of beer for us, and by the time we were going to start to load, we were the ones loaded and we were delayed by a day in getting off the Pompano grounds. Another time, he told us to stop by him are for a sip or two. We did and Wally gave Barbara a Stanley Dancer Stable jacket and a winter jogging suit, and I got a beautiful Wally Hennessey shirt.

"Wally values friendships and we sure do value his. Friendships like Wally's are rare in this world and he knows how to make anyone feel special."

• Bill Griffin, Ellabell, GA: "In these eyes, Wally is one of the most upstanding individuals I have ever known. Our friendship goes back many decades and his honesty probably cost him an untold amount of wealth because he would always be honest with owners and would not lead them on if he didn't think a horse had the potential to become a viable campaigner.

"He just wouldn't want to take their money if a horse wasn't responding to learning its lessons and I can testify that I was witness to this honesty on several occasions. He's more than a good guy, he's a great guy and a great horseman and friend."

• Dave Briggs, editor, Harness Racing Update: "The first time I met Wally was during the Moni Maker years, which is such a vivid memory since I loved that mare. Wally made me love her even more thanks to his grand Prince Edward Island personality. I had the great fortune to sit near him when Moni Maker won the Prix d'Amérique — he didn't drive that day due to the race's notoriously difficult turn-and-go start. It gave us all 'goosebumps' to hear the French people chanting her name as she opened up in the stretch on her way to victory.

"The first time I went to Goshen was the year Wally was inducted into the Hall of Fame and, that, too, stands out as a memorable moment. He's a great driver, great Canadian, and great ambassador for harness racing — the true definition of a 'Good Guy' to garner this award."

To exemplify his qualifications for this award further, Hennessey has been seen in this light for many years with two examples being the late Jim McDonald, who passed away in March, 2025 and the iconic Bill Galvin, who died in 2020.

Each had their "say" about Wally Hennessey with the following remarks:

• Jim McDonald in an interview in March 2019: "Wally Hennessey means so much to me — and a thousand more like me — as a horseman that has such a keen insight about horses, and, as importantly, their owners. I've been asked why I like to use Wally on my horses and my honest answer is, 'he can't beat me with someone else's if he's on mine.'

"As a person, he has a keen eye on every detail and I have seen him look at a catch drive and notice a hobble being an inch or so from where it was the week before. As a human being, there is no better than Wally, honest with integrity that cannot be surpassed. He's the greatest asset a stable can ever have."

• Bill Galvin, the iconic Canadian Hall of Fame horseman, historian, poet, author, publicist, official, and humanitarian: "Wally Hennessey and I go back through the ages when ice racing attracted crowds of 40,000 or more over the frozen ponds throughout our land and Wally showed his patriotism to our sport interacting with fans and horsemen, alike.

"It's one thing to recognize greatness on the track but quite another to be able to get recognized for his efforts off-track to send that energizing feeling to the many thousands of fans with whom he has shaken hands, given autographs, and told stories about harness racing over the years. If there is anybody deserving of a Good Guy Award, it's Wally and I know, in my heart, that day will come."

Author's note: I consider myself a "nobody" in this business, just someone who loves this sport to the nth degree and fears for its future — not tomorrow or the next day, but decades from now long after I am gone.

To me, the fact that I, as a "nobody," can be friends with a Wally Hennessey means more to me than any word in a dictionary or thesaurus.

We've have been friends for I don't know how many years, but when a Wally Hennessey calls this "nobody" from a track or a farm to my hospital bed to check on my kidney failure, or calls from 1,420 miles away to reserve a date for lunch a week away, well that is some kind of friend, some kind of great guy.

We have enjoyed wings together in laughter and cried on each other's shoulder in my office as Pompano Park was gasping for its final breaths.

Friendship covers the good, the bad, the happy and the sad and I have relished every moment along the track of life.

Wally, I hope the feeling is "pari-mutuel."

Standout numbers from 2025

by Bob Heyden

It's a new year, so let's get right to it, and look at some numbers from 2025 going into 2026.

TIM TETRICK

Eight of the top 12 money seasons for a driver belong to Tim Tetrick. They are numbers one, two, three, eight, nine, 10, 11, and 12 all time. The top trio individually are $19,734,781 (2008), $18,531,756 (2012), and $18,350,047 (2007). Tetrick starts 2026 within $13 million of $300 million, at $288,117,827.

With Brett Beckwith (tied for fourth in 2025 at 593 victories) turning 23 in 2026, let's take a look at Tetrick's ascent the four years he turned 23, 24, 25, and 26: in 2004, 300 wins for 2,227 starts (13.5 per cent); in 2005, 563 for 3,528 (16 per cent); in 2006, 677 for 3,371 (20.1 per cent); and in 2007, 1,189 for 4,728 (25.1 per cent).

DAVE MILLER

Dave Miller starts the year $726G from the all-time record beginning Jan. 1 at $299,169,308.

RON BURKE

Ron Burke had 5,555 starts in 2025. The next five trainers combined for 5,197. Burke starts 2026 with all-time best numbers in starts (77,1010), wins (16,481), and earnings ($377,470,108).

YANNICK GINGRAS

Yannick Gingras starts the new year with a nice round number $260,005,884, fourth on the all-time list.

MATT KAKALEY

Matt Kakaley is the leading driver for any driver whose first drive came in the 21st century. He currently stands at 48,466 lifetime starts with 7,246 wins and $123,732,317 in money. Scott Zeron is next.

SCOTT ZERON

Speaking of Scott Zeron, is it too early for "Hall" chat? He'll be 37 in May, has won three Hambletonians before turning 35, with nine Triple Crown race victories.

JASON BARTLETT

Jason Bartlett is now the fifth driver in the $15 million club, joining Tim Tetrick (whose done it eight times) Brian Sears (twice), Yannick Gingras (twice), and Dexter Dunn (twice). The 2025 Driver of the Year comes off his best season leading in both $ and UDRS, but his most amazing stat is this, from 2022-25 he was second or third in dash wins each season. But, check out his nearly impossible-to-believe jump in winning percentage: 24.9 per cent in 2022, 24.1 per cent in 2023, 23 per cent in 2024, and 31.2 per cent in 2025, that's a rise of 8.2 per cent in one year.

CHRIS RYDER

If Miki And Minnie is voted Horse of the Year, Chris Ryder would be just the third trainer to win HOY back-to-back with different horses: Bob McIntosh did it first in 1992-93 with Artsplace and Staying Together, followed five years later by Jimmy Takter with Malabar Man in 1997 and then Moni Maker in 1998-99. Ryder will have a two-headed monster in 2026 in Miki And Minnie and defending HOY Twin B Joe Fresh. Or will he?

Ryder said, "Minnie will face the girls and Twin B Joe Fresh the boys. I'm giving her a chance against males. At least that's the plan to start. They won't be racing against each other, at least not right away."

WARRAWEE MICHELLE

She just pulled a "Dream Of Joy act two." Warrawee Michelle was voted Trotting Mare of the Year despite just three victories, 11 3-4-2. Her up-in-the-last-stride Breeders Crown victory was clearly the difference. In 1999, 2YOFT Dream Of Joy also was a three-time winner, 10 3-2-2, but the right three, the Merrie Annabelle, Breeders Crown, and Goldsmith Maid.

BEAU JANGLES

Beau Jangles was No. 3 in 2025 in earnings as a freshman with $1,227,326. Maryland led as a freshman in 2024 among all earners with $1,227,695. In 2023, T C I No. 3 with $1,238,870, and Karl was No. 5 with $1,041,339.

