Breaking down a Prix d'Amérique field weakened by injuries

The French classic, to be held Sunday at Vincennes in Paris, is missing several key horses due to injury.

No Idao de Tillard, no Borups Victory, no Izoard Vedaquais – and earlier this week came the news that Jushua Tree is injured and will once again miss the Prix d'Amérique.

Trained by Nicolas Bazire, Jushua Tree was one of the main contenders for victory in this year's $1,000,000 Prix d'Amérique, but a fracture in a hind leg brings an abrupt end to his winter campaign in Paris. From the same stable, the 5-year-old mare Liza Josselyn had also qualified for Sunday's (Jan. 25) big race, but she will instead line up in Saturday's (Jan. 24) $330,000 Prix Bold Eagle for 5-year-olds.

This year's edition of the Prix d'Amérique has therefore seen one star after another disappear from the scene. It is not unfair to describe the 2026 event as weaker than usual, even though a number of high-profile performers still remain among the 18 starters. The mere fact that Daniel Redén once again sends out Francesco Zet in Paris is enough to raise the pulse.

Örjan Kihlström, who has driven Francesco Zet in all 43 of his career starts, will be sidelined on Sunday, with Frenchman Benjamin Rochard taking over the reins of the Father Patrick colt. When Francesco Zet tried the Vincennes track in the autumn of 2024, things did not go well. The horse is notoriously aggressive towards rivals – especially other colts – and even struggled to make his way onto the track through Vincennes' narrow stable area. This time, long standing starts surrounded by 17 rivals await him, adding another layer of intrigue.

Looking at Sunday's race, Francesco Zet should still be considered one of the leading contenders. French star Go On Boy, winner of the 2025 Elitloppet, is expected to go off as the favorite, with Epic Kronos and Josh Power close behind in the betting. On almost any other track, a head-to-head between Epic Kronos and Francesco Zet would probably favor the latter seven times out of 10. Yet, despite 32 wins from 43 starts and more than SEK 26 million in earnings, Francesco Zet is still viewed as something of an outsider.

French horses can never be ruled out in the Prix d'Amérique. Behind Go On Boy there is a cluster of capable competitors, although many of them have shown questionable form in their preparatory races. Last year, warnings were already issued about Keep Going, then a 5-year-old, but he fell short. This year he secured his ticket by finishing second in the Prix du Bourbonnais, only to be completely outclassed by Epic Kronos in the Prix Tenor de Baune in December. It would take a minor miracle to have Keep Going peak in winning form on Sunday.

Five-year-old Bullet The Bluesky gained entry thanks to the wave of withdrawals, and Daniel Wäjersten expects a sharp performance. Another 5-year-old to watch closely is Sébastien Guarato's Italian import Frank Gio, who has shown outstanding form in his recent starts. With the right cover trip, Frank Gio is fast enough to chase down the entire field in the stretch. The same confidence cannot be attached to his crop rival Lovino Bello, whose form remains uncertain and who has yet to show anything truly eye-catching in his latest appearances.

All eyes will be on Vincennes this weekend, where Saturday's card features several top-class races alongside the Prix Bold Eagle. The $165,000 Prix Roquepine for 3-year-old fillies, $165,000 Prix Paul Viel for 3-year-old colts, $110,000 Prix du Luxembourg for the older elite, and $330,000 Prix Ourasi for 4-year-olds are just a few of the highlights. Fans will get to see horses such as Ginostrabliggi, Mack de Blary, Magic Night, Guglielmo Jet, and Golden Gio in the 4-year-old contest.

Liza Josselyn, Lombok Jiel, Free Time Jepson, and Liberte de Choisel add further sparkle to the Prix Bold Eagle, while the Prix du Luxembourg – as always – has attracted several horses that narrowly missed out on the Prix d'Amérique itself, making it an especially intriguing race.

All in all, it promises to be a fantastic weekend for anyone who loves harness racing.

THOUGHTS ON THE FIELD

HORSE (SIRE) – DRIVER – TRAINER

18. Go On Boy (Password) – Romain Derieux

“Will go off the favorite, quite logically, but he is by no means a stand-out winner. He had a fairly long break through autumn and early winter before making just two starts in December. He was not at his best then and should be fitter now, but his statistics over 2,700 meters at Vincennes are not exactly reassuring. Nine starts over the distance with just one win – and that came as a 4-year-old against his own age group – tells you something about this powerful closer, who arrives at this year's Prix d'Amérique as the richest horse in the field.”

17. Francesco Zet (Father Patrick) – Benjamin Rochard – Daniel Redén

“Francesco Zet has proven on multiple occasions that he belongs among the very best trotters in the world, but in Paris he still has plenty to prove. He has tried Vincennes once before, and that attempt can fairly be described as a flop. The horse was unrecognizable, and after his Elitloppet appearance last year – where he behaved somewhat wildly pre-race – question marks have continued to surround this superstar. If those question marks turn into exclamation points on Sunday, then this could very well be the winner of the Prix d'Amérique.”

16. Hooker Berry (Booster Winner) – Damien Bonne – Antoine Lherete

“Winner of the Prix d'Amérique in 2023. He will not repeat that feat this year.”

15. Koctel du Dain (Boccador de Simm) – David Thomain – Philippe Allaire

“Koctel du Dain has been among the elite of his crop from the very start of his career and delivers consistently solid performances. That said, he appears to lack just a little in pure ability to stand on the top step of the podium on Sunday.”

14. Inmarosa (Amiral Sacha) – Léo Abrivard – Laurent-Claude Abrivard

“With strength few others in the field can match, Inmarosa cannot be ruled out. She won the Prix du Bourbonnais in impressive fashion and clearly deserves to be considered one of the main contenders. Vincennes suits her perfectly, and even if she has to do the work herself, she is capable of it.”

13. Hokkaido Jiel (Brillantissime) – Franck Nivard – Jean-Luc Dersoir

“A perennial outsider who has been close before in the Prix d'Amérique, finishing second behind Idao de Tillard two years ago. A very honest and solid horse, but winless since 2023, and it is hard to see that changing now.”

