Rattle My Cage has become Annie Stoebe's ride or die

Perry and Annelee Soderberg's trotter is returning to the races after a two-year break.

When owners Perry and Annelee Soderberg of Soderberg Bloodstock LLC decided to bring Rattle My Cage back to the races after more than a two-year break, that included time in the breeding shed, their main focus, as always, was to listen to their horse.

"First of all, my wife Annelee and I, we love this horse, and we bought him as a yearling, so we want him to be happy and healthy and all of that," said Perry. "And, of course, he raced tremendously well, and he won the [2022] Graduate final easy. And when Sarah Svanstedt drove him and he won in [1]:50.2, she said, 'If I only knew that we were going that fast, I would have gone a little faster to get a [1]:49 mark on him.'"

The last start for Rattle My Cage was on Dec. 7, 2023, and after a qualifier early in May of 2024 followed by another in early July, according to Perry, trainer Ake Svanstedt said the horse really wasn't himself, so the Soderbergs moved on to plan B.

"He's a Love You horse with the French pedigree, and we were kind of hoping that the 6-year-old season would be even better... but there was something with the horse; the horse told us that he wasn't ready to do it again," Perry said. "So, we thought about some different options, and why not give him a chance as a stallion... And he benefited greatly from the break that we gave him, but it seemed to us that he really wanted to get back to do more than just breed mares.”

After having vets look over the son of Love You out of the Andover Hall mare Caress The Senses bred by Carter Duer, the Soderbergs decided to give racing another go.

“With his French blood there is a chance that he’d be competitive at this age also, and we want him to be happy and healthy, so we don’t have the same expectations,” Perry said. “We did stake him to everything because he’s that caliber of a horse, but we actually gave him to [trainer] Annie Stoebe because she ran a smaller barn, and she also is going to start riding the horse, and we want him, like I said, to be happy and healthy, and then he’ll let us know what he can do on the racetrack.

“Annie has the experience as a barrel racer, under saddle, and my wife used to ride, and you know, we grew up in that kind of environment where you mix these things, so we just wanted him, at this age, to try something different with a smaller barn.”

HRU caught up with Stoebe on her way home from The Meadowlands on Saturday afternoon (March 21) after Rattle My Cage’s second qualifier. She was “still on cloud nine from that qualifier.”

The now 8-year-old Rattle My Cage, driven by Tim Tetrick, finished second by three-quarters in 1:59.1 in his first qualifier of the year on March 14.

Perry and Annelee Soderberg.

For that first qualifier, after such a long layoff, Stoebe said she told Tetrick to take “Rattle” back off the gate and let him trot home, but the instructions were different for qualifier No. 2.

“When Timmy walked up to me, he’s like, ‘Annie, what’s the plan?’” Stoebe said. “I’m like, ‘He can qualify today.’”

Stoebe said she thought that Rattle My Cage must have heard that conversation, because he was raring to go, winning the qualifier under wraps by $3\frac{1}{4}$ lengths in 1:54.3.

“I haven’t used [Tetrick] much in the past, so I’m enjoying getting to know him a little better,” Stoebe said. “When I met him on the track after the qualifier and he was grinning from ear-to-ear, I knew we had made the right decision to put him back on his old friend.”

Tetrick apparently wasn’t the only one happy with the qualifier as approaching three-quarters, Rattle My Cage started to drop his head down.

“He does that when he’s playing with me in a training mile, he was playing with Timmy,” Stoebe said. “Perry and Annelee, said ‘Annie, he did the happy head.’ When he is happy and smiling, he just drops his head and floats.

“He’s the only horse I have ever raced without an overcheck.”

Sunday (March 22), the day after his triumphant qualifier, Stoebe rode Rattle My Cage for the first time and said it was as if he had been doing it his entire life.

“I’m telling you, that we were just there, and this horse loves Annie and loves [her boyfriend] Jeremy [Morrison], and he loves Martha [Palafox] who’s taking care of him, and he loves Annie’s dog [Sullivan, an English Mastiff] I mean, they’re playing all the time,” Perry said. “He’s in the first stall; he gets a lot of attention.

“He is so happy. So just by seeing him this way and enjoying his time on the track is reward enough for us... They love the horse as much as he loves them, so he’s in a very good spot right now, and that’s the plan, to see what he can do.”

Stoebe, 38, who has watched Rattle My Cage throughout his career, said she remembered what it was like when he arrived in her barn in October of 2025.

“So, when I walked in, I’m like, ‘Holy crap, this horse is giant,’” she said. “He has the most stunning face and when I walked in, I’m like, ‘I have this horse in my barn.’ To walk in and see a horse you’ve watched for how many years, and now he’s in my barn, was surreal.”

~ Annie Stoebe

Rattle My Cage, who Annie calls “Razzle Dazzle” is 16.1 hands high, just a little shy of stable star Elista Hanover, who is 16.2.

“So, it’s kind of sad, do you know Jeremy has only gotten to jog him three times?” Stoebe said with a laugh. “I am very selfish with [Rattle], he is my horse. He hugs me every day when we get off the track. He’s a very special horse, and I have a really, really special bond with him. He’s my man in horse form.”

For now, the plan is to race and breed Rattle My Cage.

“I spoke to Marcus Melander the other day, regarding Aetos Kronos [S], you know, they’re bringing him back again,” Perry said. “And he said that when he had his long break, it took him two qualifiers, and he said about three races, and then he started to pick up again, and he became good.

“We expect this to take a little time [with Rattle My Cage], and we’ll see what happens. But also, of course, we hope that he’ll breed a few mares. He’s available at Walnridge Farm. We’ll let the first crop tell us if there are some stars in there.”

Perry has probably evaluated over 70,000 yearlings in his impressive 30-plus-year career. Of the over 25,000 that he’s looked at in a paddock, his first encounter with Rattle My Cage is still clearly stamped in his memory.

“Rattle My Cage is the fastest horse I have ever seen in the paddock as a yearling,” Perry said. “He was going as fast as a horse can go. I don’t always look at speed in the paddock, I look at overall athleticism and attitude and a lot of other things, but by himself, he took off at the highest speed that I ever saw. And then John Duer shook the can just a couple of times, and he dipped his head and took off. I haven’t seen that any time before or after.”