TALES FROM THE CURMUDGEON
with MURRAY BROWN

A false mustache got Jeffrey Bell into Roosevelt Raceway

by Murray Brown

There are not too many subjects about whom I have written more than one column. The only two that come to mind are Sam Bowie and Myron Bell. I've written two columns on Bell, but I've yet to do the first one on his younger brother Jeffrey, who has been involved in the sport for almost as long as Myron. I believe it's time for me to remedy this exclusion.

Jeffrey had just gone to press with his directory of the harness horses in training at Sunshine Meadows when I reached out to him.

It's been a few years since you published the directory of horses in training at Sunshine Meadows. Why the absence and more importantly how come, the return of a well-used asset to those who are stabled here and to the horsepeople who come out to watch the horses? Of most interest is the 2-year-old class going through their lessons on their way to becoming racehorses.

"The absence of the directory was due to a combination of factors including serious issues encountered by me and the declining horse population here at Sunshine Meadows. It was most felt when Tony Alagna switched venues and moved his training operation from here to New Jersey. That in itself resulted in a loss of around a hundred head from the directory. In the last couple of seasons there has been somewhat of a renaissance of sorts. The Burke operation moved in last year. This year they've added to their numbers. Linda Toscano set up camp. Hunter Oakes and Chuck Connor are here now. Peter and Melanie Wrenn are back, as is Paul Kelley. Most of the old regulars including the Antonaccis, Fred Grant, Joe Pavia, Travis Alexander, and Gino Toscani continue to train here. I had also been asked by numerous horsemen to bring the book back. I felt the need for the directory was there and I acted upon it.

> "There was a problem with going to Roosevelt though, a big one. I was 14. In order to get into Roosevelt, you had to be 18. We solved the dilemma by my pasting a false mustache on my upper lip. I doubt that it fooled anyone, but it got the job done."
> ~ Jeffrey Bell

"The one area it lacks is in numbers for identification of the horses while they are out on the track. If you were to ask why, the answer is that the horsemen just didn't want them. They felt that they were willing to cooperate, but that cooperation seemingly ended with placing saddle pads on their horses. The general feeling was that it was an extra unnecessary job for their grooms. The feedback I received, said that they would be willing to answer any question on who their horses were, but that saddle pads were just one unneeded extra piece of equipment. I didn't necessarily agree, but the horses are theirs and they are the ones in charge."

You told me a rather humorous story of the first time you went to the races at Roosevelt Raceway at the age of 14. That was 64 years ago.

"I was 14. My older brother Myron had told me about this great place he had discovered called Roosevelt Raceway. It was a fun place where you could bet on horses. I enjoyed gambling then as I still do now. Many, many years later, I still bet on horses, but no longer professionally. There was a problem with going to Roosevelt though, a big one. I was 14. In order to get into Roosevelt, you had to be 18. We solved the dilemma by my pasting a false mustache on my upper lip. I doubt that it fooled anyone, but it got the job done.

"One memory from that first night remains with me. There was a horse named Gamecock driven by John Simpson that was a heavy favorite. I bet on him. He won. I was hooked. I became a regular at Roosevelt. When they moved to Yonkers, I did the same. That was the beginning of my becoming a harness racing junkie."

> "I own pieces of three babies in training with Herb Holland and Joe Bongiorno. Needless to say, I'm still chasing the dream. I want them all to do well, but I feel especially positive with those with Joe. He's a throwback to the days when I first began in the game, when drivers still trained and trainers still drove their own horses."
> ~ Jeffrey Bell

You transitioned from being a gambler to also being involved in the ownership of harness horses.

"I never stopped betting on the horses. I still do so today, but today more for recreation than as a means to earning a living. I thought it would be fun to own them and bet on my own horses. I began with overnight horses and within a short period of time I discovered stakes racing and the dream of developing yearlings into stakes horses. I had become interested in breeding. Myron and I thought it would be fun to buy a yearling to hopefully race in the stakes. There was a problem in that the size of our bankroll was limited. We wanted a New York eligible, but we felt we couldn't afford a Most Happy Fella who was even then the King of New York.

"So, in the fall of 1976, we went to the Old Glory Sale at Yonkers and bought a Fulla Napoleon colt named Kindergarten for $15,500. He wasn't a champion, but he was better than just decent. He ended up earning somewhere just shy of $150,000, which was pretty good for two kids who had to scrounge up the money to buy and pay the training bills on him."

Since then, you have owned many horses. Do you have a favorite?

"In 1985, I went to the Harrisburg Sale with my trainer Doug Miller. We bought a Tyler B filly named Jolibea Hanover for $30,000. I didn't quite have the $30,000 at the time, but I would have it within a few weeks. A guy by the name of Murray Brown extended me the credit for 30 days. She turned out to be pretty good. She took a record of 1:55 at The Red Mile as a 2-year-old. That was pretty darn fast for a 2-year-old in 1986. At 3, she gave me the thrill of a lifetime in winning the Lady Maud at my home track at Roosevelt Raceway. She ended up earning over $200,000."

It's been going on half a century since Jolibea Hanover. Since then, you've owned many horses. Some have been good, others not so good. What are your horse holdings like these days?

"I own pieces of three babies in training with Herb Holland and Joe Bongiorno. Needless to say, I'm still chasing the dream. I want them all to do well, but I feel especially positive with those with Joe. He's a throwback to the days when I first began in the game, when drivers still trained and trainers still drove their own horses."

MEADOWLANDS MATTERS

with DEBBIE LITTLE

Horsepeople talk 2025, and hopes for 2026

Six Meadowlands regulars talk about the year that was and the year that may be.

by Debbie Little

To celebrate the New Year, I've asked some Meadowlands horsepeople the same three questions.

1. What is your best memory of the year: a) on the track, and b) off the track?

2. Have you ever made New Year's resolutions and did you keep them?

3. Do you have something you'd like to accomplish in 2026?

Dave Landry
Jason Bartlett.

JASON BARTLETT

1a. "Winning my first two Breeders Crowns and Driver of the Year."

1b. "Watching my children work hard and achieve their goals. My oldest, Kobe, graduated from welding school and landed a great job at the Local 11 Ironworkers Union. My youngest, Karter, worked all off season to make varsity basketball as a freshman."

2. "No, I'm not big on New Year's resolutions."

3. "Staying healthy, which would give me the opportunity to repeat what I've accomplished in 2025."

Lisa Photo
Brett Beckwith in the winner's circle after recording his 2,000th career win.

BRETT BECKWITH

1a. "Winning a Massachusetts sire [stakes race] for Debbie Daguet."

1b. "Going to New Zealand. I met lifelong friends and that's what counts."

2. "I make them every year. I think it's important to set different types of goals, both short and long term."

3. "As soon as I hit my 2,000th win this weekend [Dec. 27] that would accomplish everything for the year. That one means a lot because I'd be the youngest ever and the previous people to hold that went on to have great careers."

BILL POLLOCK

1a. "Yo Tillie all year, but mostly the Breeders Crown. Bucky's [Abuckabett Hanover] retirement would be second."

1b. "Off the track, it's the meetings we have with our team and my son [Billy]. We talk horses for hours and seeing how Billy knows the business and has plenty to add to the conversation; he has a tremendous memory of which horse won here or there and who drives other horses and we've bought some aged horses that he's recommended."

2. "I've never set any resolutions, but as a team we're always looking to improve our barn."

3. "We've had two Dan Patch horses and a Breeders Crown in three years; we're hoping to build on that, hopefully, with many more of each; at least that's the plan."

RICO ROBINSON

1a. "My best memory on the track is becoming trainer for Tom Pollack."

1b. "My best memory off the track is marrying my wife, Treveynne Gussom Robinson, on March 9, 2025."

2. "My New Year's resolution was to be a better person, and yes, I kept it."

3. "In 2026, I would like to be one of the Top 10 trainers in the country."

Courtesy Rico Robinson

Rico Robinson and his wife Treveynne Gussom Robinson.

