John Floren on flourishing in the business

The man behind Coyote Wynd Farms talks about finding success at both racing and breeding.

by Murray Brown

TALES FROM THE CURMUDGEON
with MURRAY BROWN

Coyote Wynd Farms is the nom de course for John Floren, his wife Sherry and his daughters Kendra and Emily.

"We are all involved in it as we are in most areas that concern any one of us," said John. "But I suppose it's more my personal bailiwick. It certainly hasn't been my primary means of making a living, but I've managed to do reasonably well both in breeding for the market and in racing at quality levels."

As you say it hasn't been your primary means of making a living, what is?

"I'm now actually retired, but I was the CEO of Methanex which is the world's largest producer of Methanol. I'm still a director of Imperial Oil as well as West Fraser Timber. I also serve on the advisory council to the General of the Royal Canadian Air Force. I wouldn't describe my involvement in harness racing as a hobby, because it most decidedly is not that. We treat it as a business, but it is a business which often has its personal rewards. I love the horses. I try to go to the races as often as I am able. I do visit Peninsula Farms where all my breeding stock is boarded under the great stewardship of Carter Duer and his family. I've also been at Spring Garden Ranch this week where I have some in training with Clark Beelby and Charlie Norris. Our goal is to breed, raise and occasionally race the very best trotters that we are capable of raising. That doesn't necessarily mean that we are always successful in our goals, but I think that thus far we have done reasonably well. We have averaged over six figures with the yearlings we have bred and raised at public auction."

How many horses do you have?

"Insofar as breeding stock is concerned, we have over 20 including broodmares, yearlings and suckling foals, both here and yet to arrive. We will have nine yearlings to sell at the Selected Sale this year. Our mares are a select group and we breed them to the very best trotting stallions available. I suppose we are growing. Last year we sold six yearlings and they brought $300,000, $210,000, $180,000, $150,000, $45,000 and $25,000. I expect that if the market stays good and the stars are in alignment that we might perhaps do somewhat better this year. I realize that breeding and raising horses can be a bit of a gamble, but it's just like most areas of life, if you deal with quality and surround yourself with good trustworthy people you can skew the odds in your favor."

What do you look for in additions to your broodmare band?

"I guess pretty much what everyone else who is looking to raise a good horse [looks for]. The first necessity is pedigree. Without a quality pedigree you are doomed. Then, of course, conformation. If you buy a poorly-conformed mare the chances of her reproducing any fault are increased. One area that I place a high priority on is temperament. I like an intelligent horse that has a kind disposition."

“Without a doubt [my favorite horse is], The Ice Dutchess. We bought her at the 2017 Harrisburg sale for $320,000. She raced for us and earned $774,029. She is now, of course, a broodmare... At the sale in which we bought her, we also sold the highest priced yearling colt for the same $320,000. That has to be some kind of record. I don't know of any sale where the highest priced sold yearling and the highest priced bought involved the same person for the same price.”

John Floren on the day he bought
The Ice Dutchess for $320,000
at the 2017 Standardbred Horse
Sales Company auction.

How about your racing operation? How many horses do you have in training?

“We own all or portions of 20 head in training. They consist entirely of 2- and 3-year-old trotters, some of which will eventually join the broodmare band. Our yearling purchases are usually trotting fillies. Our two primary trainers are Clark Beelby and Jim Campbell. I've had horses with Clark for many years, dating to 1995. Jimmy has trained for us since 2018. We also own pieces of horses with Julie Miller, Tony Alagna and Charlie Norris. Julie and Tony bought yearlings from us and asked if we wanted to stay in for an interest. Of course, we jumped at the opportunity.”

How did all this begin and evolve?

“I suppose it began when we lived in Montreal and had a farm in St Lazare. The farm was close to one owned by Morris Feldman who was quite active in the game. He had several horses that he bred and raced primarily at Blue Bonnets, then called Hippodrome de Montreal. Morris became an advisor to us and helped to guide us in our first steps in the business. My wife, Sherry, worked in Moe Graif's bookkeeping office at the track for a few years. Of course, we benefitted from exposure to a large panoply of horsemen and horse related experience. From there it just grew.”

Do you have a favorite track?

“The simple answer would probably be the one where we last had a winner. If I had to pick just one it would be Mohawk. It's our home track and it’s just a short drive to get there. I absolutely love going to the races especially when one of our horses is in to race. The only thing better than watching one of your horses race is seeing it win. After living in eight places in my adult life, we now live in Oakville which is just a short drive from Mohawk. Of course, I love to go to The Meadowlands and there is nothing quite like a beautiful fall day at The Red Mile. I love to drive. If one of our horses is in to race, I just get in the car and go to wherever its racing.”