Rattle My Cage, who sold under the name Lexingtonian for $40,000 at the 2019 Lexington Selected Yearling Sale, bred 29 mares in 2025 and his first foals are hitting the ground now.

“We’ll make further decisions, depending on how he feels and what he can do, but we’re aiming for the top-level racing like it’s been before, because in France, they race when they’re 10 in the top level, and some over here as well, so, that’s what we’re hoping for,” Perry said. “But we could also consider racing him in a little bit of a lower class, and wait for the first crop to show themselves on the track and see what they look like, what they can do, and then find a spot for him to go back to full-time stud when the time comes.

“This horse is so charismatic, and he had a following when he was on the track; the people just loved the horse, and we love him, and now Annie and Jeremy and the dog, Sullivan, love him, and the horse loves them. So, we want this beautiful, charismatic horse to enjoy things. He loves to train, race, and do this stuff, and that’s why we want to breed to him also, because Love You as a sire of sires is proven in Europe to be super good, and with his attitude, his mentality, his physique, his speed, and everything else, you know, he could be a very good stallion.”

Stoebe said she feels blessed to have Rattle My Cage in her barn.

“My biggest thing with him is he is one of the most intelligent horses I’ve ever been around in my life,” Stoebe said. “He’s a giant puppy dog to be around, and flawless on the track. We need more horses like him. You know, how many sires are coming back at 8 years old and racing? To me that shows what a good horse he really is. And why wouldn’t you breed for longevity and speed and brains? That’s what everybody wants, a horse with a good brain that trots fast and stays sound.

“He’s unreal. I love him. To say I love him is an understatement.”

RACING INTO THE FUTURE

with BOB DUFF

Horse Racing wants to steer clear of prediction market sites, but is that the wisest strategy?

by Bob Duff

Prediction markets are everywhere in the news when it comes to the sports betting industry. Falling into a gray area in which they are basically able to offer people sports betting without it being classified as sports betting, sites such as Kalshi and Polymarket are utilizing this loophole to operate within virtually every U.S. state, including those that haven't opted to legalize sports betting.

To date, though, these prediction market sites have stayed away from entering the horse racing prediction game for the most part.

Why? Well, there appears to be more than one reason why prediction markets haven't found a market for horse racing.

“Horse racing has a different legal paradigm than other sports offerings in the United States. Pari-mutuel wagering on horse racing is conducted under the Interstate Horseracing Act, which is a federal umbrella statute that essentially gives us a series of rights – call them intellectual property rights – in our content.”

~ Bill Carstanjen

First of all, the sports event contracts offered by prediction market sites tend to be an either/or option. For instance, in football, you can choose to back a yes or no option on whether the Kansas City Chiefs will win the Super Bowl in the next NFL season.

Even in game markets, the majority of sports offer a player two options when it comes to outcomes. Yes, the New York Yankees will beat the Boston Red. Or no, it's the Red Sox who will beat the Yankees.

Horse racing can have 10 or more entries in a race. Turning this into a yes or no option provided by a sports event contract would prove more complicated. Still, the prediction market sites have come up with event contracts on multi-participant sports such as golf or tennis, so it's not beyond the realm of possibility.

So why not horse racing then? Well, because the scenario is more complicated from a legal standpoint than traditional sports betting.

PREDICTION MARKETS FIGHTING IN COURT

Several states that offer legal and regulated sports betting are currently engaged in court battles with prediction market sites, seeking to have them banned from operating in the state.

The stumbling block, or the loophole in use, if you will, is that prediction markets are regulated by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, which is a federal entity. Sports betting sites operating in the U.S. market are all regulated by state governments.

Lawyers representing the prediction market sites argue that a state law can't override a federal law. However, that argument isn't going to fly when it comes to horse racing.

Horse racing is ruled by the Interstate Horseracing Act (IHA), which is also a federal law. This statute gives the horse racing industry control of where its product can be offered for wagering.

The majority of sports betting sites in the U.S. market don't offer horse racing wagering on their sites because of this fact. In a few states, there have been some agreements between sports betting operators and horse racing officials to carry wagering on horse racing, but it's very limited in scope.

Leaders in the horse racing industry are ready to go to court and fight it out with the prediction market sites if they attempt to enter into the horse racing game.

Bill Carstanjen, CEO of Churchill Downs, pointed this fact out during a recent earnings call with investors. And he further noted that his powerful company, operators of the Kentucky Derby as well as Twin Spires, one of the leading advance deposit wagering services in the U.S., won't allow any prediction market site to offer sports event contracts on the Kentucky Derby.

“Horse racing has a different legal paradigm than other sports offerings in the United States,” Carstanjen said. “Pari-mutuel wagering on horse racing is conducted under the Interstate

“We missed the mark with sports betting for the horse-racing industry. It’s a highly regulated form of gambling, and that’s something that’s still on the table for horse racing.”

~ Michele Fischer

Horseracing Act, which is a federal umbrella statute that essentially gives us a series of rights – call them intellectual property rights – in our content.”

Polymarket reportedly handled $1.2 million in event contracts on last year’s Kentucky Derby. If it or any other prediction market site tries to go there for the 2026 race, Carstanjen is prepared to shut them down.

“To take wagers across any forum, whether it be a sports wagering platform, another horse racing platform, or a prediction markets platform, you need our express consent,” Carstanjen said. “You can’t just do it without that.

“We haven’t agreed to provide our content to prediction markets.”

Interestingly, Twin Spires was able to use the reverse of this argument to win the right to offer ADW wagering in Michigan, even though state law there read that ADW could only be offered in conjunction with live racing. Michigan currently has no live racing product.

However, lawyers representing Twin Spires successfully argued that Michigan’s state law couldn’t override the federal IHA.

If prediction markets want to get into offering event contracts on horse racing, they’d better be prepared to negotiate with the racetrack operators. If they try to go ahead similarly to other sports, they can expect to hear from lawyers representing the horse racing industry.

“Prediction markets are not a part of the current mutual wagering on horse racing, nor would I expect them to be any time in the future,” Carstanjen said.