STEVE STEWART

1a. "Apex winning the NJ Sires Stakes final the next race after Maryland disappointingly finished third in the Hambletonian."

1b. "Selling $12 million [worth] of yearlings at the Lexington Sale."

2. "No resolutions, knowing that I would probably fail."

3. "My broken shoulder to be fixed."

JEFF SNYDER

1a. "Super Chapter getting the 3-Year-Old [Male] Trotter of the Year Award."

1b. "Seeing my grandchildren doing well in school and extracurricular activities."

2. "I never make firm New Year's resolutions; just try to be the best all-around person I can be."

3. "I hope to win as many big races as possible in 2026."

EUROPEAN REPORT

Nob Hill gallops, Nuevo Cash capitalizes at Vincennes

by Thomas Hedlund

Heavy favorite and previously-unbeaten Nob Hill made an early exit after breaking stride in the first turn of Saturday's (Jan. 3) $125,000 Prix Maurice de Gheest for 3-year-old colts at Vincennes, leaving Nuevo Cash to cruise home an unchallenged winner for Théo Duvaldestin.

Down the stretch, Duvaldestin was able to take a hold behind Nuevo Cash (Ready Cash–Enamorada), as the pacesetter Nelson Emge had no answer over the final 150 meters.

The winning mile rate was a stakes-record-tying 1:57.2 for the 2,175-meter distance.

Nelson Emge (Hohneck) was game in defeat, finishing second after carving out demanding fractions. He covered the opening 800 meters in :54 and reached the three-quarter-mile marker in 1:24.1.

On the far backstretch — about 900 meters from home — Nuage de Beaucamps vacated the third spot, giving Nuevo Cash cover in his wake. When Nuage de Beaucamps tired and dropped to the rail entering the final turn, Nuevo Cash was able to slide down into the pocket. Duvaldestin tipped his colt off the cones with 250 meters remaining, and Nuevo Cash exploded past the leader with ease.

The victory marked the second win from seven starts for Nuevo Cash. He began his career with a win in the $14,000 Prix de Ménil-Erreux on the grass at Alençon and later recorded runner-up finishes in both the $49,000 Prix des Dahlias and the semi-classic $125,000 Prix Emmanuel Margouty, the latter behind Nob Hill.

JUSHUA TREE GETS THE JOB DONE IN PRIX DE BOURGOGNE

Favorite Jushua Tree and Jean-Michel Bazire landed a victory in Sunday's (Dec. 28) $125,000 Prix de Bourgogne at Vincennes, but it was far from a statement performance and didn't reveal much about the horse's absolute form.

Gerard Forni

Nuevo Cash (Théo Duvaldestin) winning the $125,000 Prix Maurice de Gheest on Saturday at Vincennes.

Gerard Forni

Jushua Tree (3, Jean-Michel Bazire) winning the $125,000 Prix de Bourgogne on Dec. 28 at Vincennes.

Bazire sat patiently throughout in second-over with Jushua Tree (Bold Eagle—Ma Sissi James) and didn't collar the leader Hokkaido Jiel until inside the final 100 meters, eventually holding Go On Boy at bay by about a length.

The winning mile rate was 1:54.4 for the 2,100 meters.

"Good start, good on the flat, good in the climb, and a good finish," said Bazire after the race. "I don't know if he's fully at 100 per cent yet because I didn't really ask him for everything. He did his job today and showed a bit of muscle when it mattered. I'm satisfied."

Trained by Nicolas Bazire, Jushua Tree had already secured his spot in the 2026 Prix d'Amérique thanks to his runner-up finish in the Prix de Bretagne. Earlier this winter, the 6-year-old stallion also captured the $100,000 Prix des Cévennes. Last winter, Jushua Tree opened the meeting with victories in the semi-classics, the Prix Marcel Laurent and Prix Doynel de Saint-Quentin, before an injury cut his campaign short. His résumé also includes wins in the $165,000 Prix d'Europe, Group 1 triumphs in the $330,000 Prix Bold Eagle and $250,000 Critérium Continental, as well as the semi-classic Prix Jockey.

One of the most interesting performances in the race came from Go On Boy, who tracked Jushua Tree the entire way and finished strongly in second.

Third went to Inmarosa (Amiral Sacha) after finding room late along the inside from the pocket. Hokkaido Jiel (Brillantissime) finished fourth after taking over the lead with 1,100 meters to go and holding on respectably.

QUALIFIED FOR THE 2026 PRIX D'AMÉRIQUE

From Prix de Bretagne:

Josh Power, Jushua Tree, Borups Victory, J'Aime le Foot

From Prix du Bourbonnais:

Inmarosa, Keep Going, Izoard Vedaquais, Harmony du Rabutin

From Prix Tenor de Baune:

Epic Kronos

From Critérium Continental:

THE VIEW FROM WOODBINE MOHAWK PARK

with MELISSA KEITH

Garnet Barnsdale looks back on first year at helm of Horseplayers' Journal

by Melissa Keith

Around this time last year, well-known public handicapper Garnet Barnsdale became the newest author of Woodbine Mohawk Park's Horseplayers' Journal. His detailed analysis and selections for every race have appeared in the program since Robert Reid, Jr. stepped back from the position Jan. 24, 2025 to train as a racing official.

Despite a string of recent weather-related cancellations at the Campbellville, ON showplace, Barnsdale was in an optimistic frame of mind when asked about his first year writing Horseplayers' Journal.

"I'm going to be completely honest here, but I'm going to first mention that this is a dream job for me being a lifelong racing fan, handicapper, racing journalist, and bettor," he said. "To first work for the Daily Racing Form, then transition to the Horseplayers' Journal published right in the track program is nothing short of a dream for me."

Barnsdale quickly added that it's a dream that takes considerable commitment.

"Initially, I found the transition tough because of the nature of the work," he said. "For each race in the Journal, you have to write to fill that half-page in the program as best as possible, so that took some getting used to."

Handicapping at night, after a day at his full-time non-racing job, proved "a little tiring."

"So, I developed a system where I do part of it at night and the rest early in the morning when I am more fresh and alert," Barnsdale said. "I never want to do this job half-assed, so I will work at night until I'm tired, turn in early, and wake up early to finish it off.

"Now, with the current schedule… and the Friday draw being done on Monday, I have the chance to jump ahead, and I have been taking advantage of that opportunity. All in all, I've really enjoyed my first year doing the Journal."

> "I take this work very seriously, working for the best harness track in the world, and I'm trying my best to produce content that I can be proud of. Every person that holds a copy of the night's program sees it, and hopefully uses it to some benefit. That's never lost on me."
> ~ Garnet Barnsdale

WMP race dates for January through March 2026 were approved by the Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario (AGCO) and released Dec. 23. The track will race four nights a week (Friday-Monday), Jan. 2 through March 28 inclusive. Dates for April-December 2026 are pending as of Dec. 31.

Bettors can reliably look to Barnsdale's notes for deep dives into finding horses who break from the 2025 trend of 46.5 per cent winning favorites at Mohawk.

"I tend to take shots against favorites frequently, and post time favorites have been clicking at close to 47 per cent this year at Mohawk Park, so that makes it a bit tough," he told HRU. "I did give out several 'lone wolf' winners [this meet] that no other public handicapper picked, so I'm happy about that."

Approaching each race from a wagering perspective means finding ways to incorporate the strong percentage of winning favorites into profitable tickets. Barnsdale strongly recommended one approach.

"The absolute best bet at this track is the guaranteed $75,000 early Pick 5 because of the math," he said. "It's the one bet every night where you get 15 per cent takeout."

The shift from handicapping the same track for DRF Harness consists of tailoring his insights for a specific space in the on-track WMP program.