12. Just Love You (Love You) – Alexandre Abrivard – Laurent-Claude Abrivard

“Finished a surprising second behind Idao de Tillard last year, but has struggled to find peak form during this winter meeting. Unlikely to win.”

11. Josh Power (Offshore Dream) – Sébastien Ernault

“Perhaps the horse that has impressed the most in this season's B-races. Secured his ticket by winning the Prix de Bretagne in November and has barely been seen since in two subsequent qualifiers. Will race barefoot again on Sunday and has a legitimate winning chance.”

10. Frank Gio (Face Time Bourbon) – Matthieu Abrivard – Sébastien Guarato

“One of three 5-year-olds in the field and a genuinely red-hot closer. Frank Gio will not win the Prix d’Amérique by grinding it out in the open, but if he gets the right cover trip, no one is safe in the final meters. A serious early contender.”

9. Lovino Bello (Village Mystic) – Clément Duvaldestin – Thierry Duvaldestin

“The second of the three 5-year-olds. Lovino Bello has matched Frank Gio closely for at least two seasons. He was completely outclassed in the Criterium Continental in December, but showed improved form next time when second behind Liza Josselyn. This is a horse with enormous ability if everything clicks, and trainer Thierry Duvaldestin is aiming to defend his titles from the past two editions.”

8. Bullet The Bluesky (Readly Express) – Daniel Wäjersten

“Dominated the Swedish 3-year-old crop two seasons ago and remained near the top last year, albeit without the same dominance. Crept through on the inside at Vincennes last time and finished fourth behind Liza Josselyn, Lovino Bello, and Lombok Jiel. According to the trainer, he has taken further steps forward in form, but something extraordinary will be required for him to win already this year. The big outsider.”

7. Keep Going (Follow You) – Mathieu Mottier

“A personal favorite. He has belonged among the elite of his generation in France and tried the Prix d’Amérique last year without success. Unfortunately, he does not show sparkling form coming into this edition, although his ability should still take him some way into the race. Not a hot win candidate.”

1. Harmony du Rabutin (Royal Dream) – David Bekaert – Guillaume Richard Huguet

“Caused an upset by finishing fourth in the Prix du Bourbonnais and should be satisfied with having made it this far.”

6. Epic Kronos (Muscle Hill) – Paul-Philippe Ploquin – Daniel Redén

“Is this Daniel Redén’s best chance ever to win the Prix d’Amérique? In 2017 he had four starters in the race and has consistently sent at least one horse to Paris every year, but victory has remained elusive. Epic Kronos’ performance in the Prix Tenor de Baune was sensational, and at that very moment he emerged as one of the leading favorites – even before several major rivals were scratched. Epic Kronos handles the distance, can do the hard work, and can sustain high speed for a long time. A major contender.”

5. Immortal Doc (Brillantissime) – Björn Goop – Fredrik Wallin

“Bloomed late in 2025, highlighted by victory in the Åby Stora Pris over 3,140 meters against the older elite. Since then, he has earned his place in Paris with several strong performances at Vincennes. A clear plus effort when second behind Epic Kronos in the Prix Tenor de Baune, followed by qualifying third in the Prix de Belgique two weeks ago. Hard to see him winning.”

4. J’Aime le Foot (Boccador de Simm) – Antoine Lherete

“Qualified fourth in the Prix de Bretagne and is unlikely to trouble the placings in this field.”

3. King Opera (Ready Cash) – William Bigeon

“A useful horse, but this task appears a bridge too far.”

2. Iroise de la Noe (Tornado Bello) – Eric Raffin – Thomas Levesque

“Won the Prix de Belgique two weeks before the Prix d’Amérique last year – and did so again this year. Comes into the race

IGUSKI SAUTONNE CONQUERS THE CORNULIER

Iguski Sautonne is not only a star in harness racing. On Sunday (Jan. 18), the 8-year-old stallion proved his class under saddle as well, capturing the $770,000 Prix de Cornulier at Vincennes with Alexandre Abrivard in the irons, thereby ending five years of female dominance in the world's most prestigious monté race.

Down the final backstretch, Abrivard positioned Iguski Sautonne in the slipstream of the well-fancied It's A Dollarmaker, before launching his own move turning for home.

In a tight finish between horses, Iguski Sautonne proved strongest over the final 30 meters, reeling in Jeroboam d'Erable and safely holding off Ina du Rib late.

Jeroboam d'Erable had raced outside the leader Hironnelle du Rib, but yielded second place to Ina du Rib in the final strides.

"I wanted so badly to win this race in front of my children, who are now old enough to understand what it means," Abrivard told Equidia after the victory.

Trained by Matthieu Abrivard, Iguski Sautonne had previously attempted to qualify for the Prix d'Amérique twice during the winter meeting without success, finishing fifth in both the Prix de Bretagne and the Prix de Bourgogne.

He had only one prior monté appearance this winter, finishing third in the Prix Auguste François behind Jeroboam d'Erable and Impala de Val – a prerequisite start required to be eligible for the Cornulier. The Cornulier victory marked Iguski Sautonne's second Group 1 triumph. Earlier highlights include a win in the Prix de l'Atlantique ($200,000) at Enghien and the Group 2 Grand Prix du Sud-Ouest ($200,000) at Beaumont-de-Lomagne.

KILIMANJARO FACE HEADING FOR THE U.S.

Winner of both the Danish Oaks and the StoSprint last season, Kilimanjaro Face now appears set for a new career across the Atlantic.

"Kilimanjaro Face is a very good mare, but I don't believe she's quite up to the European elite," said Adrian Kolgjini.

"If she stays here and races in the STL circuit, she might earn around SEK 700,000–800,000 in a good season. In the U.S., she has a real chance to make serious money."

Last year, Kilimanjaro Face (Googoo Gaagaa–Valentina Wind) earned just over SEK 1.8 million, bringing her career total to SEK 2,976,712.