AN ONGOING CONVERSATION WITH JOHN CAMPBELL

by DAVE BRIGGS

Jim Campbell incredibly deserving of his Hall of Fame honor

John said he is immensely proud his brother will be enshrined in Goshen this summer.

by Dave Briggs

John Campbell said he couldn't be prouder that his younger brother, Jim, will be enshrined into the Harness Racing Hall of Fame this summer.

He said Jim more than earned the berth thanks to tremendous talent, integrity, ability to adapt as a trainer and, perhaps most of all, work ethic.

"[Jim's] work ethic when he was a kid was far more than mine. I was looking to get out of work, and he didn't mind it at all," John said.

In that way, John said Jim is more like their grandfather, Dunc Campbell, who is enshrined in the Canadian Horse Racing Hall of Fame.

"I spent a lot of time with my grandfather, but the work ethic part didn't wear off because I was just looking to do it easier and get out of work," John said, laughing. "Jim, even as a kid, he never ran out of a time where he wouldn't work."

Dave Landry

Brothers John Campbell and Jim Campbell together at Clinton Raceway's Legends Day in 2017, the day John officially retired from driving.

John is seven years older than Jim, so the age gap was particularly significant when they were kids growing up in rural Ontario. Like any good older sibling, John let Jim tag along from time to time, but only on John's terms. John would occasionally convince Jim to throw on the goalie gear so John and his friends could blast slap shots at him. Long ago, John told me he also used to beat Jim up when they were kids, but only, as you might expect, "when he deserved it." The running joke was that Jim was going to get John back when he was 53 and John was 60.

"Oh, [Jim] still harps on some stuff I did to him as a kid," John said recently. "I mean, there's seven years difference. I know he hasn't forgotten because he'll bring up stuff when we're having a beer or two, but he let it go, put it that way."

Still, the two have always been close and supported each other. John said he wasn't the least bit surprised that Jim travelled from New Jersey back to Ontario in 2017 to be at Clinton Raceway for John's official retirement from driving.

"We've both supported each other throughout everything we've done, whether it's playing hockey as kids or through the horses and all that, so I really wasn't that surprised," John said.

"I left the farm when I was 18 or 19 years old to go to the track and Jim was 11 and 12 then. Then, when he came down [to New Jersey], he was 17 or 18 and he had changed a lot in those years. So, rather than looking at him as a little brother, I looked at him as a friend and a little brother. Then, we worked together for a number of years and the relationship just got stronger and stronger."

John and Jim often found success racing together at The Meadowlands.

“[Jim’s] work ethic when he was a kid was far more than mine. I was looking to get out of work, and he didn’t mind it at all.”

~ John Campbell

John was instrumental in Jim’s start in the training business. That’s where their bond first grew stronger.

“When [Jim] came down to New Jersey at a young age and started working with me, I think that really solidified it,” John said. “I left the farm when I was 18 or 19 years old to go to the track and Jim was 11 and 12 then. Then, when he came down, he was 17 or 18 and he had changed a lot in those years. So, rather than looking at him as a little brother, I looked at him as a friend and a little brother. Then, we worked together for a number of years and the relationship just got stronger and stronger.”

As John’s career began to blossom, particularly as a driver, he admits it couldn’t have been that easy for Jim.

“When [Jim] got his driver’s license to drive down at The Meadowlands – I had encouraged him to and got him to drive in some qualifying races and what not – and the comments were really unfair for him when he drove, for sure,” John said.

“He never drove that much and he didn’t drive enough to get experience to get better at it, but he just didn’t like it like I did, the driving part of it... But the comments when he was getting his license and starting to drive were really, really unfair and I took exception to it with a number of people, including with a few reporters for the local papers.

“There were these little digs at him when he was driving and comments in the picks and stuff... But, he certainly came out of any shadow I might have cast and nobody thinks like that anymore and they haven’t for a long, long time.”

Jim has a long list of fantastic horses he has trained – including Hambletonian winners Tabliabue, driven by John, and Cool Papa Bell. John said one of Jim’s greatest strengths is, “being able to adapt to the change of horses over the years.

“He’s not the only one because there’s a number of trainers, but if you look at trainers from the late ’80s and early ’90s like Brett Pelling, Nifty Norman, Linda Toscano and Noel Daley, they’ve all done it,” John said. “They’ve been able to adapt to the change in our breed and be successful and find out what’s the best way to get horses to big races and that’s changed dramatically over the years.

“I think that’s something that Jim and some others have done over the years, but I think that’s a big thing to be able to do because many people just say, ‘This is my way. This is the way I’ve always done it and I’m going to continue.’ Jim hasn’t done that over the years.”

The victory with Tagliabue in the 1995 Hambletonian was a tremendous family victory for the Campbells, but John said it was always easier driving for Jim than some trainers.