"I am in effect telling a small story about each horse, mindful there is a certain word count that I want for each race," Barnsdale said. "The DRF version was on the internet, so there were no space requirements or limits. It was written more in tip sheet style."

He is his own editor, admittedly cautious about the possibility of typos.

"I have to be vigilant in the product I send," he said. "Of course, there have been some small mistakes made along the way. I learned to not use the word 'shot' and instead use 'chance,' because if you misspell 'shot,' it's usually inadvertently replacing the 'o' with the 'i' which is right next door. Obviously, that's not good."

Barnsdale's discerning eye also helped identify Beau Jangles (p, 2, 1:48.3s: $1,227,326) as an emerging star, before the divisional frontrunner even made his first career start at Mohawk July 5.

"I was on Beau Jangles very early… a few seconds after his initial qualifier [June 13 at Mohawk], in fact, when I tweeted out that he could be anything after watching him close like a jet airplane with trainer Doc Moore in the bike," he said. "I texted Peter Gross, host and producer of the Down The Stretch podcast, on July 5th that Beau would be the next great racehorse in harness racing. So far, there is nothing I have seen to make me come down from that opinion. I'm excited to see what he will be as a sophomore."

The 61-year-old handicapper said it's a point of pride to do his own research, rather than sourcing from horsepeople or other racing analysts.

"For better or worse, I rely on very little outside information," Barnsdale said. "I am looking at the same thing others are, and I've been doing it for close to 50 years. I trust my own eyes.

"I can remember a race where I recommended a debutant off a qualifier and she won at a good price, and one of the local handicappers said he didn't think the qualifier was any good. Now, I'm not suggesting I will always be right… I'm just providing an example of why I rely on my own eyes and notes. It's a pari-mutuel game where differing opinions is what makes the game tick."

The importance of post position is a constant for the Horseplayers' Journal scribe.

"Post position changes can be huge," he said. "I mean, consider that 40 per cent of all races are won from posts 5 and 6, and another 20 per cent won by posts 4 and 7. The middle of the gate is just better, and in any given race, you get two or three leavers from those four posts.

"Early position is critical when you consider that 70 per cent of all races are won by horses positioned in the top three at the half. Even what seems to be a slight change can be big: post 9 to post 7 for instance. Post 9 yields only 5 per cent winners, whereas the 7-hole wins at a 7 per cent higher clip."

> "Let's talk drivers for a minute. I am going to single out two in particular that caught the eye this year, the first year where each got a lot more Mohawk Park drives than in the past. Travis Henry and Daryl Thiessen get a lot out of their stock and can make speed, and both have clicked with a few big longshots. Keep an eye on them in 2026."
> ~ Garnet Barnsdale

Making the most of the draw often comes down to driver strategy, another variable considered by Barnsdale.

"Let's talk drivers for a minute," he said. "I am going to single out two in particular that caught the eye this year, the first year where each got a lot more Mohawk Park drives than in the past. Travis Henry and Daryl Thiessen get a lot out of their stock and can make speed, and both have clicked with a few big longshots. Keep an eye on them in 2026."

Bettors chasing prices must face the ongoing dominance of Mohawk's top three drivers of 2025: James MacDonald (350 wins), Louis-Philippe Roy (268), and Doug McNair (241). Barnsdale noted that "the three of them win more than half of the races at the track."

"Then we have Bob McClure [177 wins]," Barnsdale said. "What an absolutely flawless job he did driving Beau Jangles, using him as little as possible in the [Ontario Sires Stakes] Gold races, so he was loaded with pace for the Metro and Breeders Crown. Bob was perfect. You can't argue with that!"

Barnsdale said handicapping Mohawk means staying vigilant about stakes contenders coming in from other jurisdictions.

"Sure, it's a bit tougher because I don't always have time to watch all the races at the other tracks that the Grand Circuit types travel around to… it's a bit more work because I need to find those replays and take a look at them. A program can only tell you so much. For example, a horse can take the lead past the quarter then get overtaken before the half and you won't see it in the program. All you will see is the horse racing second at both calls. It's important to know these types of moves."

Barnsdale's love of the game has not been diminished by the focus demanded of him. He said that his favorite race of the year was not determined by a big hit, but by two colts who finished heads apart on June 14.

"Oh, it has to be the North America Cup, right?" he said. "What a phenomenally exciting race, with brilliant Louprint needing to set a 1:47.1 Canadian record to edge a dead-game longshot, Madden Oaks. That's it, and it's great that it came in Mohawk Park's signature race."

Although some public handicappers do not wager, Barnsdale sees his craft differently.

"I aim to get more aggressive as a bettor in 2026," he said. "I have gotten almost too selective lately and sat on my hands and missed some nice scores as a result.

"I take this work very seriously, working for the best harness track in the world, and I'm trying my best to produce content that I can be proud of. Every person that holds a copy of the night's program sees it, and hopefully uses it to some benefit. That's never lost on me."

GRASSROOTS PERSPECTIVE

with CHRIS LOMON

Knowledge of horses landed Katie King in her field of dreams

by Chris Lomon

Katie King had far different aspirations for her full-time career, but a familiarity with horses would lead to an unexpected, but treasured, field of dreams.

The original game plan she had meticulously designed for herself in the working world had nothing to do with standardbred racehorses or being part of their orbit.

Instead, King, born and raised in Galway, a town located in Saratoga County, NY, was focused on pursuing a role in law enforcement.

"I was fresh out of college and had my bachelor's degree," King said. "I went to school to study Criminal Justice and then looked around for jobs related to that field. I wanted to be a police officer, but that didn't pan out as I hoped."

And that is when an unanticipated Plan B came into play.

"I ended up finding work in standardbred racing through a teacher whose daughter was in the industry," King said.

King was instantly at ease around the horses.

"I have always loved horses, so it didn't take me very long to fall in love with the racehorses," she said. "I had been around horses my whole life but had never done anything with standardbred racing. My mom had a retired standardbred as a trail horse."

A love of the animal and eagerness to embrace her role would lead to more opportunities inside and outside of the barn.

King never once flinched at the long hours spent in the stalls and on the road.

"I started off doing stalls and then I eventually learned how to harness," she said. "I have my own horses, so I knew how to drive a truck and trailer. I would paddock at Saratoga and then ship to other tracks – Meadowlands, Plainridge, Vernon, Batavia. That was interesting because each track is so different."

Now in the barn of trainer Amanda Kelley, King's desire to add new skills to her repertoire grew every time she set foot in the barn.

One task was particularly enjoyable.

"I started jogging and training a couple horses over time," she said. "Training sessions can be a little stressful. I give the drivers a lot of credit – that's not easy. But I like jogging horses."

Especially, she noted, at a certain time of the year.

"The property where Amanda's horses call home has a grass field, along with a jog track," King said. "In the summer, when it's nice out, you can jog in the fields. It's also kind of cool, especially in the fall when the leaves are changing colors. It's really beautiful."

Serenity is also found in the horses under her care, past and present.

Quadratic Bluechip is one who made a lasting impression on King.

A son of Muscle Hill out of the Revenue S mare Reven Crown, the bay gelding with 24 career wins, 56 top-three finishes, and over $225,000 in purse earnings from 111 starts, was a handful for the competition on most nights.

Away from the bright lights of the racetrack, the trotter, bred by Blue Chip Bloodstock Inc., was quite the opposite.

Katie King and friends.

"I could go into his stall, and he would be so gentle," King said. "If he was lying down, he would put his head in my lap. He's definitely one of my favorites."

As is Vintage Cheddar N, a bay pacer in the Kelley barn.

The son of Betterthancheddar out of the Grinfromeartoear mare Howfarnow gave King one of the top moments of her career courtesy of a head-turning performance at Plainridge this summer.