"If she feels good after winter training, she'll head to the U.S. in April," Kolgjini said. "We'll prepare her here using our winter program, then Lucas Wallin will take over in the spring."

ADVENTURES IN ILLINOIS

with NEIL MILBERT

Illinois situation seems dire

by Neil Milbert

With Illinois racing seemingly on life support, the state's harness owners, trainers, drivers, and breeders are hoping and praying that the Illinois House of Representatives will address the deteriorating situation at its spring session that began Wednesday (Jan. 21) by passing HB 2724 and Gov. J.B. Pritzker will sign it into law.

The state Senate passed a replica of the bill 49-8 on Oct. 30 during the fall veto session.

It allows for construction of a harness track/casino in downstate Decatur and removal of the statutory boundary extending from Hawthorne Race Course's suburban Stickney location that enables the Chicago metropolitan area's only racetrack to veto construction of another racino within 35 miles.

Hawthorne's ongoing financial crisis has become more acute in the past two months, first because of its failure to meet Illinois Racing Board licensing requirements for it to extend the harness meeting that began on Nov. 7 into 2026 and then because of continued bouncing checks for purse payments.

The Racing Board's executive director, Domenic DiCera, on Jan. 6 announced that Hawthorne had posted surety bonds "to correct the deficiencies" and was "in compliance" for issuance of a 2026 license that would allow the track to resume its twice weekly programs on Jan. 17 and 18 and race for the duration of the meeting that is scheduled to end Feb. 15.

But then the Illinois Harness Horsemen's Association (IHHA) slammed on the brakes because of Hawthorne's inability to make good on the checks that began bouncing in December and continued in January.

As a consequence, the Jan. 17 and 18 races were called off, the third cancellation in as many weekends.

Now entries were taken on Thursday (Jan. 22) for 13 races on Jan. 24 and 12 on Jan. 25, offering a total of $140,000 in purses.

"They said they were confident we'd be back racing again this weekend," IHHA executive director Tony Somone said on Wednesday afternoon. "But we've heard that before. At this point we don't know for sure."

Elaborating on the reason for the previous weekend's cancellations, Somone said: "The horsemen who have online accounts at the racetrack could see the money is there but the accounts were frozen."

At the time he estimated that the bounced checks totaled $500,000 and that another $300,000-$400,000 that ITHA members hadn't tried to catch for fear that they too would bounce. Much of the money owed was from purses from the main event in Illinois racing, the $1.1 million Night of Champions for Illinois-breds on Nov. 15.

In the wake of the three consecutive cancellations, the IHHA's thoroughbred counterpart, the Illinois Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association (ITHA), posted on its web-site that it was "gravely concerned" because "recent events relating to Hawthorne's financial conditions are deeply troubling."

The ITHA post also cited "Hawthorne's inability to import out-of-state [simulcast] signals because of alleged failure to make settlement payments to host tracks" and went on to say, "it's also past time for Hawthorne to finalize a deal to operate a racino to generate the additional purse funds necessary to ensure that Illinois thoroughbred racing may survive, compete, and ultimately flourish."

The IHHA members agree wholeheartedly. They too have been taking a hit because the simulcast blackout is having a negative effect on purses and they also have been pleading for Hawthorne to find a collaborator to remake the racetrack into a racino.

When a massive Illinois gambling expansion law passed in 2019, allowing tracks to offer casino gambling – with a portion of the adjusted gross revenue going to purses – it seemed that happy days were here again for the people in Illinois racing.

“They said they were confident we’d be back racing again [at Hawthorne] this weekend. But we’ve heard that before. At this point we don’t know for sure.”

~ Tony Somone

Instead of opening a racino, Hawthorne has subsequently been fending off creditors. It has been hit with liens, asserting that the track owes as much as $5 million in unpaid bills for the demolition work. And the demolished area is an eyesore.

But then, after lobbying for nearly two decades for permission to let tracks become racinos, Arlington International Racecourse's corporate owner Churchill Downs, Inc. (CDI), did a startling about face and announced it was putting the opulent and tradition-rich thoroughbred track up for sale with a string attached: there was to be no pari-mutuel racing or any other form of gambling on the premises.

The obvious intent was to wipe out competition in Chicago's northwest suburbs for the state's most profitable casino, Rivers Casino in nearby Des Plaines, in which CDI in 2018 acquired a 62 per cent interest.

The NFL's Chicago Bears purchased the property and tore down the track, hoping to secure favorable terms from the state and area municipalities to build a stadium but thus far they have been unsuccessful.

When Arlington discontinued racing following its 2021 meeting Hawthorne became the only Chicago area racetrack still standing and the harness horses and thoroughbreds were forced to time-share.

Compounding the problem for both breeds is the inability of Hawthorne president Tim Carey to secure funding for a $400 million state-of-the-art racino that he initially said would open in the spring of 2021. In pursuit of that end significant portions of the grandstand and clubhouse were demolished in 2020.

However, instead of opening a racino, Hawthorne has subsequently been fending off creditors. It has been hit with liens, asserting that the track owes as much as $5 million in unpaid bills for the demolition work. And the demolished area is an eyesore.

Another area of uncertainty for the IHHA is the uncertainty regarding the May-October non-betting races at the State Fairgrounds in Springfield and DuQuoin that have been held for the past few years with funding from the Hawthorne purse account.

Now, many are wondering if this opportunity to partially fill the void while the thoroughbreds are running at Hawthorne, will still be available, given the track's mounting financial problems.

Some clarity on the situation may be forthcoming at the Jan. 28 Racing Board meeting – the agenda calls for Carey to testify.

No matter what Hawthorne's president says, the paramount concern for members of the IHHA is the status of HB 2724 in Springfield. Some think it's a matter of life or death for Illinois harness racing as we know it.

Will the big snowstorm hit The Meadowlands this weekend?

Winter weather at The Meadowlands is 'snow' joke

by Debbie Little

MEADOWLANDS MATTERS

with DEBBIE LITTLE

Winter weather has not been the best friend of racing at The Meadowlands recently, and for the third straight weekend, Mother Nature will try to derail some of the action.