OTHER INDUSTRY ANALYSTS BELIEVE HORSE RACING SHOULD ENGAGE WITH PREDICTION MARKETS

There are others in the industry who believe that it would be wiser for horse racing to engage with the prediction market operators and find common ground.

One of those holding this opinion is Michele Fischer, a wagering consultant and vice president of SIS Content Services.

“We missed the mark with sports betting for the horse-racing industry,” Fischer said while speaking at the recent national HBPA conference at Oaklawn Park. “It’s a highly regulated form of gambling, and that’s something that’s still on the table for horse racing.”

Rather than viewing prediction markets as a threat, Fischer believes that it would be wiser to try to negotiate and see if there’s an avenue there to grow the sport.

“I think that the conversation needs to be a little wider,” Fischer said. “We sit here and look at all the threats, which they all can be. But where are those opportunities for this new market we’ve been talking about for 20 years?

“Where are all the eyeballs that we wanted on horse racing? What are they watching?”

GRASSROOTS PERSPECTIVE

with CHRIS LOMON

Nancy Gredig and standardbreds are birds of a feather

by Chris Lomon

As a caretaker, Nancy Gredig is polished and precise in her duties, methodical and measured the moment she walks into the barn. Outside of that world, she prefers to wing it, so to speak.

In a horse racing career that has spanned 40 years, Gredig is the consummate professional when it comes to her craft, a steady hand wherever she has plied her trade.

She also requires a steady hand for a hobby unrelated to the equine world.

“I am going to sound like a nerd, but when you get to a certain age, a lot of older people enjoy bird watching,” said Gredig, who hails from St. Thomas, ON, a 35-minute drive south of Western Fair Raceway, the half-mile oval in London. “In the spring, if I can, I go to Rondeau Provincial Park and spend hours there, looking out for all types of birds. I am a bird nerd.”

Gredig, who works in the barn of trainer John Pentland, is also a standardbred standout.

On Jan. 31, at the annual O’Brien Awards banquet, she was selected as the 2025 Caretaker of the Year, an honor that caught her off-guard.

“I wish they could give one to everybody who was nominated,” Gredig said. “I look around me – at the training center and track – and there are so many hard-working people who deserve it.”

“I knew that John and his girlfriend Sherri [Summer] were the ones who nominated me, so that is pretty special, too, when you know your employer was the person who nominated you. That meant a lot to me.”

There wasn’t much time to savor the moment.

“It felt like it was so quick, getting back to reality and getting back to work on Monday,” Gredig said. “But I was very surprised at receiving the award and it was just so amazing.”

New Image Media

Nancy Gredig, the winner of Canada’s Outstanding Groom Award for 2025, is to the left of Sorcha Seelster in the Woodbine Mohawk Park winner’s circle.

“I knew that John [Pentland] and his girlfriend Sherri [Summer] were the ones who nominated me [for the 2025 Caretaker of the Year, that I won], so that is pretty special, too, when you know your employer was the person who nominated you. That meant a lot to me.”

~ Nancy Gredig

Gredig, who takes care of Pentland trainees Sorcha Seelster, Swift Talker, Dirty Diana, Talbot Kristen, and Mist Amber, came back into the racing fold after some time spent outside of the sport.

All it took to draw her back was a phone call from a familiar voice, one question, and a quick response.

“I know people talk about it all the time, getting the racing bug,” she said. “I have had jobs outside of standardbred racing, working with other breeds of horses, on occasion. Before I started working for John, I worked for a few months at Old Navy, in one of their warehouses.”

The fashion world was not her forte – but she knew what was.

“When John contacted me and was looking for a groom – I had worked for him before – I didn’t think twice and was happy to jump back in,” Gredig said. “This industry is so rewarding and it is the only thing I have ever done that has made me feel happy and good.”

And that is exactly how the horses under Gredig are made to feel.

Pacers and trotters in the Pentland barn have an unabashed and enthusiastic cheerleader in their corner.

“I’m quiet, at least most of the time,” she said. “But there have been a few races over the years where I am kind of rooting on one of our horses. I don’t get loud, but I certainly get caught up in the moment on certain occasions. It can be so exciting.”

Does she think horses know when they have won?

“I don’t know, but I often wonder about that,” Gredig said. “Everyone around them is happy and they must know something is different when they get their picture taken. But I try to make them feel appreciated every day.”

Gredig has learned to navigate the challenging times with the understanding that such moments are inevitable, but not unconquerable.

“There are so many highs and lows,” she said. “John deals with young horses, so I can’t recall any time where I have had one of my horses claimed. But when a horse I look after gets sold, it’s tough when you don’t see their faces every day at the barn.

But some of them are fillies and mares, so it’s nice to know that after they go to the breeding shed, you have a chance to see their offspring racing.

“There can also be bad days when a horse isn’t at their best – they might be sick or hurt – and you hate to see that. They are such wonderful animals and all you hope for is that they are happy and well taken care of.”

That is certainly the case for the trio of former standardbreds – Elm Grove Operativ, Quick Tour, and Lyons Susan – Gredig, who is a huge proponent of equine aftercare, calls her own.

“Elm Grove Operativ is a horse I fostered and then adopted from New Start Standardbreds, a licensed charity in Ontario that plays a part along with OSAS in standardbred aftercare,” said Gredig of the 25-year-old son of Armbro Operative. “He made over $350,000 and raced for a lot of different trainers. He ended up being a foster fail, but I was so happy to have him back.”

Lyons Susan, an 18-year-old daughter of Camluck, is a familiar face.

“Over 10 years ago, I had my trainer’s license for a while,” Gredig said. “Lyons Susan was a mare who I raced, then leased as a broodmare. Now, I have her back.”

Quick Tour is a 9-year-old son of Mach Three, who went 5-5-3 from 24 career starts.

“I looked after Quick Tour when I worked for [trainer] Mark Horner,” Gredig said. “He was a nice horse. He was so good at 2. He won almost all his Grassroots starts, except when he was second to [champion and multiple stakes winner] Tattoo Artist. I ended up leaving Mark’s and I asked him that whenever Quick Tour retires, I would love to give him a home. It was so nice of Mark to remember and call me when that day arrived.