On July 3, Vintage Cheddar N set the new track standard for older pacing geldings with a time of 1:49.0 – he would break his own track record and set a new lifetime mark of 1:48.3 in the $75,000 Bert Beckwith Memorial on July 20.

"I always used to keep it [emotions] all inside, but when he went 1:49 on July 3, I think that was the first time I ever yelled down the lane," King said. "I had never held a horse who had gone that fast."

King takes none of those moments for granted – she is well versed in how fortunes can change throughout the course of any day.

"The best part of my job is seeing them win and perform at their best," she said. "The toughest part — I do love to ship and travel with the horses — is when you have to deal with unforeseen things when you are on the road. It could be traffic or when you have a late night after the races and you don't get home until four in the morning.

"There was one time when we got caught in a snowstorm after the races and we didn't get home until the next day at six in the morning. You learn to live off very little sleep."

King has also learned to dream big, both in horse racing and in the rodeo ring.

"I have four horses in my backyard, two of them are mine," she said. "One of them is my aunt's horse, who I use to barrel race. It's a Monday and Friday thing throughout the whole summer. So, on top of harness racing, I do that. I just love it.

"My main horse got sick two years ago and I won't ever be able to race her again, so I bought a 2-year-old, who is now 3, and I am in the process of training that one to be my barrel horse. This summer, my aunt let me borrow her 22-year-old quarter horse, who won me another buckle this year. I was able to make about $2,000 this summer doing the barrel racing. It's nice to have the money, but I do it first and foremost because I enjoy it so much."

King feels very much the same way about standardbred racing.

While it wasn't her first choice for a career, she treats it as though it very much was.

"I guess I am most proud of the way I have adapted to this industry," King said. "I want to be the first one at the barn and make sure all my horses are taken care of. I feel like I always go above and beyond – that's just the way I am wired. A lot of people outside of racing don't realize how much heart and soul the grooms put into their horses, but we truly do."

THE DOWN UNDER DIARY

with ADAM HAMILTON

The old marvel Bulletproof Boy deserves respect

by Adam Hamilton

Scott Ewen left South Australia more than six years ago on the wings of his best horse, Bulletproof Boy.

Harness racing in Ewen's home state was on its knees and a chance meeting at the once iconic Mildura Cup Carnival led to an offer to move to Victoria and train from a new complex at the Cranbourne track, about an hour southeast of Melbourne.

Ultimately, it was Ewen's belief in a then emerging Bulletproof Boy to "take the next step" which gave he and wife, Kylie, the confidence to make the move.

Not only had Bulletproof Boy (Art Official out of My Riviera Girl by Red River Hanover) delivered, but he still is.

The 11-year-old is racing in career best form and recently won his 50th race.

Everyone loves a star veteran.

"What a godsend he's been," Ewen said. "If we didn't have him, I don't think we'd have made the move to Victoria. There wasn't much more he could do in SA [South Australia], he deserved the chance to show it. He needed it.

"Things were grim in SA at the time, there was no light at the end of the tunnel.

"Melton and Victoria were booming at the time. Cranbourne had just opened its training center and a few people offered me four horses to train, along with my own, if I moved over."

Ewen did hedge his bets a little.

He gave Bulletproof Boy a "tester" with a race at Horsham in country Victoria on Aug. 1, 2019.

"He won and went brilliant time and we moved to Victoria a month later," he said.

Bulletproof Boy has won another 30 races since to take his career record to 222 starts for 50 wins, 30 seconds, 22 thirds, and $807,566 in prize money.

"He's won about $700,000 of that since we moved," Ewen said.

That said, Bulletproof Boy didn't make the splash Ewen hoped in the first year in Victoria with just two wins from his first 18 runs from the Cranbourne base.

That's when the family of part-owner and breeder Charles Okmasich, who died in early 2019, rang Ewen saying they wanted to sell the pacer after about a year in Victoria.

"He'd been South Australia's 2YO of the Year and 3YO of the Year and then things got a bit harder and Charles' family weren't into it as much as he was," Ewen said. "I understood where they were coming from, but I still believed in the horse and desperately wanted to keep him.

"So, I said I'd buy him, but with the costs of the move to Victoria and setting up, I had to ring around some long-time owners and friends to see if they'd take shares in him to help keep him.

"Many of them did, Kylie and I ended-up keeping 30 per cent and we've got the most wonderful group of people together sharing the amazing ride he's given us and still is."

One of them, the New South Wales-based Murray Clayton, rang Ewen the day after Bulletproof Boy's 50th win at Melton on Dec. 20.

"He said, 'I'm standing here on my Bulletproof Boy veranda, looking at my Bulletproof Boy barbecue... he's built all this for me, Scotty,'" Ewen said. "He told me how he was in tears when the old boy won that 50th race.

"Financially, it would've been great if Kylie and I bought the whole horse, but then we'd have missed out on the thrill of racing him with all the great people with shares in him, like Murray. He's changed our lives and he's changed theirs, too."

For all Bulletproof Boy's success, which included wins in the 2021and 2023 Smoken Up Sprint, it's been the past 12 months which has gained him a cult following.

As a 10-year-old, the gelding raced 20 times in 2025 for six wins, four seconds, four thirds, and earned $202,775.

The year started with a splash when Bulletproof Boy won the Bendigo and Ballarat Cup double last January.

But the headline win came much later, when he rocketed home to upset one of the world's best pacers, Leap To Fame, in the Smoken Up Sprint on Oct. 11.

It was one of the biggest upsets in the modern era.

"For all that he's done, it's the win that really put him on the map," Ewen said. "He deserved that and the respect it earned him. There's been a few times he should've got a start in big races, but got overlooked.

"Lots of people couldn't believe he didn't get in the 2023 Victoria Cup after he won the Smoken Up the week before.

"Even last year's Miracle Mile, he ran a terrific fourth in one of the qualifying races the week before and other horses got starts in the Miracle Mile ahead of him.

"But a win over Leap To Fame is a big thing to have on your CV. He's as good a horse as I've ever seen.

"And beating him was the biggest thrill this old boy has given us. He got beaten in a trial just before the race and nobody gave him a chance, but he's just a different horse at the races, always has been.

"I nearly fell over in the [home straight] when he got out and ran-down the champ."

Ewen credits Bulletproof Boy's career-best form renaissance to a few factors.

"One of them is 'Herbie' [driver James Herbertson]," Ewen said. "Look at his form since he's started driving him regularly. He's just a freak how horses run for him.

"He's always had a wicked turn of speed, but it's gotten even better since I put flip flops on him. He was so fast, he used to get on his bumpers, but now he doesn't, he's even faster."

Buoyed by a huge 2025, Ewen is aiming for the stars this year.

It starts with a title defense in the Bendigo Cup on Jan. 10. It's five years since he first contested the race and finished eighth.

"I know it'll be a strong race again, but they've made it a sprint race [1,650 meters] and that's right down his alley," Ewen said. "If he draws well and can lead, he'll run super time. He'll break 1:50, maybe even get down to 1:49. It's a quick track."

Heading the Bendigo Cup will be new sensation, Kingman, who beat Leap To Fame in the Victoria and New Zealand Cups in October/November.

"Hey, we've beaten Leap To Fame, too," Ewen said with a laugh.

The $250,000 Group 1 Hunter Cup at Melton on Feb. 14 and the $1 million Miracle Mile at Menangle on March 14 are other targets.

"He's been in three Victoria Cups, but not the Hunter Cup yet," Ewen said. "He was right on song last year after those Bendigo and Ballarat wins, but must have kicked a fence or something and took a chunk out of his hock and couldn't run.

"It's made me even keener to have a crack at the Hunter Cup this time.

"The Miracle Mile is the other one. He's just such a fast horse, the mile racing really suits him. He ran so well up there last year and he's going at least as well, if not better."