Certainly, it was easier with some guys when you develop that relationship and that trust... you can be so honest and blunt after a race, whether you win or lose,” John said. “With Jim, with Chuck Sylvester, with [Bob] McIntosh... you could come back and just give them a blunt assessment of what you thought no matter how the horse ended up.”

In fact, John said one of the greatest success stories in his career of working hand-in-hand with a trainer to help improve a horse was with one of Jim’s pupils – Run The Table.

“I started driving him after Jim got him,” John said. “Jim and I really worked together to get him figured out and keep him racing at that top level for the rest of the year. Part of it was the way he trained him, but I think the input back and forth between Jim and I likely worked out as well with that horse as with any horse because once he got to that level and we figured out how he liked to race, how he liked to train... It was just a really good collaboration between Jim and I with Run The Table.”

Through it all, John said Jim never looked for attention or accolades.

“[Jim] just goes about his business and always did,” John said. “He never really did draw attention to himself, but always did have a tremendous work ethic.

“I’m proud of his whole career and how he’s conducted himself. I think it’s just a culmination of everything he’s done to be elected to the Hall of Fame.”

Tim Tetrick and Irad Ortiz, Jr. comparisons, early million-dollar races and a chat with Ron Pierce

by Bob Heyden

The stunning numbers put up by standout jockey Irad Ortiz, Jr., only 31, are mind-numbing any way you slice it. But, harness racing has a rebuttal, and a good one: Tim Tetrick. Let's take a close look at some startling similarities.

- Tetrick is the youngest driver to ever reach $100 million at 29 and $200 Million at 36. Ortiz, Jr. just became the youngest jockey to ever reach $100, $200, and $300 million. He's at $308 million currently.
- Tetrick ($272.2 million) is 42, 17 years younger than Dave Miller ($282.3 million) and 26 years younger than John Campbell, who retired at 62 in 2017 with $299.7 million. Miller is currently No. 2 behind Campbell. Ortiz, Jr. is just 31 and the top four ahead of him are John Velasquez, 52, at $476 million, Javier Castellano, 46, at $397 million, Mike Smith, 58, at $349 million and Joel Rosario, 39, No. 4 on the list at $316 million.
- Ortiz, Jr. has led all of North America in victories the last seven years with a personal high of 366 last year. Tetrick led all of North America in wins in both 2007 and 2008 with a record 1,189 wins in 2008 (not approached since) but led all of North America in earnings seven straight years from 2007-13.
- The two highest jockey earning seasons of all time are the personal property of Ortiz, Jr., his last two: $37,075,772 (2022) and an astounding $39,192,585 in 2023. The two highest harness racing all-time best seasons belong to Tetrick $18,350,047 (2007) and $19,752,066 in 2008. Note that both did it in consecutive years.
- Ortiz, Jr. is the Eclipse winning jockey in five of the last six years, finishing second to Joel Rosario in 2021. The all-time leader in Eclipse awards, Jerry Bailey, didn't win his first until age 38 in 1995. Bailey won a record seven. Tetrick is the youngest U.S.-born driver to make it to the Hall of Fame at 39. John Campbell at 35, as well as Herve Filion, were both born in Canada.

- Ortiz, Jr. (8/11/92) was born two years after Velasquez was named the Top Apprentice Jockey of 1990. Tetrick was born (11/22/81) two years after Campbell won his first of a record 16 National money titles.
- Ortiz, Jr. won four Breeders' Cups in 2019 while Tetrick won four Breeders Crowns in 2012 including one with HOY Chapter Seven.
- Ortiz, Jr.'s first Breeders' Cup win was with Lady Eli in 2014, the year before Tetrick was second in the Hambletonian with Smiling Eli and is the only driver in the 21st century to win the Hambletonian (2012, Market Share) and be second the very next year.

EARLY MILLION-DOLLAR RACES REVISITED

We're coming up on 44 years since the dawn of the million-dollar race era, one that got the jump on the t-breds by a year. Niatross won the $1,101,000 Meadowlands Pace in 1980 before John Henry won the 1981 Arlington Million. Here's a look at some notes on the first decade or so:

1. The first 10-horse field for a million-dollar race was the 1983 Hambletonian final won by Duenna, as the elimination fields narrowed to that number. The first eight million-dollar races all had at least 12 starters.
2. The 1989 Hambletonian made history for being the lone dead heat in 98 editions. But, a little-known fact, it had the highest percentage of drivers in the field who either had or would win the Hambletonian, 10 of 11 for 92 percent. Only Berndt Lindstedt with Demilo Hanover did not get the cheese.
3. John Campbell's first favorite in a Million Dollar test? Joie De Vie in the 1983 Hambletonian. Even though he was fourth in a dead heat in the final won by Duenna with Winky's Gill second, Joie De Vie got second money because he won his heat. Campbell's colt was the 3-5 favorite in the final as part of the Howard Beissinger entry.
4. Ron Pierce's million-dollar race debut came in the 1990 Woodrow Wilson won by Die Laughing. He drove Nukes Terror to a sixth-place finish. Pierce had done quite well for the just under $1 million contests of the prior year with Casino Cowboy second to Dexter Nukes in the Meadowlands Pace for $853,000 and he did win the $907G Wilson in 1989 with Sam Francisco Ben for Kelvin Harrison.
5. Title this the "Outsiders." Why? Because the first five winners of any million-dollar race came from the five outside posts:
 - 1980 – Niatross (Meadowlands Pace) – post 6
 - 1980 – Land Grant (Woodrow Wilson) – post 9
 - 1981 – Conquered (Meadowlands Pace) – post 7
 - 1981 – McKinzie Almahurst (Woodrow Wilson) – post 8
 - 1982 – Hilarion (Meadowlands Pace) – post 10
6. Fourteen drivers from the first 50 million-dollar races ever contested are still with us. John Campbell, Bill O'Donnell, Ron Waples, John Hayes, Jr., Del Insko, Ray Remmen, Mark O'Mara,

“ [I don’t] really [have any regrets about possibly retiring too soon]. Either way I was going to be out for most of that year anyway with two back surgeries. I didn’t want to just be hanging around either. I’ve seen a lot of that in my life. Bigger name drivers at the end of their careers just looking to get a drive here and there. ”

~ Ron Pierce

Yves Fillion, Mickey McNichol, Mike Lachance, Steve Condren, Bill Fahy, Richie Silverman and Jack Moiseyev.

7. Favorite sons in six of the first seven million-dollar races, the chalk, more than held up. Only Land Grant stopped it from being a perfect seven.

MY OSCARS DIFFERED FROM YOURS

Why? Because two hours in I got to talk to Ron Pierce and you didn’t.

Pierce is still in Montana after a tough year losing several siblings and his more-than-wonderful mom Dolores last March.

When might we see Ron back east?

“I’m thinking the 50th anniversary of The Meadowlands [September 2026] and maybe the 100th Hambletonian [August 2025].”

Any regrets that you might have retired too soon in March 2015 at age 58?

“Not really. Either way I was going to be out for most of that year anyway with two back surgeries. I didn’t want to just be hanging around either. I’ve seen a lot of that in my life. Bigger name drivers at the end of their careers just looking to get a drive here and there.”

But, you came off a 2014 with both the Pacer of the Year, Sweet Lou, and Trotter of the Year, Shake It Cerry. No one has ever retired the year after doing that.

“But I sensed a shift in not getting some of the better ones.”

You hold the record for the most consecutive seasons, six (2006-11), of winning a race worth a million or more. Had you not chosen off Rocknroll Hanover (2005 HOY), it would have been seven straight!

“I know. I chose Village Jolt [2YO champ both owned by Jeff Snyder]. But the worst part of that is that I knew it right away. Remember I was also the first driver named on Muscle Hill. It was at Gaitway [June 2008] for a baby race. But that day I had to be at Chester with a couple for Jimmy Takter. When they are babies like that how do you know?”

The one and only Pierce, is the one and only driver to ever win two races valued at $1.5 million or more: the 2007 and 2020 Hambletonian with Donato Hanover and Muscle Massive, respectively.

The faults of the fates of harness racing at Fairplex Park

by Frank CotoLO

Part 1 is here.

Anyone using time-lapse photography to measure the harness racing attendance in the grandstands of Fairplex Park in the mid-1980s would have clearly seen the drastic program-by-program shrinkage. For those of us making Fairplex pari-mutuels a part of our income the lack of gambling dollars represented by the loss was brutal.

It did not take long for anyone betting harness racing at Fairplex to believe there was any significance beyond physical science that a pacer named Winning Season opened the season with a victory. Nor did our theory about a mythical goddess inspiring an uneducated wagering crowd present a huge edge for us serious gamblers surface.

Mr. Bruce became despondent as the decrease in betting pools ensued. I continued to encourage him that we make the journey to Fairplex as often as possible. But I realized I was losing him.

"It's costing too much," Mr. Bruce said. "Even when we win it doesn't pay the gas to get here."

“ Right now, it's hard to attract qualified investors to the [harness racing] industry. It's in a hard transitory state right now... I'm risking a lot of money and basically my career by staying here and sticking with it..”

~ trainer/driver Mary Madland

Then one night, during a losing betting campaign, we disagreed on a play in a certain race and Mr. Bruce cared not to participate. I made the bet anyway and won. It saved the evening from total failure. I found Mr. Bruce sitting alone on a bench that easily supported 10 people across.