“I feel so fortunate to have these horses in my life.”

A sentiment that perfectly captures the contented mind of an award-winning, horse-caring, bird-loving individual.

THE DOWN UNDER DIARY

with ADAM HAMILTON

Why are female drivers regarded differently Down Under?

As opposed to the U.S., female drivers are commonplace in Australia.

by Adam Hamilton

It is a tale of two hemispheres.

Young Australian Tamsyn Potter's recent working holiday in the U.S. underlined the difference in perception and opportunities for female drivers compared to her homeland.

Females driving at the biggest meetings, in the marquee races and on some of the best horses is very much the norm in Australia now.

What a change from 50 years ago when not a single female held a harness racing driving license in Australia.

Now women are major players in every state.

Former Aussie and now U.S.-based Lauren Tritton touched on this when reflecting on Potter's U.S. stint.

"In Australia, female drivers are thrown in the deep end and it's sink or swim," Tritton said. "Over here, I still hear comments like 'You're a pretty good driver for a woman,' and I'm trying to change that.

"So, to see the Aussie girls [Potter and Shannon O'Sullivan] come over and put on a show was really pleasing."

Tritton herself has been a remarkable success story since making the U.S. home with husband, Shane, six years ago. And that's while juggling two kids, Levi and Emily.

Not only was she the leading money-winning female driver in the U.S. last year ($550,199) but she and another former Aussie, the Canadian-based Natasha Day, were second and third to Marie-Claude Auger as the most successful female drivers in North America.

Like most Aussies, Lauren started young, driving in Group 1 Grand Circuit races at just 17. She drove 920 winners in Australia and won a NSW Drivers' Premiership at just 22 before moving to the U.S. three years later.

Lauren emerged at a golden time for female drivers in Australia with so many trailblazers to thank before her.

None more so than the remarkable Kerryn Manning.

Manning, daughter of highly respected horseman Peter Manning, was a gifted talent from day one, but really rose to prominence in the late 1990s when she teamed with her dad's mighty trotter Knight Pistol.

When Knight Pistol won the 1997 Harley Davidson Trot in Norway, Kerryn became just the second female to drive a European Group 1 winner.

Kerryn boasts almost 4,500 career wins, by far the most by a female anywhere in the world; 43 of those have been at Group 1 level.

She is streets ahead of the next best, another Aussie, the unsung 60-year-old Lola Weidemann, with almost 3,200 wins.

Let this sink in... of the 42 females to drive more than 100 winners in a season at least once, 30 of those have been Australian.

Other headline acts have been Amanda Turnbull (14 seasons of 100 or more wins), while Jodi Quinlan, Weidemann, and Dani Hill have done it 11 times.

Turnbull, Quinlan, Hill, and Kate Gath are all still driving and well past 2,000 career wins.

Outside of Australia, only Canada's Mary McDonald and Germany's Rita Drees have topped 2,000 wins.

But it hasn't always been an Aussie dominance.

Australian harness historian John Peck cites Bea Farber's visit to Australia in 1979 to contest the World Driving Championship as an important moment.

"She drove a winner at Moonee Valley and people really took notice," he said. "The big question is why are females such a huge part of the driving ranks in Australia?"

"The elevation of Graeme Cochran to the Trotting Control Board (now Harness Racing Victoria) and the Australian Trotting Council (now Harness Racing Australia), which coincided with all the necessary rule changes and that World Driving Championship, was not insignificant.

"That said, the sheer unbridled passion of the pioneer State Women's Associations to gain acceptance coupled with the power of their family support networks represented an unstoppable force.

“Crowning it all on the world stage was Kerryn becoming only the second woman to win a European Grand Circuit race and then surpassing the world record of Drees.

“Much later, the growth of the pony trots [kids driving in pony races at harness meetings], also brought forth some real talent, most notably someone like Ellen Tormey [who now boasts over 1,300 wins]. The runaway success of the Teal promotion was perfectly timed as the revolution was well underway.

“I think it’s just the most amazing story, not just here, but seeing what Lauren [Tritton] and Natasha [Day] are doing in North America, too.”

While Kerryn has been the trailblazer, so many others have played crucial roles.

Margaret Frost, then wife of the Hall of Famer Vic Frost, was the first woman to drive a winner at Harold Park, an iconic track and the long-time home of NSW harness racing. She was also the first female to drive a winner in faster than a 2:00 minute mile rate.

Margaret’s credits also included being the first female to win a race during an Inter Dominion series when she won the 1981 consolation on Grand Thor at Harold Park.

A few years later, Victoria’s Anne Frawley was the first female driver to win an Australian Group 1 race on Vanderport in the

“ In Australia, female drivers are thrown in the deep end and it’s sink or swim. [In the U.S.], I still hear comments like ‘You’re a pretty good driver for a woman,’ and I’m trying to change that. So, to see the Aussie girls [Tasmyn Potter and Shannon O’Sullivan] come over and put on a show [on International Women’s Day at The Meadowlands] was really pleasing. ”

~ Lauren Tritton

1985 New South Wales Derby. The next year she drove the same pacer to finish second to Village Kid in the Brisbane Inter Dominion final.

Kellie Kersley became the first female to drive a Miracle Mile winner on Norms Daughter in 1995 and then Quinlan did the same on Sokyola in 2004.

Gath won almost every major race that matters and three Victorian Metropolitan Driver titles, along with Turnbull’s years of dominance in NSW.

Natalie Rasmussen arguably played as big a role as any, propelled through her profile as trainer/driver of the great Blacks A Fake, who is in talks with Leap To Fame as Australia’s all-time greatest pacer.

Although Rasmussen did so much more than that, especially during her time in partnership with Mark Purdon winning loads of major races on star horses, the Blacks A Fake union was special.

The best horse in the sport for about five years was not just trained, but also driven by a female.

As the astute media man of the time, Bill Hutchison, so accurately said: “Nat has driven him over 100 times, and in the biggest races in the game, and given him a great trip every time.

“Despite all the pressure that went with him, she just took it in her stride and delivered great drives, big race after big races, year after year.”