AMONG OURSELVES

with FRANK COLTOLO

The walking death of pari-mutuel racing in Tennessee, Part 4

by Frank Cotolo

Part 1 is here.

Part 2 is here.

Part 3 is here.

What is legal and what is illegal are public records. A score of activities that are legal or illegal are not always known by the public in any specific city or state of the USA. Lawyers count on the fact that people are both ignorant and uninterested in being well-versed about every little law affecting them. It is rarely a kitchen table topic.

I insisted that living in Tennessee for only a short time excused me from being at a loss of any and all legislative knowledge. As a recent resident of the Volunteer State all I needed to know was the basic stuff. It never once dawned on me to peruse any specific laws. And certainly, my employment under the wings of the country music media moguls — people whom owned and operated The Nashville Network and were influential in the groundwork of city-and-state legislation — vetted me thoroughly before I was accepted as a legal resident.

And as far as legal sports go? The state government actively promoted the existence of "several major league sports teams contributing to the state's vibrant sports culture." Major and minor professional sports teams were active commercial businesses in Nashville, Memphis, Chattanooga, Knoxville, and the National Football League's Tennessee Titans. No mention of pari-mutuel racing for horses or dogs or the unique human competition called Jai Alai.

I asked Joe Slevin — my project manager — if the old timer at the Opryland Hotel was correct about strict anti-gambling laws in the state.

"Illegal all around," Slevin said.

"That's why there are no racetracks in the state?"

Slevin put on a cartoon expression and said, "Duh…"

That was that. I wanted to study the situation on a deeper level but I was short on hours to be able to stay awake. There were big demands concerning my duties with the new radio network and Wolfman Jack's activity on it and expanding it to the TNN TV network and let us not forget my personal life with Natasha.

The matter of legal or illegal pari-mutuel racing became moot until I heard from a former cohort in horse racing journalism who we will call Delaney. He got my office number from TNN. He was researching an article about U.S. states expanding local gambling laws.

"What do you know about the pari-mutuels law passed in the Tennessee legislature?" he said.

"I know wherever you heard that is not a source I would use," I said.

"It happened," he said. "I just talked to the newly appointed Horse Racing Commissioner. I thought of you down there to help me get some inside information."

"The Horse Racing Commissioner in Tennessee? Are you having a stroke? No such animal."

He gave me a telephone number and swore it was that of the Tennessee Horse Racing Commission where he spoke to the commissioner. I told my friend I would get back to him when I felt dumb enough to call the number and felt even dumber for having fallen for the joke.

But I put what I thought to be a practical joke aside because just before the call I picked up another project to stuff into my busy agenda.

"Wolf wants to write a biography," Slevin said, "and he wants you to write it with him."

"You have a deal?" I said.

"No. I am planning some trips to New York City where Wolfman and you and I are going to pitch the idea to major publishers."

Wolfman was out of town when Slevin told me about the project but he and Slevin met with me when he came back and it was obvious to me Wolf was excited. He said, "I want you to write it in my voice, you know, like we do on radio and not like it's comin' from some square editor who doesn't know how The Wolfman talks."

"Yeah," I said. "What a read. Pure Wolfman."

"You got it, babe."

Slevin was all in on it and without thinking that I could live and work and maintain a relationship outside of the boundaries of being a human being I was all in on it.

After I committed and showed a lot of enthusiasm for Wolf's concept, I told Natasha about my squeezing in trips to New York City while meeting my Nashville responsibilities.

"Wow," Natasha said. "Things are moving fast."

I was glad she agreed with me and the new project when I said, "Good thing I am not being distracted by following and betting on horse racing."

The next day I got on the phone and called the number I still thought was part of some elaborate joke conjured by my former pari-mutuel pals on the coast.

The number was busy a number of times I tried calling from my office and it did not offer me a way to leave a message. Of course, I thought. Part of the joke was getting me waste time calling. That would increase my interest and the anticipation to discover it was not a joke so that the "gotchya" element hit harder when someone answered to identify a tailor shop or a psychiatrist's office.

After calling for a week without success there was the sound of a human voice that said, "Horse Racing Commission. How may I help you?

BREAKING STRIDE
with TREY NOSRAC

Nostradamus

by Trey Nosrac

Nostradamus rocks. He wrote my favorite type of poetry – very short.

Five hundred years ago, he was a French writer, astrologer, physician, and a man of the town. Best known for his work Les Prophéties, a collection of 942 cryptic, poetic quatrains that have fascinated readers. His writings blended historical context with mysterious forecasts. Below is a Nostradamus verse for 2026.

"Shadows will fall,

But the man of light will rise, and the stars will guide

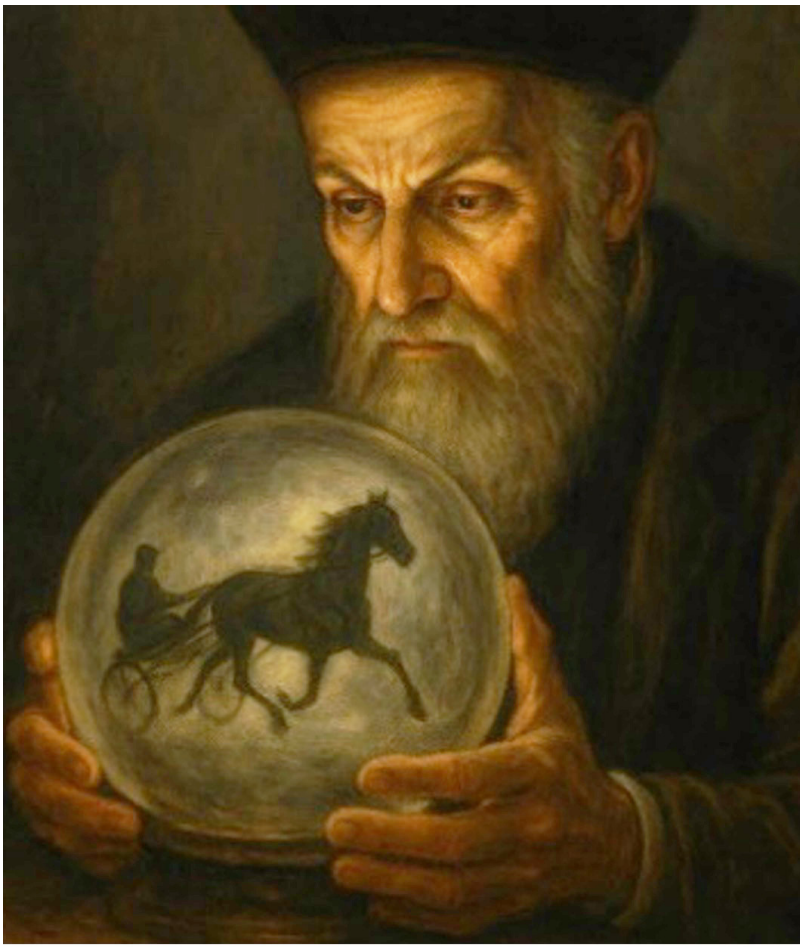
those who look within."

The vague meaning of his quatrains allows readers to insert their own interpretations of coming events, as seen in one devotee's explanation of this year's quatrain.

Increasingly, people are turning to introspective practices, including meditation, spirituality, and ancient wisdom.



Perhaps this is not an escape from reality, but the only way to endure it. The technological world disarms us in the area of emotions, so we look for inner compasses. Spiritual awakening is no longer a new-age cliché, but the only defense against collective madness. The question is: will we know how to build something new as the old crumbles? And above all: will we know how to remain human in a world where this seems to be an increasingly courageous choice?

Trey would simplify this windy paragraph to:

Big things are happening quickly in this strange world. People like us will need to make some significant adjustments.