"We got it. Paid well," I said and tried to hand him his share.

"It's not mine," he said. "You may still have the touch but I'm out of energy."

I made Mr. Bruce a fan but after that night I could not inspire him to pursue pari-mutuel wagering. My devotion to the game as more than mere entertainment was deep enough to survive a Fairplex collapse but his dispirited attitude was not. And I knew he was part of a national decline. The west coast was not producing the basic elements supporting harness racing as a business.

The Hollywood meet was defunct and the continuation of a Los Alamitos meet was tenuous. Hollywood Park Operating Company (HOC) owned Los Alamitos. The New York Times (NYT) reported in 1986 that word was out, HOC would just as soon dump harness racing in Orange County. A short meet at a Sacramento Country

#BETONHARNESS

OUR FUTURE DEPENDS ON IT!

Fair two-turn track could be all that was left of west coast harness if Los Al and Fairplex failed.

Horsemen at Fairplex shared Mr. Bruce's grim attitude. Trainer/driver Mary Madland told the NYT, "Right now it's hard to attract qualified investors to the industry. It's in a hard transitory state right now... I'm risking a lot of money and basically my career by staying here and sticking with it."

Trainer/driver Howard Parker knew the sport suffered from problems with "image and credibility," he said. "Scandals over the years have eroded public confidence in harness racing." Despite such a reputation he insisted harness racing has cleaned up its act but that a lack of understanding on the part of the public continued to hurt it. He pointed to novice fans questioning important tactics in a race, like "slowing down a horse or keeping position behind another instead of passing. That's merely strategy; a driver is not purposely trying to lose."

The public was a problem but so were California thoroughbred interests. They were not giving harness racing many chances to survive. It was merely political charity when they gave up their racing dates at the Sacramento track for a brief harness meet. Fairplex harness was another story.

"This is not an easy decision," commissioner Richard Shapiro said. "The harness industry needs to be fortified. But we need some more time to study these proposals."

My final programs at Fairplex found me whistling past the graveyard. I swapped the absence of Mr. Bruce when I was invited to sit with Barry Meadow in his grandstand box. I knew Meadow from our connection to Gambling Times Magazine but we had more in common than gambling on harness racing; he was a successful comedy writer serious on a professional level about the product of humor.

From his box we witnessed the deserted seats and barren apron. While we starved for an overlay we jabbered about the situation as if we had a loving audience.

"Our attitude in this sad setting," I said to Meadow in my worst British accent, "is boorish at best."

"That's why they call you Boorish Karloff," he said. And we burst into laughter that echoed across the turf.

Hijinx followed. The pools were so pathetic that we played a game mocking the very source of our gambling (make note there is no simulcasting network at this time).

"Let's make the five horse the favorite in this race," I said.

"Close to another or a supreme leader?"

It did not matter. Just for laughs we invaded the win pool and made the five horse 1-9. We would cancel the bet once the new odds were posted and then we passed the pittance offered in the field.

The Diary of Bridgette M., Part 10

MONDAY

Tonight, at the NA meeting, Paul brought a cake with white frosting, two candles, and the word Bridge scrawled across the top in green icing. He set the cake on the table next to the coffee pot but did not make a speech or anything; he didn't need to. Everyone got the picture. Through tears, I asked him if there was a limit of six letters at the bakery. Someone, I think it was Dennis, said he liked it; Bridge, like a bridge between two months, then two years, and then infinity and beyond. I heard laughter, a beautiful sound.

Paul slipped a note in my hand; Tomorrow morning. Pick you up at 9.

TUESDAY

When I climbed into his pickup and shut the side door, he said, 10 short. I was confused until he tapped his belly and said his target was losing 30 pounds, but he only made 20. Then he added that he would make his goal between the Ozempic injections and barn work.

Are we going to your farm? He nodded. Horses? He said no, but there would be four in two months. We were silent on the six-mile drive. He slowed and turned into a blacktop drive between a white fence, which led to a picture postcard scene. It was a two-story, white farmhouse with a wraparound porch. To the right were three barns. Behind and between, I noticed a strip of a racetrack.

Paul stopped the truck halfway down the driveway, did not look at me, and said that what we do here is private. I can never participate in harness racing. My ban is a lifetime. I deserve it and could have gone to jail, but that is a long story for another time, another life. Today is about what we will do. His use of the word WE sounded good.

He explained that the plan was straightforward. Yearling sales are in two months. Yearlings are 1-year-old potential racehorses. Using my mother's married name, I will purchase four filly trotters. The money is from the 20 acres we sold. We will train them, but we won't race them. In early June, we will sell them using the internet and videos of their training. I asked him what my part was. He said this was also straightforward; when the yearlings arrive at the farm, I could switch my Burger King job for a job tending to the four horses.