A tale of two hemispheres has been flipped on its head courtesy of a “zero to hero” Down Under revolution.

MANE ATTRACTION

A bit of catching up

by John Berry

Our free-for-allers are getting ready for their blazing miles over the ovals of North America and our youngsters are getting ready to embark on their, hopefully, great racing careers that are just a few lengths down the track heading to a starting gate near you. So, while we have this brief moment in time, we'll catch up on a couple of the many inquiries received about our great, but now fragile, history.

The first inquiry comes from Gary A from Florida, who was "coerced" into enjoying his very first Little Brown Jug last season.

Gary asked, "Can you tell me a little something interesting about the Little Brown Jug, and how it got its name? By the way, the 'Jug' will be a yearly tradition for me now."

Actually, the history of the famed Little Brown Jug event began to take shape many years prior to the foaling of the horse, Little Brown Jug.

The horse, Little Brown Jug was foaled (ca.) 1875 but the story leading up to his foaling dates back around 26 years prior to that, 1849, with the "foaling" – actually, birth, of one William H. McCarthy – familiarly known as "Knapsack."

McCarthy was not an educated youngster growing up – he couldn't read or write – but his knowledge of horses became "Harvard-like" as he learned the trade from horseman Dan Mace.

He started at the ground up and the lowest rung on the ladder, bringing all his belongings in a knapsack.

McCarthy became recognized by his peers as one of the elite horsemen in terms of knowledge, patience, and love of his horses and earned accolades throughout the land.

One of McCarthy's prized students was a Tom Hall gelding by the name of Little Brown Jug.

On Aug. 24, 1881, Little Brown Jug forever etched his name in the record books in Hartford, CT as McCarthy drove the then 6-year-old to a world record performance of 2:11 3/4, eclipsing the record of the now fabled (and blind) Sleepy Tom, who had achieved a 2:12 1/4 record in Chicago approximately two years earlier.

Indeed, Little Brown Jug was one of the premier performers of his era, winning 17 of 24 races.

This, of course, was in the days of the high-wheeled sulky and McCarthy also had several other Currier and Ives worthy horses such as Hopeful and Charlie Ford. And, when the bicycle wheel sulky was invented, McCarthy campaigned the pacers Searchlight and Frank Egan along with the trotters Pro and Norman B, among others.

McCarthy died in a race in Carrollton, IL in 1917.

The horse, Little Brown Jug, died in 1899 but his name – and subsequent fame – did not begin to emerge for lasting historical purposes until some four decades later.

In 1937, the Delaware Agricultural Society voted to move the County Fair Grounds site to the edge of some land in Delaware, OH.

A couple of years later, a half-mile track was constructed by a local contractor, R. K. McNamara, who designed and built the now iconic half-mile oval.

Joe Neville and Hank Thomson were the gents that got things rolling, along with a gentleman who resided at 219 Fountain Street – just a few blocks away – Wayne Smart, known around the racing circles as "Curly."

In early 1940, the Delaware County Fair was but two years old and received an invite to put the finishing touches on their year-old racetrack and join harness racing's elite traveling show – The Grand Circuit.

There were many skeptics that cautioned against accepting the invite and that the facility could never be ready in such a short time to host an event of this magnitude, after all, there had not been one single structure built on the property when the first fair was held in 1938.

Neville was an attorney whose family had interests in the sport – thus the invitation – while Thomson was the editor of the Delaware (Ohio) Gazette.

Neville, outwardly, agreed and told Thomson and other business leaders that he'd turn the invitation down and send the refusal by telegram as there was a 24-hour window for acceptance.

A couple of days later, a bulletin came over the Associated Press wire saying that Delaware had been awarded the Grand Circuit dates.

Thomson immediately called Neville in disbelief and Neville replied, "Oh my heavens, I plumb forgot to send the telegram."

At that time, the Grand Circuit had somewhat of an emphasis on trotters and the Little Brown Jug was created to be a pacing event.

Neville was the head of the Little Brown Jug Society and Thomson was its secretary/treasurer with the new name for the stake – the Little Brown Jug – coming from a newspaper contest held.

The horse, Little Brown Jug, died in 1899 but his name – and subsequent fame – did not begin to emerge for lasting historical purposes until some four decades later.

Major Landing Parsons suggested the name honoring one of the great horses in our sport's grand history reaching back a half century.

The very first year, there were a couple of $2,000 stakes events, unheard of then as the normal fair fare was $400 or $500.

One other note, Neville chose Hank Thomson to be the race secretary, who didn't know anything about horses, and Neville knew it.

Years later, Thomson asked Neville why he wanted a race secretary like himself with absolutely no experience and Neville, shaking all of his 350 pounds said, "I figured that that way we'd get all the publicity we needed from the Delaware Gazette.

After a couple of $10,000 Jug Previews in 1944 and '45, the first official Little Brown Jug was contested in 1946 with Ensign Hanover winning for Curly Smart.

The Little Brown Jug has been an iconic racing event ever since.

From Luke in Minneapolis, MN comes a question about some Dan Patch memorabilia.

"My father has left me quite a bit of stuff on Dan Patch and I would like to know what it's value might be along with some history," Luke said.

For the history of Dan Patch memorabilia and his career, simply go on the internet and google Dan Patch.

Among the memorabilia are Dan Patch watches, tobacco, sheet music (The Dan Patch Two-Step), and washing machines, among the many.

But here's some interesting points for you.

Dan Patch's sire was the champion stallion, Joe Patchen bred to the mare, Zelda, and, upon foaling, was so crippled up in his back legs that some felt it would be better if he just expired after his arrival on April 29, 1896.

But, after a bit of time, he was pulling a cart through the wintry streets of Oxford, IN giving free sleigh rides.

His racing career had not, of course, begun as yet but, by 1902, there were offers on the table to buy Dan Patch and, he finally was sold and was about to embark on a "journey across America" and, eventually, into immortality that continues to this very day.

Back in those days, there was one item used on occasion to gain the most speed out of the standardbred horse, a sulky windshield.