AI will be a game-changer. In an era of brainy machines, we will need adjustments in our work, play, interactions, economy, sports, politics, and business. Some people will seek out activities that tear us away from the relentless pull of devices. A healthy percentage of people will purposefully engage in outlets that involve face-to-face interactions.

Finding activities that enable us to remain human may be one of the most important things we do in this new society. Our quirky little sport may offer an oasis, not as a gambling option, but as part of a new world longing for social cohesion, mental health, and a sense of community.

Even Nostradamus could not predict the situation that our sport finds itself in. For the previous century, we were the only legal sports gambling. The rules changed in 2018 when the Supreme Court struck down the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act in the case of Murphy v. NCAA. Immediately after this decision, legal sports wagering began to sweep the nation. Horse racing went from the only wager in town to a poor wagering proposition.

It does not take Nostradamus to forecast that, in our little corner of the sporting world, within a decade, the existing economics (gambling/casinos) will falter. As they falter and the sport contracts, some people who love this sport will ride into the sunset as obsolete pennies, a cool little currency from the past. Naysayers will unequivocally state that without gambling as the foundation, there is no harness horse racing, end of story, period. Creative people will attempt to adapt our sport to a new world.

Do you ever consider what you would need to create to ensure the future existence of this sport? What post-Armageddon refuge would you build that would enable people to continue to play this venerable sport where horses race in circles pulling sulkies?

Your creation must be a viable business, not a pipe dream. Your plan must demonstrate a clear return on investment. The creation must be more than a hobby. The creation of a new harness racing cosmos may seem impossible, but Trey disagrees. He knows firsthand that other sports and entertainment activities have survived with fewer assets and potential revenue streams.

Over the next few months, the happy little drones that fly in this column will offer comprehensive plans, utilizing essays, charts, examples, graphics, spreadsheets, and interviews on revolutionary new methods of staying alive.

Next week, we will examine a league in another sport that achieves the impossible every year.

In the meantime, allow an attempt at channeling Nostradamus:

"Time marches on.
Changes are inevitable,
But humans are clever,
And new worlds call."

Big M trackman Wolff the retiring type

After a half-century of taking care of track surfaces — most notably, the mile oval at The Meadowlands, which is home to the fastest mile in the history of the game — Gary Wolff, who serves as the Big M's director of racing properties and track, will step down from that position when he retires at the end of the year.

"I've been doing this since 1974," said Wolff. "I started at Buffalo Raceway and it's been 50 years. I still love what I do very much, but it's time to just enjoy my life a little bit. I spend all of my time at the racetrack, so it's time to go."

Wolff's career as a trackman has also seen him make stops at Buffalo Raceway, Garden State Park, and Freehold Raceway. He's been at The Big M for 20 years.

Wolff reflected on some of the things he has to deal with, both good and bad.

"The weather at The Meadowlands is the biggest challenge," said Wolff. "It's so unpredictable there. Winter is so up and down, and days of thawing make it challenging."

Moisture isn't necessarily an enemy of trackmen, or horses, if you go by what Wolff says.

"The best time for racing [at The Meadowlands] is hours after it rains," said Wolff. "The moisture that gets into that track is so even."

Soon after a light rain on July 16, 2022, Bulldog Hanover stopped the clock in the William Haughton Memorial in 1:45.4, the only sub-1:46 mile in harness racing history.

"There actually is a lot of dirt on the track at The Meadowlands," said Wolff. "Trap rock is what it's called. Limestone is used at a lot of tracks, and when limestone gets wet, it gets slimy, but trap rock, which is only located in the northeast, when it gets wet, makes the track faster. It provides a great cushion."

Wolff, 70, is looking forward to spending time away from the track. But he's not getting out completely.

"I'm still going to consult," said Wolff. "I do work for Kentucky, Buffalo, Batavia, Yonkers, and I'm still going to be involved at The Meadowlands. I'm going to consult once a month. I don't want to ever give it up. I just love what I do too much.

"[Meadowlands chief operating officer/general manager] Jason Settlemoir and [chairman/chief executive officer] Jeff Gural and I have been friends for a long time, 20 to 25 years. I helped Jeff at Vernon [Downs] when they changed the size of the track, and I also helped him at Tioga [Downs]."

In retirement, Wolff is going to trade in his pickup dragging a screen to a boat on a lake.

"I love to fish," said Wolff. "We go to the Poconos once a year, and we also go to the Adirondacks."

OHHA to present Terry Holton Youth Award to Samantha Mayhugh

Samantha Mayhugh, of Circleville, OH, has been named the recipient of the 2025 Ohio Harness Horsemen's Association Terry Holton Youth Award.

Mayhugh has been involved in harness racing her entire life and is currently a sophomore at The Ohio State University majoring in agricultural business and applied economics with a minor in equine studies.

"Sam has a true passion for the sport of harness racing," said her father, Sean. "Ever since she was a young child, she has been actively involved with the sport, from walking the broodmare out to the paddocks to helping me clean stalls, jogging, training, and now hauling the horses to Cleveland on her own to race the family horses."

When she was 10 years old, Samantha started working at the Ohio State Fair educating other children about harness racing, and she has dressed as Willie Winit, the OHHA mascot, at Northfield Park on special race nights. She paddocks for different stables that have raced at Scioto Downs and has assisted with the race program at the Pickaway County Fair, doing everything from handling blankets in the winner's circle to selling programs, running checks, and delivering saddle pads to the next fair in Wilmington. For the past three years, she has assisted with the yearling sales at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds and in Springfield.

In college, Mayhugh has focused her learning on what she can bring back to the racing industry and on spreading the word about the sport. She recently completed an internship with the OHHA during which she developed the Backstretch Buddies children's program that now has more than 100 members.

"I am very thankful and honored to receive the Terry Holton Youth Award," Samantha said. "The Ohio harness racing industry has given me so many opportunities, and being recognized for my involvement is truly meaningful."

The Terry Holton Youth Award is given to an Ohio horseman or woman between the ages of 13 and 19 who has actively participated in harness racing during the year as a driver, trainer, groom, breeder, race office/publicity assistant, or track maintenance crew member or has provided outstanding service to the sport.

Now in its 23rd year, the award is named for Terry Holton, a 2005 inductee into the Ohio Harness Racing Hall of Fame. Holton, of Newark, OH, was the winner of over 1,700 races in his career. He overcame many obstacles in his life, including pancreatic cancer.

Setyoursightshigh named Ohio 2-Year-Old Trotting Filly of the Year

After finishing no worse than second in 11 starts this season, Setyoursightshigh has been named the 2025 Ohio 2-Year-Old Trotting Filly of the Year.

The In Range filly out of Special Interest closed the year with seven victories, four runner-up finishes, and earnings of $678,159. She won the $150,000 Next Generation and two legs of the Ohio Sires Stakes (OHSS) en route to winning the $300,000 OHSS Scarlet Championship. The Marcus Melander trainee was the runner-up in the $400,000 Kentucky Championship Series final and the $700,000 Breeders Crown. Her season-best mark of 1:53.1 came in the first leg of the Kentucky Championship Series at The Red Mile on July 30.

Bred by Kentuckiana Farms, Setyoursightshigh is owned by Heights Stable, Mantorp LLC, AMG Stable, K Kjellgren, and Livs AB Inc. Second in earnings among all 2-year-old trotters, she will also be honored as the 2-Year-Old Trotting Filly of the Year at the 2025 Dan Patch Awards banquet.

Racing Rebel named Ohio Aged Horse and Gelding Pacer of the Year

Following his best season yet, Racing Rebel has been named the 2025 Ohio Aged Horse and Gelding Pacer of the Year.