On Saturday (Jan. 10), the East Rutherford oval dealt with torrential rain that shifted the start of the first race by a half-hour, from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

"We backed up the other night because the weather was worse than what we thought it was going to be," Meadowlands chief operating officer/general manager Jason Settlemoir said. "And I want the track to be safe, and so does my trackman [Ritchie Decker], because safety comes first; that's just what it boils down to for me.

"I want to make it very clear to my horsemen and women that at any point in time when they feel like the track condition is unsafe, they just have to say something."

Sunday's (Jan. 18) race card was canceled the night before out of an abundance of caution, due to a winter weather advisory

“The number one thing for me is the safety of both our horsemen and women and the equine athletes. I don't take anything for granted when it comes to the weather, because I've seen some really weird things happen in East Rutherford since 2012 when I got here.”

~ Jason Settlemoir

being issued for the area. Several inches of snow and unsafe driving conditions enveloped the area that Sunday.

The weekend, The Big M is once again weighing its options, as an arctic high descends on the area with the coldest temperatures of the season and significant snow expected for Sunday (Jan. 25).

“The weather at The Meadowlands is the biggest challenge. It’s so unpredictable there. Winter is so up and down, and days of thawing make it challenging.”

~ Gary Wolff

Settlemoir told HRU in the past of his passion for weather, which garnered him the nickname “the meteorologist” while working at Scioto Downs in his home state of Ohio.

Both Settlemoir and recently retired Big M trackman Gary Wolff have talked about how unpredictable the weather in Northern New Jersey, or more specifically East Rutherford, can be, especially in winter.

In a recent press release looking back at his time in the Garden State, Wolff said, “The weather at The Meadowlands is the biggest challenge. It’s so unpredictable there. Winter is so up and down, and days of thawing make it challenging.”

Wolff went on to add that some wet weather can be an advantage.

“The best time for racing [at The Meadowlands] is hours after it rains,” Wolff said. “The moisture that gets into that track is so even.”

The perfect example of that was the night Bulldog Hanover went 1:45.4, the only sub-1:46 mile in harness racing history, after a slight rain.

Even though a little rain can be good for the track, the amount received two weeks ago was not.

“The rain came down a lot harder than we had expected,” Settlemoir said. “It was actually supposed to start moving out around the middle of the evening, but the storm just sat there; that’s what it does sometimes in East Rutherford. I’ve had storms that were supposed to come in and go directly out, and those storms just sat there, like this one did, and I’ve had storms that they said were going to be direct impacts, not hit us at all. I’d love to be paid as a weatherman.”

The average high temperature for this time of year should be 39 degrees, and although the temps had been a little below normal earlier in the week, the calm before the storm came on Thursday (Jan. 22) when the high jumped up into the mid-40s.

Today’s (Jan. 23) forecasted high in East Rutherford is 35 degrees before the bottom drops out for Saturday (Jan. 24) and Sunday (Jan. 25), when the temperature is not expected to rise above 20 degrees.

Even without snow in the forecast, Settlemoir said the bitter cold is always a concern, and, as a result, horses will spend less time than usual on the track between the post parade and the start of the race.

According to their rules, should the temperature hit minus 15 degrees, including wind chill, the races would be canceled.

At press time, the storm in question, which some forecasters have said could be crippling and catastrophic, had not yet come together, but was expected to form around the panhandle of Texas sometime today.

Once the storm takes shape, local meteorologists will be able to get observational data, as opposed to now when everyone, including Settlemoir, is dealing with projections, which are all theoretical.

On Thursday (Jan. 22) at noon, both the Euro and GFS models were still projecting over a foot of snow for the New York City area, but with the storm now thought to be tracking more to the north, the ice/snow line could land closer to East Rutherford, with perhaps a little less snow, but more ice making the roads even more treacherous.

With dangerous cold and hazardous travel expected, Settlemoir said a decision on whether they will race or not on Sunday, will again be made some time on Saturday.

“The number one thing for me is the safety of both our horsemen and women and the equine athletes,” he said. “I don’t take anything for granted when it comes to the weather, because I’ve seen some really weird things happen in East Rutherford since 2012 when I got here.”

Casinos biggest blunder, 'un'marketing their racetracks

by John Berry

Way back in 2004, I was hired back to Pompano Park to be the point guy to drum up votes in our beloved Broward County to get a referendum on the ballot seeking permission in building a casino right in front of our eyes at PPK.

We had a roster of talent that could get any team to the Super Bowl or World Series.

We covered libraries, schools, community centers – wherever we could detail the advantages of having a casino in our backyard to help our educational system keep up with the times in our world. After all, just about everything that makes up our material world today has been invented during our lifetime, from two to three inch bottle cap television screens to color television, and today's 77" monsters, from medical advances covering just about every aspect of health, and, of course, the internet that has had profound effects on our world.

In our lifetime, we have completely re-invented communication, including the smartphone, GPS systems for our cars, and health care advances that were not even in dreams not too long ago, including DNA testing and artificial organs, and, most recently, AI, Artificial Intelligence.

In other words, the message was that our children and grandchildren must get to know more – a lot more – in today's world than our Sweet 16 team had to know growing up just a generation or two ago, and the promised funding to education could help play a vital role for our future in the hands of our youth.

Never mind that it would insure the future of racing here in South Florida – that would be a gimme – but our Sweet 16, surely, had that unspoken thought in mind, as well.

Not one single time did our Sweet 16 group mention gam(b)ling in our efforts to obtain these votes – not once.

Our efforts paid off with a resounding "yes" vote by our residents and the ribbon cutting ceremony began what was to become a new era in Florida harness racing.

It was amazing to see the steel rising and things taking shape and, when all was said and done, Pompano Park really became the winter capital of harness racing.

With over 1,500 slots, a championship poker room, a simulcasting palace, several dining choices, including a luscious five-star buffet, an Italian eatery, a storied steakhouse restaurant that would rival any other, and other snack attack spots for those that must have non-stop action. Pompano Park was the prime destination.