Dan Patch had already begun that journey to immortality – being so fast that horses very rarely entered against him in races and, thus, he was relegated to speed exhibitions and time trials, enabling untold amounts of wealth to his owner, M. W. Savage, in whatever purses were offered, along with attendance gate receipts, and endorsements.

Savage was also the owner of the International Stock Farm.

But Dan Patch still had some competition as the very fast Prince Alert could do a bit of pacing on his own.

At the old Empire City Track, now Yonkers Raceway, on Sept. 23, 1903, Prince Alert, one of harness racing stars of that era, attempted to beat the world record of 1:59 held by Dan Patch.

Prince Alert annihilated the record by two seconds but after the windshield was outlawed, the record was erased from the books, along with many others, as well.

Dan Patch was also a victim of the windshield ban as his historic performance of racing a mile in 1:55 was also erased.

Dan Patch did accomplish a mile in 1:55 1/4 and when the final word came down of that 1:55 mile being disallowed, Savage renamed his farm the International 1:55 Stock Food Farm.

ALL OVER ONTARIO

with MATTHEW LOMON

Unwavering family support keeps Melissa Loyer grounded

by Matthew Lomon

No matter where on a map Melissa Loyer's life in standardbred racing takes her, she can always rely on family to make her feel at home.

"It's the little things, like my parents saying, 'Good job. Keep up the good work,'" Loyer said. "They encourage me every day – even to this day – 'Good luck tonight. Where are we racing? We're watching.'

"When I win, I wave. That's always to my parents. That's our thing: 'Make sure you wave even though we're not there.'"

That unwavering support from her father Luc Loyer, a long-time – and still active – horseman based in Gatineau, QC, her mother Sylvia, and sister Victoria, who's go-to advice – or jest – following a second-place finish is "do better," has given Melissa the inspiration to dream big.

Just as importantly, it has been the foundation that steadies her when doubt creeps in.

"I'm really glad my family, my close friends, and even myself believed in me because some days I was just like, 'Oh, my god, I can't do this,'" Melissa said. "I don't remember how many times I told myself that, but my dad was always positive and telling me it was going to work out. That's why he pushed me and encouraged this whole time. So, now, when my horses do well, I think, 'Where would I be without my dad?'"

Luc, having lived the life himself, has been a rock-solid presence in his daughter's corner from the beginning.

As Melissa recalls, she "always had horses" with her dad, even when she was working elsewhere.

While that was the norm for the child of a horseman, Melissa's pursuit of a career in racing didn't ignite until COVID-19 struck in 2020.

Wasting no time, she packed her bags for Florida where she would pick up work under veteran trainer Paul Holzman.

"When I win, I wave. That's always to my parents. That's our thing: 'Make sure you wave even though we're not there.'"

~ Melissa Loyer

After a brief tenure in Holzman's barn, Melissa journeyed to the Buckeye State to continue her craft at Northfield Park.

She spent a total of five years in the United States before returning home to Ottawa in July of last year – a move that changed the course of her life for good.

"I worked alongside my dad when I got back and I had a horse or two with him," Melissa said. "Then Rideau [Carleton] closed for the winter, and I was actually going to come up here [to the Hamilton area] to work for somebody, but my dad encouraged me to go do it on my own."

Though apprehensive about the prospect of a solo venture, Melissa was game to meet the challenge head on.

"My dad went off to Florida and pretty much said, 'You have to take these horses. Go try it. You know what you're doing. Give it your all,'" she said. "I'm nervous, but I couldn't say no."

Equipped with Luc's truck and trailer, Melissa set course for Golden Horseshoe Lanes – a standardbred training facility five minutes from Flamboro Downs – and never looked back.

"I came up here and I had six," Melissa said. "Now, I'm up to 10 because I've been claiming a few, the first being Missy's Magic Man. He's been really good to me and been working really hard. I think it's paying off; I work night and day racing everywhere."

"I'm really happy my parents encouraged me, pushed me and supported me through it all."

Luc's influence has remained a powerful force in Melissa's odyssey from part-time horsewoman to full-time conditioner.

Whether it be a phone call before or after a race, or the kind of tentpole wisdom only a parent can bestow, Melissa is eternally grateful for the wealth of lessons and reinforcement from her greatest inspiration.

"My dad always told me that your horse's attitude is the biggest thing," she said. "It's about getting to know them, knowing the animal. When you take them to the track, you get a feel for them, and you can tell right away by the horse's attitude and performance if something is off."

“It is a really good, exhausting feeling when I go to bed and my head hits the pillow and I’m like, ‘Wow, I’m tired but it was worth it, and I can’t wait to get up and do it again.’ I love it.”

~ Melissa Loyer

“It’s about making sure your horse feels good, they’re well taken care of, and they’re happy. They want to do good when they’re being well taken care of. Every day, when I go into the barn and all my horses are happy to see me – that’s a big thing for me.”

Melissa’s roster of racehorses has plenty of reason to be in good spirits after a banner opening to 2026.

In less than three months on the Ontario winter tour, Melissa has already blown past previous career-highs across the board.

Racing primarily at The Raceway at Western Fair District and Flamboro, Melissa’s early-season resume includes nine wins, eight seconds, and four thirds across 45 starts, good for nearly $50,000 in prizes (all recorded at time of submission).

However, the one victory that stands above the rest came March 9 courtesy of a pacer holding a special place in Melissa’s heart, Bettorholdontight.

“My dad had him for quite a while at Rideau; he’s definitely one of my favorite horses in the barn,” Melissa said of the 7-year-old bay, adding with a laugh, “He’s got the best personality, he’s just so fun. He’s like a little kid and he’s very needy and he gets a lot of treats. He definitely gets what he wants, he’s a very spoiled horse.”

The win in question – a three-quarters-of-a-length decision in 1:55.2 – represented Melissa’s first triumph at Woodbine Mohawk Park.

Unfortunately, she couldn’t be there to witness the milestone, but that didn’t dampen the celebration one bit.

“I was in London in the parking lot, and I was with [trainer] Ben Hollingsworth and a couple other guys and I’m yelling,” she recalled fondly. “I had one in London, so I couldn’t be at Mohawk... no words could describe the feeling, but I always knew the horse could do it.