Several questions popped into my brain. What if I relapse? How do I get here and home? Do I live here or at home? What happens in June when he sells the horses? Who is going to drive the horses? Am I ready for this responsibility after only four weeks of cleaning stalls? Paul seemed to read my mind and said he knew my mind was buzzing, but this is good buzzing, much better than hunting drugs.

WEDNESDAY

Daily NA meetings are tricky. At first, I did not enjoy going, but then I was okay going. At some point, if you are lucky, the NA meetings are a blessing. We are never out of the woods. The failure rate is high, very high. When we relapse, the ordinary world eventually loses patience with us, but the NA group is always there and understands our failures. A guy once said in a meeting that we are all broken people, but for an hour or two in NA, there is enough unbrokenness to feel a little more together. He OD'd two weeks ago.

Regarding brokenness, let me tell you about Paul's family. Of the six closest members of his family, the only one who did not carry a suitcase filled with problems is dead. His grandfather, the horseracing man, was a solid citizen who amassed a large dairy farm but branched out into other ventures. His 84-year-old grandmother is a television religious fanatic whom Paul said is screechy and preachy. His grandparents had two children, a boy named Richard, who died driving home drunk from a high school graduation party, and Paul's mother, who got pregnant at 16. His unidentified father immediately skipped town. Paul's mother stayed at home all her life because of mental difficulties. She also has weight issues and uses a wheelchair.

I added that he forgot to mention lying. One of the worst side effects of addiction is lying. Paul nodded again and said that his horse plan was simple this time. Get some babies close to racing and sell them. In horse racing, this is called pin hooking... The money doesn't matter with these horses. It's all covered. If the horses don't sell for profit, so what? He said that when you take money from the equation, this little sport is fun and interesting, and the horses are special.

THURSDAY

This morning, Paul repeated that his grandfather was his connection to the sport. His grandfather raced on the county fair circuit. Paul was a willing student. He said that the best days of his life were until he got out of his teens and into crystal meth. His grandfather had high hopes for his grandson and took it hard when Paul got kicked out of the game.

I asked what we would do for the next month or two until he bought the rest of the yearlings. He answered that we would have plenty to do since the barns and the track had been idle for about 10 years. I asked who the third person was; he just said it was a guy from town. Then he handed me a list.

I remember some of the list: overhaul tractor (sent to Ray Peterson), overhaul Kubota, refurbish graders, work on the track, barn #2 for horses, cut a window in the rear of each stall, build hinged window covers, new stall gates, rubber mats on walls of all stalls. Build two turnout paddocks in the infield, organize harnesses and equipment, and clean out Barn #1. Inspect the path to the rear of the property and into Jim C acreage, and order hay and straw.

There were other items on his list. Some made sense, but some of the items raised questions. I pointed to the "inspect path" item. He answered enthusiastically that he always believed horses got bored going in circles. There is a straight path from the barn into the neighbor's property, and it's over a half mile. I'll ensure its smooth and safe so I can take the horses straight.

I thought going straight sounded pretty good.

FRIDAY

Today was power washing day at the farm, a heavy-duty, gas-powered sprayer. We took everything in Barn #2 out into the climbing sun and spread it out. I mean everything: tools, equipment, jog carts, a refrigerator from the tack room. Paul blasted everything. Then he went inside the barn to hit the ceiling, walls, and floor, blasting off old paint, cobwebs, decades of dirt, and grime. He finished by blasting the outside of the barn. He turned off the motor and said that we would put them back together as things dried tomorrow.

When I told him that it was kinda fun, he nodded and said that fun was what he wanted. Last time with horses, he was chasing the dragon every day. Day after shitty day, scrape up the money, shoot, and snort. I know how that goes. Nothing matters except the next high, nothing. We get where stealing, dealing, and hustling are all that matters.

I added that he forgot to mention lying. One of the worst side effects of addiction is lying. Paul nodded again and said that his horse plan was simple this time. Get some babies close to racing and sell them. In horse racing, this is called pin hooking. We could be growing three-foot pine trees and re-selling them to the public when they are six-foot Christmas trees. The money doesn't matter with these horses. It's all covered. If the horses don't sell for profit, so what? He said that when you take money from the equation, this little sport is fun and interesting, and the horses are special.

Lit De Rose blossoms in leg one of the Blue Chip Matchmaker Series

Lit De Rose and driver Scott Zeron converted on a pocket trip to victory in the first of three $40,000 divisions in the first leg of the Blue Chip Matchmaker Series at MGM Yonkers Raceway on Friday (March 15) night. The veteran Quebec-bred mare has been a constant at Yonkers over the last few years and won for the first time with the combination of Zeron in the bike and Hall of Famer Mike Lachance as the conditioner.