By the way, they had an outstanding gift shop, as well.

Today, no more buffet, no more Bragozzo, no more snack attack outlets (they do have a place for a slice of pizza), and the steakhouse is closed Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

The gift shop is gone, too.

The "steel" as the casino was being built became the "steal" of harness racing here as the systematic development of de-coupling began to kill the goose that laid the golden egg.

The casino that "insured" the survival of harness racing at the winter capital, placed the fate of many thousands in jeopardy and, at the same time, cost the casino, potentially, several thousand players – a tough number to swallow when you're in the casino business begging for new blood (money).

Here it is, almost 19 years later, and the evidence is shockingly clear that harness racing was un-marketed systematically and surgically removed in the city that the Van Lenneps built 75 years prior.

Now, it has become a cancer – still early stage – spreading strategically and surgically in pari-mutuel racing.

In South Florida, the first signs were somewhat hazy as the grandstand seating was designed to be, uncharacteristically, far away from the finish line, leaving the once hallowed "Top Of The Park building to rot away with the ages with only the announcer's booth, timer's quarters, and audio-video room left among the remains of the once asbestos loaded confines.

And while the excitement of the casino became stronger along with dreams about our harness racing future, another ominous sign was the continued dilapidation of the barn area.

Yes, huge sums were invested in the casino and hardly a dime in the barn area.

Rumors swirled around that political dollars were in play for a de-coupling move that would allow the casino to remain intact while removing the necessity for racing to continue at the track.

Pompano Park did have one friend in the Florida Legislature – Representative Dan Daley, son of noted trainer/driver Dan Daley – but as Wally Hennessey once remarked, "Dan was in a tough spot – kind of trying to climb Mt. Everest without Sherpas by your side."

Pompano Park had record numbers in their final seasons, over 20 one-million-dollar handle programs under the grand direction of Gabe Prewitt, but it didn't matter and never did.

“ I’d bet a million that, when the real big bucks are put on the table for that lush Lexington Mile land, the owners [of The Red Mile] will go the way that Roosevelt and Liberty Bell and Pompano and Freehold did. ”

~ Bluegrass horseman

Of course, the value of the 200 plus acres of land came into big play as the economics would prove to be the downfall of harness racing with those promises to keep harness racing alive and thriving melting like a snowball in our 80-degree heat.

Our pari-mutuel thoroughbred “neigh”bor, Calder Race Course, would be the next fatality with rumblings that the iconic Gulfstream Park just may be next down the line in Florida.

The iconic Arlington Park, known as the most beautiful track in America with a history going back to 1927, is now just that, history, and when one thinks of their owner, Churchill Downs, as the epitome of track ownership, one would think that Arlington was untouchable.

Not so.

Yes, there are no “favorites” these days in the pari-mutuel industry.

There are signs that other tracks with casinos are catching on in the un-marketing of our grand sport.

Having just noticed a digital ad from The Red Mile casino, the top of the ad shows the horses distorted out of observation with a welcoming bonus and nary a mention of the sport that has graced Lexington, KY, for over 150 years.

Upon inquiry, other Kentucky horsemen and women have reported that there is no directional signage at the main entrance and one, literally, has to ask for instructions to get trackside.

Another observed that, after you are directed to the elevator to access this iconic track, straight ahead when the elevator door opens is the men’s restroom on the second floor.

One ageless veteran (who saw the Niatross historic Time Trial in 1980) remarked, “I’ve been coming to The Red Mile for, gosh, 50-some-odd years and, since then, I have witnessed the millions [of dollars] being poured into the casino and not even a dollar-and-a-half for upgrading the grandstand.

“The barns are in terrible shape and I am afraid that they’ll be condemned somewhere in the future and I haven’t seen a dime invested in that direction.

“Again, many of us think it’s a systematic plan to, eventually, rid themselves of harness racing.”

Another horseman added, “The Breeders Crown is scheduled to be here in [20]27 and their hotel is a priority and, in their mind, much more important than caring for the barns here, and to think, horsepeople own the track!”

Finally, one other Bluegrass man said, “Some of us have been here forever and we raced for a couple of thousand dollars and were left out in the cold when the goodies [big purses] came into play and, when that happened, the big boys that were racing elsewhere for the big purses swarmed in and we had no protection in the race office when condition sheets came out.

“We were told to upgrade, but we, who supported Kentucky racing for decades, couldn’t and had to race for the scraps, or nothing at all.

“Politics means money and money is the king.

“I’d bet a million that, when the real big bucks are put on the table for that lush Lexington Mile land, the owners will go the way that Roosevelt and Liberty Bell and Pompano and Freehold did.

“The dollars will go into politics and decoupling will threaten their future, too... It’s a terrible thing to say but, maybe then I won’t feel so bad for not being able to enjoy the big bucks, too.”

In short, the horsemen don’t need a hotel, they need the barns and grandstand to be renovated to the modernization standards available today, just like the casinos.

Think it’s not serious? Just close your eyes and picture The Red Mile digital ad, with the horses image blurred out of the picture! It’s not all bad, though.

Longtime horseman Mike Deters lamented, “At Tioga Downs, the barns have a bit of age on them as they were a quarter horse track when they opened about 50 years ago, but they recently put new roofs on the barns and placed window fittings on the back to protect from the winds.

“They do invest in track necessities and horsemen appreciate their efforts.”

At Saratoga, where facilities are shared by both thoroughbred and harness interests, frequent inspections are held making sure that all fire hazards are erased and all electrical necessities are safe, so that’s a couple of positives in fairness to those that do care about our future.

We need much more of that.

Lindsey Kerr finally achieves goal as Western Fair's top trainer

by Matthew Lomon

Topping The Raceway at Western Fair District's trainer standings had long been on the mind of Lindsey Kerr.

The devoted local conditioner enjoyed several successful seasons at the London, ON oval, coming within striking distance of the summit but never quite reaching it.