“There’s no better horse I could have gotten that win with. I wish I was there. He’s like my best friend, he’s just so great. And having Billy Davis [Jr.], who drove for me in Ohio, be the one driving for me at Mohawk and getting me my first win, that was just amazing.”

The moment, while in a different setting and under entirely different circumstances, stirred up the same emotions Melissa experienced after securing her first career win with Sweet Lou pacer Vanilla Malted at her hometown track of Rideau Carleton on May 14, 2023.

“I still have that same feeling,” she said. “There’s no other feeling like it in the world. It never gets old.”

With so much season left, the opportunities for Melissa to continue her ascent are endless.

Among the goals she hopes to achieve is growing her stable to 12 – her favorite number – and acquiring more horses capable of competing at Mohawk.

“I think that’s everybody’s goal and dream to race on that ‘A circuit,’” she said. “That’s definitely what I’m aiming towards.”

For all the quantifiable results she hopes to rein in, Melissa takes equal pride in the successes that won’t show up on the stat sheet.

“As long as they race the best they can, walk off the track sound, and then after the race their ears are up and they’re ready to go home, that’s when I know I did a good job,” she said.

Doing right by the horses and people who believe in her has given Melissa every bit of confidence that she is exactly where she’s meant to be.

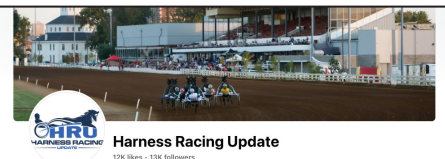

“It is a really good, exhausting feeling when I go to bed and my head hits the pillow and I’m like, ‘Wow, I’m tired but it was worth it, and I can’t wait to get up and do it again,’” she said. “I love it.”

McIntyre draws four fields; overnight purses on the rise

by Yonkers Raceway media

Harness racing's Grand Circuit action for 2026 kicks off tonight (March 27) at MGM Yonkers Raceway with four $50,000 divisions of the Ursula McIntyre Pacing Series for fillies and mares.

Formerly known as the Blue Chip Matchmaker Series, this event has been renamed after McIntyre, who worked at Yonkers Raceway for over 30 years, spending much of that time as personal assistant to former owner Tim Rooney. When MGM took over, she became racing manager and was a vital cog in the operation of the track. She retired in 2025.

Defending champion Aardie B Miki N begins the defense of her title from post 4 in the final split (race 5) with Jason Bartlett will drive the daughter of Always B Miki for trainer Per Engblom. So far this year Aardie B Miki N has won three of her six starts, including editions of the local F&M invitational pace on Jan. 23 and Feb. 6. She faces the likes of Walkin On Sunshine (post 6, Scott Zeron for Brett Pelling), who has won both of her tries to date in 2026 and captured two prelims in this series a year ago before she broke while leading in the final.

Rocket Deo (post 6, Dexter Dunn for Pelling) heads the first section in the opening race on the program. Rocket Deo was a three-time prelim winner in the event in 2025 before she wound up fourth in the final. She returned to Yonkers last Friday (May 20) and won the F&M invitational pace in 1:54.

Bath Bomb (post 4, Andy McCarthy for Engblom) makes her first start of 2026 in the third test (race 3). A force in the Kentucky Sire Stakes program a year ago, Bath Bomb qualified well twice at The Meadowlands coming into this contest. In other news from Yonkers, starting with the draw for Monday, March 30 (entry box closed at 3 p.m. EDT on March 24) all overnight purses will increase at least 10 per cent, with some lower classes seeing an increase of more than 15 per cent. For example, the purse for $15,000 claimers will be bumped from $12,000 to $15,000. The top invitational races will now go for $39,000.

The purse increase is being made in conjunction with the SOA of New York.

“We always want to do what we can to support our lower-class horses,” said race secretary Joe Frasure, Jr. on the reason some classes received larger increases.

MGM BORGATA PACING SERIES STARTS MONDAY WITH FIVE $50,000 DIVISIONS

Five $50,000 divisions of the first leg of the MGM Borgata Pacing Series will be featured on Monday night (March 30) at MGM Yonkers Raceway.

2025 series champion Mossdale Ben N drew the outside post 6 for driver Jim Marohn, Jr. and trainer Peter Tritton in the fourth flight (race 6). His competition includes two-time Dan Patch Award recipient and last year’s Aria Invitational Pace winner Captain Albano from the pole position for Todd McCarthy and Noel Daley and recent local invitational victor Whichwaytothebeach from the 5-hole for Matt Kakaley and Travis Alexander.

Soho Firestone A made the final of the MGM Grand Prix Series at Yonkers late in 2025 and makes his first appearance of 2026 in the first grouping (race 2) from post 1 for driver Jason Bartlett and Doug Dilloian, Jr. Also in that tilt is Celtic Spirit N, a top open horse from Northfield who has come east into the care of trainer/driver Joe Bongiorno and has post position 4.

Last year’s MGM Grand Messenger Stakes champion Twisted Destiny landed post 3 for driver Dexter Dunn and Chris Ryder in the second split (race 3). Redwood Hanover, another horse who was in the MGM Grand Prix Series final back in December, starts from post 1 for Bartlett and Per Engblom and qualified last Saturday at The Meadowlands in 1:50.3.

Huntinthelastdolar tops the third section (race 4) for Bartlett and Engblom. A finalist a year ago in both the Borgata and Grand Prix finals, Huntinthelastdolar won his lone qualifier to prep for this race in 1:52.2 at The Meadowlands on March 14. He’s in against former MGM Grand Messenger Series victor Sweet Beach Life from post 4 for Kakaley and Alexander along with Verdun, the third-place finisher in last year’s Borgata final, from the pole for trainer/driver Pat Lachance and Catalpa Rescue A, who was third in the Grand Prix final and departs from post 5 for Scott Zeron and Scott Blackler.

Coaches Corner, who drew post 6, gives Bartlett and Engblom another main contender in the last Borgata test (race 7). Coaches Corner captured the MGM Grand Prix Series final to conclude a campaign that saw him earn almost $700,000 in 2025. His competition includes Chase H Hanover, the second-place finisher in last year’s Borgata final who landed post 5 for driver Anthony Napolitano and Cory Stratton, and Captain Moore A, who took the last edition of the local invitational pace and leaves from post 2 for driver Yannick Gingras and Blackler.