Lit De Rose left from post 2 at the outset, and Zeron took control of the action late on the opening turn before yielding to Delitfulcatherin N and driver Jordan Stratton off the opening bend. The pace was rapid with an opening panel of :27.3.

Stratton used his advantage to slow the pace to :57.2 by the half, and that got driver George Brennan, behind 1-2 choice Mikala's attention, as he guided the 6-year-old mare to the outside on a coverless mission. Delitfulcatherin N picked up the bit and the pace in the third quarter, not allowing the favorite to get close enough with a :27.3 sprint to hit three-quarters in 1:25 with a clear edge.

Off the final turn Mikala weakened enough to give Zeron all the room he would need, and Lit De Rose clearly knew exactly what to do, as she marched on by the pace-setter after angling out to score in 1:53.2. Delitfulcatherin N was a clear second, with Mikala holding off Violets Rainbow for the third spot.

Sent off as the 8-5 second choice in the field, Lit De Rose returned $5.20 to win while keying a $84 exacta, a $136.50 triple and a $33.40 superfecta for a 10-cent wager. Owned by breeder Guy Corbeil, Lit De Rose was a winner for the second time in three starts this year, and with the victory, has moved within $37,000 of reaching $1 million in career earnings.

Tony's Mom and Yannick Gingras got favorites on the board in the second $40,000 flight, going wire-to-wire from the pole position to a 1:53.4 victory. Tony's Mom, a 5-year-old by Heston Blue Chip, dissuaded other leavers on the first turn with Gingras able to guide her to a soft first two fractions of :28 and :57.2 with the field lined up in post order.

Karma Seelster and Jordan Stratton, the 6-5 second choice in the field, moved with purpose late on the third turn but was kept at a safe distance by the winner as she set a comfortable 1:25.1 three-quarters and appeared to have something in reserve heading into the final bend. Gingras called on the Per Engblom-trained Tony's Mom in the stretch, and she responded in kind, drawing clear with a :28.3 final quarter. Treacherous Penny, the pocket-sitter from the start, had ample room and was good enough for the place spot, with Karma Seelster holding Crème Delight at bay late for the show.

Owned by Morrison Racing Stables and Brian Gordon, Tony's Mom was winner for the third time in six tries this year and returned $3.60 as the public choice while keying an exacta worth $21.20, a triple of $23.40 and a 10-cent superfecta for $3.37.

For three-quarters of a mile 6-5 favorite Incaseyou didnt know and driver Andrew McCarthy appeared to be spinning their wheels and going nowhere in the third $40,000 grouping, then the homestretch came and suddenly they turned on the jets and overpowered the field to score in 1:53.3.

Racine Bell had the pole with Jason Bartlett, and they were intent on getting the lead, spurning any ideas that Brent Holland, behind Coachellabound N, or Yannick Gingras, guiding Intothemysticmoon, may have had. Bartlett's decision to seat his rivals came at a price as Racine Bell hit the opening quarter in a brisk :27.1. Though Bartlett did get control of the second quarter, pacing in just 30 seconds, his $1.1 million winner was ripe for the picking in the second half.

Gingras moved first before the half and amped up the pressure on the pace-setter, forcing three quarters in 1:25 while right on the flank of the 5-2 Racine Bell. McCarthy at this juncture was gapping cover enough to allow Coachellabound N and Holland enough room to squeeze out and inevitably force the favorite into a wider stance.

Racine Bell began to tire late on the final turn, and Gingras seized on the opportunity to push Intothemysticmoon into the lead. Gingras kept his mare going right to the final strides, but McCarthy's Always B Miki-sired mare found the courage to get up in the final stride. Intothemysticmoon settled for second, with Dougs Babe A late on the scene for third ahead of Man Dontforget Me.

Trained by Cory Stratton and owned by James Magno and Joseph Fonte, Incaseyou didnt know was a winner for the first time in four starts this year. As the public choice, Incaseyou didnt know returned $4.60 and keyed a $13.40 exacta, $75 triple and $16.35 superfecta for a 10-cent wager. Incaseyou didnt know pushed her career bank account above $500,000 with the victory.

The Blue Chip Matchmaker prelims continue through Friday (April 12) before the $125,000 added final takes place on Monday (April 22).

Grand Circuit action at MGM Yonkers Raceway resumes on Monday night (March 18) with four $50,000 splits of the first round of the MGM Borgata Pacing Series for horses and geldings in races 3, 4, 6 and 8 on the 12-race program. Monday's card will also have a $6,058.90 Pick 5 carryover, and that will also bump the normal $10,000 Monday guaranteed pool in the sequence to $20,000.