Undeterred, a motivated Kerr set course for 2025 with the same goal serving as her compass – and this time, she would not be denied.

On the strength of a career-best 83-win campaign – 60 of which came at Western Fair – Kerr was finally in a league of her own.

"We were pumped," said a jubilant Kerr. "We have owners, my grooms, and trainers here – it's definitely been a goal of ours to make it to the top. We've been second, we've been third, and it was nerve-wracking to say the least, but our horses – I cannot complain about any of them – they've been awesome.

"We are very proud of our stable."

It was by no means an easy ascent to the apex of the leaderboard.

Kerr's trainees were limited to just 13 starts all of December due to complications caused by the recent strangles outbreak in the London area.

Contending with the strangles situation while also vying for a trainer title felt overwhelming at times, but Kerr and Co. never yielded.

"It was a very stressful month with all that's been going on," she said. "Because of that, I felt like it wasn't just us, but our horses, too, that deserved recognition with all this strangles stuff happening. It's taken a toll on all of us, but this was a little light to cheer us up."

The resolve running through Kerr's stable ultimately proved the difference in overcoming a difficult late-season hand.

Reaching the final stretch in position to seal the deal was made possible by a deep roster of elite equine competitors, each of whom delivered signature moments during an unforgettable year.

"I can remember every single win that we've had, crazy enough as that is," Kerr said with a laugh.

"I can remember every single win that we've had [in 2025], crazy enough as that is."

~ Lindsey Kerr

Among those responsible are Dows Up, a 6-year-old Shadow Play pacer, 5-year-old Betterthancheddar gelding Thejackofdiamonds, and seasoned veterans State Of Play and Mr Mach Jimmy.

Every member of the quartet did it their way.

"Dows Up has always been somewhat of a challenging horse, but he had a few very good wins in London," Kerr said.

"Thejackofdiamonds, he's a homebred horse that we've been like, 'Come on, we know you can do it.' He was kind of slow to get there, but when he did get his first win at Western Fair [April 14, 2025], it was pretty exciting. State of Play, he's always grinding it out, too. Even Mr Mach Jimmy – I could name 10 of them that were great."

However, there were two, in particular, that captained Kerr's contingent in 2025.

The pacing duo of Letjimitakeover and Prestige Seelster made significant waves in their third and eighth professional seasons, respectively, riding their success to the top of the London leaderboards alongside Kerr.

The former will be recognized with the 2025 Claiming Pacer Award while the latter struck gold in the Aged Pacing Horse category.

"Letjimitakeover enjoyed a nice run in the condition claimers," Kerr said. "He won six of seven at one point and then things got a little tougher for him, but he still was racing as best as he could.

"Prestige Seelster has been racing absolutely tough as nails. We bought him back after selling him on onGait a few years ago. We got him back quite cheap, really, and he owes us nothing. He's a good boy."

Letjimitakeover, the junior half of Kerr's award-clinching pair, stood out in his 4-year-old season with a 9-6-3 line across 30 starts while netting $47,943 in prizes – good for more than half of his career earnings total ($88,166).

Oddly enough, the competition was as much internal as it was external for the Big Jim bay.

"Through the end of December, State Of Play was actually one win away from beating Letjimitakeover for [Pacing] Claimer of the Year so we were kind of like, 'Oh, well we might win with either horse,'" Kerr said with a laugh. "I didn't know who it would be but that was also pretty cool to see how it would play out."

While Kerr didn't have a definitive answer for Letjimitakeover's delayed breakout, she did have a hunch – or two.

“ I like to try to set goals. It’s a fun challenge for me. We wanted to win the training titles at Western Fair, Hiawatha, and Clinton for 2025, and we got the first two done. I always love racing at Hiawatha. I have a lot of memories from when I was a kid there with my dad [Randy], so that’s always a special racetrack to me. ”

~ Lindsey Kerr

“Honestly, this was the first time he’s raced for the whole year,” she said. “He had a few little shutdowns here and there, and he really never seemed to do well in the extreme summer months.

“I just think he got with a nice group of horses, and Daryl [Thiessen] always drove him with confidence and gave him the best shot he could. I really have no answer. He just found his right class, his right driver, and everything kind of clicked from there.”

The cause may still be up for debate, but the effect – not only on Kerr – has been undeniable.

“A friend of mine, Rebecca [Masters], and a family friend, Marc Adams, they own Letjimitakeover and it’s nice that they had some good luck,” Kerr said. “They endured some bad luck during the beginning of their adventures, so it was a nice turnaround for them to have a nice horse to watch and cheer on. Rebecca lost her mom, and Jimi offered something of a glimpse of hope and happiness for her too.”

The senior side of Kerr’s trophy toting team, Prestige Seelster, has been a stalwart throughout his two tenures in her barn.

“After getting him back, if he was just a cheaper claiming condition horse, we would have been perfectly fine with that,” Kerr said. “He has been racing so tough against very nice horses.

“Daryl and Austin Sorrie have an equal number of wins with him at Western Fair and they both know the horse wonderfully. They really like him and say how classy he is. He’s a sweetheart to drive, he’s so good with kids, and he’s one of my favorites in the barn.”

The towering 10-year-old Sunshine Beach gelding delivered at every turn in 2025, compiling a 12-9-8 record and $69,550 in prizes from 37 starts.

Heralded for his back class and toughness on the front, Prestige Seelster garnered equal praise for his professional disposition.

“I think his best quality is that he loves his work,” Kerr said. “He was always known to get away well and you kind of knew that you were going to be okay. He’s very tall, so sometimes he struggled around the turns, but as soon as he hits that straight away, it’s always tough to get past him.

“He still gives you goosebumps when you watch him.”

Kerr’s breakthrough 2025, which also drew a top five nod for the O’Brien Award of Horsemanship, was shaped just as much by special people.

Eternally grateful for the contributions of her entire staff, Kerr singled out one person whose presence transcends life in racing, Sally Charlton.