After recording a combined eight victories in 2023 and 2024, the 4-year-old son of Racing Hill out of Awakening won nine races in 2025 to go with two seconds and three thirds in 23 starts while banking $221,110. He also bested his lifetime mark by a full two seconds, pacing in 1:48.2 at Eldorado Scioto Downs on Aug. 2. The season included wins in six open-level events and the $100,000 #SendItIn Invitational and runner-up finishes in the $100,000 Myron Charna President's Pace and the $100,000 Ohio Sires Stakes Veteran's Championship. The Ron Burke trainee was primarily driven by Chris Page.

"Racing Rebel was a complete surprise," Burke said. "We bought him thinking he'd be a nice horse, and he turned out to be a great horse."

Racing Rebel was bred by Marjorie Polhamus, who is a co-owner with Burke Racing Stable, Weaver Bruscemi, and Page. He has hit the board in 36 of 56 lifetime starts with 17 wins and earnings of $459,842.

"He's a little horse and is just the nicest, sweetest horse to be around," Polhamus said. "I got a call about selling him, but I did keep a part of him because I didn't want to let all of him go. Chris Page has been awesome driving him. He's a nice all-around racehorse. He gives it his all. I'm really proud of him."

Jurassic Hattie named Ohio Aged Mare Trotter of the Year

After compiling over $200,000 in earnings this season, Jurassic Hattie has been named the 2025 Ohio Aged Mare Trotter of the Year.

Owned and bred by Jerry Welch, Jurassic Hattie hit the board in 13 of 18 starts this season with six victories to go with five seconds and two thirds. The 4-year-old Volstead mare out of High Gear Sahbra bankrolled $224,130 on the year and recorded a lifetime mark of 1:50.4 at Miami Valley Raceway on April 30. Her highlight wins included the $100,000 Ohio Sires Stakes Veterans Championship and a division of the Ohio Breeders Championship Aged Trot. The Stacey Van Huizen trainee finished second in the $250,000 Dayton Oaks Derby Grand Circuit event.

Jurassic Hattie has a career record of 15-13-2 in 38 starts with $665,994 in earnings.

"She's been a lot of fun and is deserving of this recognition," Welch said. "I want to thank trainer Eric Nesselroad for the first two years that she raced and Stacey Van Huizen and driver Brett Miller for taking her over as a 4-year-old and continuing with her progress. From the time she was little, she was always outstanding. She's super nice to be around in the barn, but when she goes out to race, it's all business for her. She's a professional — she does her job and takes it seriously."

Rose Run Zoom named Ohio Aged Horse and Gelding Trotter of the Year

Rose Run Zoom put together a second straight season with double-digit victories and has been named the 2025 Ohio Aged Horse and Gelding Trotter of the Year.

The 4-year-old Uncle Peter gelding out of Loconotion hit the board in 22 of 40 starts in 2025, compiling a record of 11-6-5 with $176,340 in earnings. Trained by Cory Kreiser, Rose Run Zoom won five open-level events this year, all at MGM Northfield Park.

Bred by Rose Run Farm and owned by Thunder Racing Stables and Cory Kreiser Racing, Rose Run Zoom also scored 11 wins last season. He has hit the board in 49 of 76 lifetime starts with 23 wins and $377,330 in earnings and owns a lifetime mark of 1:53.3, set at Hollywood Gaming at Dayton Raceway on Dec. 13, 2024.

"He's a tough horse both on and off the track," said Rose Run Farm corresponding officer Alvin Yoder. "It took a little extra work to get him to where he is today, but he's consistently tough and is still racing well."

Mayhugh, Setyoursightshigh, Racing Rebel, Jurassic Hattie, Rose Run Zoom will be honored at the Ohio Harness Horsemen's Association Annual Awards banquet on Jan. 10, 2026, at the Renaissance Columbus-Westerville in Westerville, OH.

The 2025 Ohio Horse of the Year will be announced at the awards banquet.

Aardie B Miki N dominant in Big M feature

Despite drawing post 10, Aardie B Miki N flaunted her back class in the Friday night (Jan. 2) feature at The Meadowlands, crushing her foes as the 1-5 favorite in the $17,500 high-end conditioned pace for fillies and mares.

Brett Beckwith, the leading driver at The Big M during 2025, had the 6-year-old daughter of Always B Miki—Tatijana Bromac on the go from the extreme outside post, firing from the gate along with Miss Idaho A and Take Your Pick into the first turn.

Take Your Pick had the lead while parked at the quarter in :27.4, but 'Miki' surged past that foe just after the three-eighths, and had the front at the half in :56.

"If I get away 10th, I don't care if you're 1-9 with the greatest horse in the world, it's going to be pretty hard to win, especially off a half in :56 with those kind of mares," said Beckwith. "So, you definitely have to be forwardly placed."

Everything was going swimmingly for Aardie B Miki N heading to the far turn when Intothemysticmoon came alongside to harass the leader as three-quarters was reached in 1:24.1, but as the field straightened up at the top of the lane, Aardie B Miki N shrugged off the challenge and maintained a safe edge on that foe all the way to the wire. The winning margin was a length in a mile that was completed in 1:52. Fearless Bettor was third.

"She looked like she fit pretty well in there dropping out of bigger events into an overnight race," said Beckwith of Aardie B Miki N, who strung together five straight wins in early 2025 in the Blue Chip Matchmaker Series at Yonkers, including the $490,000 final. "I really didn't have much to worry about as long as I could get her in a close enough spot. Luckily enough, I was able to grab the front and didn't have to use her too much, and she did the rest on her own."

Trained by Per Engblom and owned by M T Stables Ontario Inc., Aardie B Miki N lifted her lifetime stats to 16 wins from just 37 starts, good for earnings of $596,776. She paid $2.60 to win.

A LITTLE MORE: One lucky player has started 2026 well in the black. There was only one winning ticket sold on the 15th race 10-cent Hi-5, and after 4-1 third choice Born To Dance won with long shots behind him that went off at 29-1, 32-1, 52-1, and 26-1, respectively, the payout for one thin dime was $21,944.53... Beckwith and Jim Marohn, Jr. finished tied atop the driver leaderboard with three winners each while Engblom's three-bagger led the trainers... All-source handle on the 15-race program totaled $2,505,542.

Meadowlands Stallion Stakes and Early Closer Participation Payment on foals of 2025

The Meadowlands will require a Stallion Early Closer Participation Payment to provide eligibility for their foals of 2025 for Meadowlands Stakes and Early Closers that comes due (postmarked by) Feb. 15, 2026.

The payment made last September was on the foals of 2024 to race as 2-year-olds in 2026. This is a separate payment and covers a different crop of foals. It is the same process as was executed in September and our hope is that we can repeat that level of efficiency.

The Stallion Restriction Condition (Gural Rule) will be waived and the 2025 foals by all participating (paid in) stallions will be eligible for nomination to all Meadowlands Stakes and Early Closers for the life of the horse.

The timing of the payment will accommodate yearlings by participating stallions to make the May 15 yearling nomination payment for the 2028 Meadowlands Pace along with the 2027 Meadowlands Early Closer Participation payment (TBD in 2027) and all subsequent required nominating and sustaining payments as written in the conditions for the entirety of their racing careers.

A payment equal to 50 per cent of one 2024 breeding fee (or a minimum of $1,000) will be required on those stallions standing in North America for the 2024 breeding season to make their foals of 2025 eligible to be nominated to Meadowlands Stakes and Early Closers for the life of the horse is due (postmarked by) Feb. 15, 2026.

There is no fee for stallions standing solely outside North America. All payments are in U.S. dollars or the equivalent. Canadian exchange should be the rate on the day payment is sent.

Foals of 2025 by stallions who are not made eligible to this Meadowlands Stakes and Early Closer Participation will not be eligible for nomination to these races for the entirety of their racing careers and there is no recourse.

The list of stallions with their 2024 stud fee, resulting in the 2025 foals, and the form to make this payment are available on the web.