The guarantee in the Pick 5 is being offered as part of the United States Trotting Association's Strategic Wagering Program. Free past performances for the Pick 5, courtesy of TrackMaster, will be available here. The Pick 5, which begins in race 5, has a takeout rate of 20 per cent.

MGM Yonkers Raceway is currently operating on a Monday through Friday live racing schedule with post time each night at 7 p.m. (EDT).

'Mariner' sails to fourth straight at Big M

Is Mariner Seelster the inspiration for the phrase: "You're not getting older, you're getting better?"

Probably not. But it certainly fits.

The remarkable war horse won again Friday night (March 15) at The Meadowlands, upping his win streak to four in a Meadowlands Amateur Driving Club 2 event on the pace.

The 15-year-old gelded son of Camluck—M T Freedom, permitted to race only because horses beyond the age of 14 are eligible to perform in fair or amateur dashes in New Jersey, was roughed up four-wide into the first turn, finally made the top while parked at the half in a sizzling :54.3, then drew clear of his foes at the head of the stretch before going on to a sparkling 1:52.3 score.

"He's as sound and happy as he's ever been," said winning trainer Travis Alexander of 'Mariner,' who made the 440th start of his career. "You can see his ears up during the mile and we couldn't be more amazed by him than we are. He loves his job, that's for sure."

Mariner Seelster now has 74 lifetime wins, good for a bankroll of just under $1.02 million for owners Fiddler's Creek Stables, Alexander Racing Stable, D'Elegance Stable and T L P Stable. He paid $4.20 as the even-money favorite despite leaving from post 9 in the 9-horse field. Throwing Copper finished 3½ lengths behind the winner in second with Yayas Hot Spot N third.

"What can I say?" said winning driver Tony Beltrami. "He's an absolute beast. He is a true professional that loves to race and to win and is as strong and sound as most horses half his age. I'm truly grateful to the owners, and to Travis Alexander and his team, for the opportunity to drive him."

PURPLE POWER: Leading driver Dave Miller gave his fans some serious returns after guiding the winners of the last three races on the card. Miss Chantilly N ($29.40 to win), Oh Coffee Bean ($6.80) and the previously winless Ferragamo Hanover ($26.60) scored in the 12th, 13th and 14th dashes, respectively, which gave Miller's followers the Late Double ($96.60) and Pick-3 ($1,045.60).

A LITTLE MORE: Troy Beyer and Todd McCarthy each had a driving double. After last Saturday's parimutuel betting platform problems stopped The Big M's streak of 12 straight $3-million handles, betting got back on the beam Friday as $3,265,089 was put in play on the 14-race card.

Plainridge Park will offer $37,500 handicapping contest series

As an added attraction for customers who will be attending the upcoming live harness racing season at Plainridge Park that kicks off on Monday (April 15), the racing division at Plainridge will be offering a series of six handicapping contests that have a total value of $37,500 and will run from March through September.

The contest is free to enter but you must be at least 18 years of age to play. Entry forms will be available at the program stand at the track starting at 4 p.m. the day prior to each contest.

The slate of races being offered covers some of the premier events on this year's racing schedule and will offer a real challenge for the field of players. There are five preliminary legs of this contest with a bonus "invitational" round to close it out. Anyone entering any four of the five 2024 handicapping contests from March 30 through Aug. 24 will receive an automatic entry to participate in the invitational.

Below is a list of all the handicapping contest races this year:

Saturday (Mar 30) — $5,000 World Cup

Saturday (April 20) — $5,000 Derby Prep

Friday (May 31) — $5,000 Penn Mile

Saturday (June 22) — $7,500 Summer Solstice

Saturday (Aug 24) — $10,000 Travers

Friday (Sept 27) — $5,000 invitational

"We wanted to do something extra for our loyal customers who support the live racing product every day and felt this was a great way to provide a chance to win some big money at no cost to them," said Steve O'Toole, director of live racing at Plainridge Park. "Plus, it is a season-long contest with a final that will keep them engaged over the course of our meet. Hopefully it is well received and becomes an annual promotion moving forward."

Full contest rules will be available on site each day.

For more information, please feel free to email mutuels manager Andrew Tavares at Andrew.tavares@pennentertainment.com or racing services manager Lenny Calderone at Lenny.calderone@pennentertainment.com.

HHYF travel season soon to begin

With spring flowers blooming, the Harness Horse Youth Foundation (HHYF) is making final preparations for their busy summer travel schedule which begins officially at Shenandoah Downs on April 21.

“Actually, we have already started our 2024 efforts to promote and educate about the industry,” said Ellen Taylor, HHYF executive director. “Several 4-H groups in New Jersey have visited Freehold Raceway as well as me doing a few presentations to horse leaders. At HHYF, we are focused on our mission; 2024 is business as usual. The feeling of helping a young person experience harness racing for the first time is unmatched.”