“She has been there for us right from the start,” Kerr said. “Honestly, I call her my second mother. She has done so much for not just us in the barn but also in our personal life as well. She’s just a remarkable lady and we owe a lot of our success to her.”

Charlton’s impact away from the track is beyond measure, and her influence on racing operations remains constant.

“The first horse she ever bought was Got Some Spark and she had a lot of luck with her,” Kerr said. “When she retired from racing, Sally bred her, and she became the mom to Thejackofdiamonds and a few others in our barn now.

“She’s had a lot of nice horses, and she likes to help out at the barn. We couldn’t have been where we are without her.”

On Saturday (Feb. 21), Kerr, along with Letjimitakeover, Prestige Seelster, and all the other prominent performers from Western Fair’s 2025 season will be recognized at the track’s annual Awards Night.

For Kerr, who will be arriving home from Florida the day of, the ceremony is a chance to reflect on a memorable yet difficult year and begin the process of doing it all over again – and then some – in 2026.

“I like to try to set goals,” she said. “It’s a fun challenge for me. We wanted to win the training titles at Western Fair, Hiawatha, and Clinton for 2025, and we got the first two done. I always love racing at Hiawatha. I have a lot of memories from when I was a kid there with my dad [Randy], so that’s always a special racetrack to me.

“For 2026, we’re starting off slow as who knows when we’ll be able to race again, but we’re certainly aiming for Western Fair again. It’s upsetting how it ended with all this, but it was an amazing year overall and definitely our best ever racing-wise.”

McNair celebrates career win 5,000

Doug McNair made a blustery winter evening a night to remember by reaching the 5,000-win mark on Monday (Jan. 19) at Woodbine Mohawk Park.

The 36-year-old reinsman entered the evening just two wins shy of the career milestone.

McNair cashed in with his first drive of the night (race 3) by guiding 4-year-old pacer Volcanic ($7.10) to victory for his father Gregg McNair. His next drive (race 6) didn't go according to plan thanks to a broken equipment break in the first turn by pacer Caronsbuckngo.

Doug didn't have to wait any longer than that to reach the milestone, as he guided Wicked Express ($2.40) to a gate-to-wire score in the evening's eighth-race for trainer Kyle Fellows.

A resident of Guelph, Doug has ranked among Canada's very best since launching his career in 2008. He reached 1,000 career wins in December of 2010, becoming the then youngest driver in harness racing to reach the milestone. The 2017 season saw Doug named Canada's Driver of the Year at the O'Brien Awards, while in 2018 and 2022 he won the National Driving Championship.

Doug has won multiple Breeders Crown events, including one this past October at Woodbine Mohawk Park with The Last Martini. He finished the 2025 campaign with 258 wins and $6.8 million in earnings to mark his 12th season with over $5 million in seasonal earnings.

In total, Doug has career earnings of $95 million to go with 5,000 wins.

Live racing resumes tonight (Jan. 23) at Woodbine Mohawk Park. Post time is 6:15 p.m.

Claiming co-features stand atop Saturday Big M card

It's not often that claiming races are the featured events at the No. 1 harness venue in the world, but that will be the case this Saturday (Jan. 24) night at The Meadowlands, when a pair of extremely competitive dashes will comprise half of the Early 50-cent Pick-4.

The seventh race – which is leg 2 of the Pick-4 – sports a $17,000 purse and is for pacers who are in for a tag of no less than $25,000 and no more than $30,000. The horses in for a higher price draw outside in this handicap event.

There are three horses who are all in search of a second consecutive trip to the winner's circle, starting with Mayhem Hanover, who is off an upset score at odds of 12-1 with this kind last Saturday (Jan. 17) for trainer Rico Robinson. He'll depart from post 4 with driver Austin Siegelman and start out at 5-1 on the morning-line.

Caviart Camden (post 5, 3-1) swung four-wide at three-quarters before closing like a shot to upset in a softer spot last week as a 14-1 outsider. Colin Kelly, who won 10 races last weekend to end Brett Beckwith's six-week reign as the track's "Driver of the Week," will guide the Maria Alvarez student.

Betting On Caesar (post 10, 8-1) is another bumping up in class, as the Joe Bongiorno trainee crushed weaker on the front end when last seen on Dec. 27. Beckwith will be in the bike.

In the eighth race, $19,000 will be on the line in a $40,000-$60,000 claiming handicap pace, where all eyes will be on Boston Bound (post 10, 3-1). The Chris Height student went a brutal trip a week ago on the way to a seventh-place finish as the 1-5 public choice as the speedball never got near the front end. Beckwith will be the pilot.

Sun Of A Show and Mamba are both looking for a second straight score.

The Tee Wine-trained Sun Of A Show (post 6, 7-2), who will be driven by Braxten Boyd, emerged from the pocket to win at odds of 10-1 last week, while Mamba (post 7, 4-1), who is trained by Bongiorno, went a gigantic parked-out effort to score as the 4-5 public choice back on Dec. 13. Can he overcome the layoff is the question. Kelly is listed to drive.

CHECK BEFORE LEAVING: With the threat of inclement weather early Sunday morning, it's a good idea to go to The Meadowlands' website, playmeadowlands.com, and see if the track will have live racing Sunday afternoon. It's possible that live racing could be canceled with the facility remaining open for simulcasting as well as wagering in the FanDuel Sportsbook.

THE SCHEDULE: During the month of January, live racing will be conducted on a Friday-Saturday-Sunday basis.

Post time on Friday and Saturday is 6:20 p.m., while Sunday racing will begin at 12:30 p.m.

The final Sunday race card of 2026 takes place on Feb. 1.

WHO'S DOING THE SHOW? This weekend marks the return of Meadow Twaddle to the Sam McKee Memorial Broadcast Set.

Twaddle, who currently works with the Pennsylvania Horse Racing Association and is the co-host of the podcast "Hot 2 Trot," will serve as co-host for all three race cards.

The daughter of prominent trainer Tim Twaddle, Meadow is a 23-year-old with a bachelor's degree in psychology and marketing from Washington and Jefferson College, and her passion is making horse racing more accessible and exciting by sharing authentic, behind-the-scenes moments that highlight the people and heart of the sport, helping to bring fans closer to the action.

Dave Little will host the show today and Sunday, while his wife, Debbie, the associate editor and columnist from Harness Racing Update, will sit in that chair on Saturday.

Ken Warkentin will be in his usual spot calling all of the races, while Joe Romanelli will handle back-paddock interviews and FanDuel Television (FDTV) coverage today and Saturday with Gary DiLeo handling those chores on Sunday.

SLIP ME FIVE: Big M TV veteran Dave Little started like a house on fire Saturday, picking the first five winners on the card.

Little's winners of races 1 through 5 were: Sono Confuso ($8.80 to win), Beat Cop ($8.40), Captain Bazinga ($3.40), American Mercury ($7.80), and Tonto Returns ($9.20), respectively.

By tabbing the first five in a row, Little gave out the 20-cent Pick-5 cold. The payoff for 20-cent bettors was $134.92, while players who wagered $1 got back $674.60.

PICK-6 CARRYOVER: There were no winning tickets sold on the 20-cent Pick-6 Saturday (Jan. 17) night, creating a carryover of $4,272 for when racing resumes today (Jan. 23).

The Pick-6 is offered on races 8 through 13.

Kelly a perfect 10 at Big M

Over the course of the weekend at The Meadowlands, driver Colin Kelly could do no wrong, and one of his 10 winners during the two-day race week came in Saturday night's (Jan. 17) featured $17,500 high-end conditioned pace.

Kelly became the first driver in 2026 to win 10 times over a two-card week, equaling what only Mark Herschberger accomplished during 2025.

The 32-year-old pilot's biggest win of the night came in the eighth race, when Bettors Donttell took down 3-5 favorite American Dealer N in 1:50.4 after working out an ideal second-over trip.

"He seems to like having a target in front of him," said Kelly after scoring in the feature with the 8-year-old gelded son of Bettors Delight—Donttellruss. "He's really fast. He likes to chase and he can make a big run. American Dealer is a really nice horse. He's so quick. We just got really lucky that Brett got backed up [along the inside]."

American Dealer N worked out a pocket trip behind South Beach Star, who led at the first three calls in :27.2, :55.4, and 1:23.4, respectively, and appeared to have enough time to take down the eventual winner but came up short after getting outpaced late by Master Charles A for second after finding room late between rivals.

A Mark Capone trainee, Bettors Donttell returned $15.40 to win as the 6-1 third choice in the betting. He's now won 30 of 141 career outings, and banked $481,601 for owner Joshua M. Kinney.

Kelly, who won five races Friday night (Jan. 16), ended up with a second consecutive five-score evening after also piloting Beat Cop ($8.40 to win in the second race), Caviart Camden ($31.60 in the sixth), Sun Of A Show ($23.60 in the ninth), and National Sport ($3.40 in the 13th) to walk down victory lane.

"I'm just very lucky," said Kelly. "I've got some good horses for some good trainers. I'm in the right place at the right time. You are only as good as what's in between the shafts, and I'm very fortunate that way."

SAMPLE FIT FOR A KING: DeShawn Sample worked out a perfect pocket trip and guided American Mercury to victory in the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Remembrance Race, a dash that honored the slain civil rights leader.

"The horse seemed like he needed a trip, and it worked out," said Sample. "At the top of the stretch I was very confident. The trainer [Michael Posner] told me just sit with him and move him out, and he'll take off."

Sample has now won this event two years in a row, but being a part of a race where all of the drivers were African-American honoring Dr. King was something special not only to him, but to the other seven pilots in the race as well.

"It means a lot to the black drivers to come up here, especially to drive at The Meadowlands, it's the big time," said Sample.

NO RACING SUNDAY: Due to an expected snow event, the Sunday (Jan. 18) race card at The Big M was canceled.

A LITTLE MORE: Bill MacKenzie led the trainers with a pair of victories... There were no winning tickets sold on the 20-cent Pick-6, creating a carryover of $4,272 for when racing resumes. Those with five correct collected $356.02... All-source betting on the 14-race card totaled $2,625,852.

PA Fair champions honored at dinner Saturday

Pennsylvania's fair horsepeople came together Saturday evening (Jan. 17) at the Nittany Lion Inn for the annual Pennsylvania Fair Awards dinner, held in conjunction with meetings of the U.S. Trotting Association and the Pennsylvania Fair Harness Horsemen's Association.

Hosted by USTA district chairman Sam Beegle, the dinner provides two sets of awards to the best horses at the fairs: honored are the leading point winners throughout the summer fair season in the eight fair categories, along with the winners of their championship events at the end of the season.

Three horses were double winners: freshman trotting filly PA Patricia, sophomore pacing filly Milagro, and sophomore trotting male Lionheart Hanover. Milagro earned her second straight championship, while her stablemate for Tony and Linda Schadel, Lionheart Hanover, became only the second PA fair horse ever to win the group's point title and championship at 2 and 3: the other was pacing filly Bettor Strait N Up, who also raced for Tony and Linda.

The leading point winners, who received a blanket "done up" in their stable colors, were:

2-Year-Old Trotting Male: RT Wonder Colt, g, Fordham Road—Keystone Wonder, owned by Brocious Racing Stable Inc., trained by Tom Loughry, Jr.

2-Year-Old Trotting Female: PA Patricia, Father Patrick—Tymal Lux, owned by Sandy Petersen and Alexa Shaw, trained by Ashley Brown.

2-Year-Old Pacing Male: Party Rock Hanover, g, Tall Dark Stranger—Planet Rock, owned by Tony and Linda Schadel, trained by Linda

He also was a frequent recipient during the distribution of the door prizes, which make the Fair Dinner Ticket one of harness racing's best values, as the average ticket cost is exceeded by the average amount of swag the attendees garner. The redoubtable Roger Hammer won a jog cart, while the grand prize of a sulky went to Abby Martin.