Ingraham gets win No. 8,000 at Cumberland

Sunny skies and warmer temperatures brought out a nice crowd for opening day at Cumberland Raceway on Saturday (March 21), with several regulars picking up where they left off, along with some new faces also grabbing the spotlight, however, the brightest star of the day was driver Dave Ingraham who secured his 8,000th career victory.

It only took three tries for the 64-year-old veteran Ingraham to find the Cumberland winner's circle, moving second over with seasoned trotter Little Macabee in the sixth to score comfortably by a 1¼ lengths in 2:02.4 for trainer Eric Bickmore.

Given the nickname "Double-Digit Dave" by track announcer and simulcast specialist Gabe Prewitt during his most recent Pompano Park days, Ingraham lived up to his moniker. While steering the 12-year-old son of Chapter Seven to his 45th lifetime win, they returned $29.80.

In the winner's circle Ingraham was surrounded by family and friends. With wide smiles his wife Kelly Case and daughter Kelsie proudly held up the bright blue and orange banner exclaiming the milestone victory, while his colleagues cheered for the photo op.

Driving harness horses since 1980, the 64-year-old had 72 wins last year with earnings of $607,509. Over his 46-year career he has driven the winners of $32.8 million and enjoyed a dozen seasons with a million or more in earnings. His statistically best year was 1995 where the Maine native won 403 races and $2.7 million in purses.

Harness racing has been held at the iconic Cumberland fairgrounds for over 150 years, and this year marks the sixth consecutive season that "First Tracks" has welcomed the first live racing of the year back to Maine.

First Tracks Cumberland's spring/summer meet will continue throughout the spring season with regular racing on Saturday and Sunday each weekend through the month of April. During the month of May, the track transitions to a Friday-Saturday schedule for those five weeks, after which the calendar reverts back to Saturday-Sunday for the month of June.

First post is slated for 12:15 p.m. (EDT) during the extended pari-mutuel meeting, which runs through Aug. 2.

AGCO and OLG approve race dates for 10 more Ontario tracks

The Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario (AGCO) and the Ontario Lottery and Gaming Corporation (OLG) have approved 2026 race dates for 10 more Ontario racetracks.

The number of race dates is as follows:

- Clinton Raceway – 14
- Dresden Raceway – 10
- Flamboro Downs – 114 (39 days Jan.-March 2026, 75 April-Dec. 2026)
- Georgian Downs – 25
- Grand River Raceway – 42
- Hanover Raceway – 14
- Hiawatha Horse Park – 19
- Kawartha Downs – 16
- Leamington Raceway – 12
- The Raceway at Western Fair District – 122 (51 days Jan.-March 2026, 71 April-Dec. 2026)

The news comes after the AGCO and OLG approved dates for Woodbine Racetrack, Woodbine Mohawk Park, Fort Erie Race Track, and Ajax Downs last week.

Ontario Racing provided each racetrack with an equitable recommendation of race dates balanced against industry horse supply. In response, racetracks provided input which was collated, reviewed and accommodated by a working group. As such, these 10 race date calendars have full industry alignment to move forward into the 2026 racing season.

Race dates for Rideau Carleton Raceway will be announced as available.

The Ontario horse racing industry is fortunate to have stable, long-term funding from the Province of Ontario. The Long-Term Funding Agreement signed in 2019 provides up to $120 million annually to the industry through 2038 via the OLG through Ontario Racing.

Bongiorno's Big M sweet 16 a slam dunk

Driver Joe Bongiorno has been as hot as a raging fire in a windstorm of late at The Meadowlands, as the 32-year-old pilot, who was named the track's Driver of the Week on March 20 for the six winners he had the weekend prior, did far better the week that followed, taking 10 trips down victory lane last weekend (March 20-21) with back-to-back five-winner nights to cop a second straight DOTW trophy, which will be announced officially on tonight's (March 27) pregame show.

Over the four race cards, Bongiorno won 16 races from just 38 starts, for a gawdy win percentage of 42.1.

"You kind of look at a card and see what chances you think you have going into the night," said Bongiorno of last week's 10-bagger. "I definitely thought I had a few chances going into each night, but that doesn't always work out as planned. When things start rolling early, you kind of feel like you are doing everything right putting horses in the right spots, and that kind of carried over through the whole weekend.

"I mean, that was probably one of the best weekends I've ever had in my driving career. I've been focusing on trying to trip horses out and put them in the right spots. When you get on a roll, you feel like you can't do anything wrong."

The numbers back up Bongiorno's words.

At the current Big M meeting, Bongiorno is 30-for-122, and that win percentage of 24.6 is the driver colony's highest among the 12 pilots with at least seven winners. He's currently tied for third in the standings with Mark Herschberger, and trails only Brett Beckwith (60 winners) and Colin Kelly (34).

"Right now, thankfully, everything is good in my life," said Bongiorno, who has put his battle with depression in the rear-view mirror. "I'm enjoying [harness racing] again for the first time in a long time. Getting to drive for Ronnie [Burke] through the winter has been fun, and my own stable has been racing well. I've picked up a lot for smaller stables and had a super amount of luck for them the last few weeks."

Bongiorno is a young man, but spoke the words of a wise, old one when referencing the most important thing in his life.

"My son, Parker, is 18 months old, and there is nothing better in the world than being with him," said Bongiorno. "You could win 20 races over a weekend and that would still be very minor compared to being a father."

Bongiorno said Parker "is the light of our world" for him and his fiancé, Nicole DiCostanzo.

Yes, Bongiorno loves his son, and driving horses, but with all of that on his plate, he still finds time to be a serious force when it comes to training as well.

His numbers as a conditioner are also prolific. He's 12-for-54 (22.2 per cent), and with 35 on-the-board finishes, his horses finish in the top three 64.8 per cent of the time. He sits second in The Meadowlands standings behind only Per Engblom, who has 24 victories.

Bongiorno currently has 55 horses in his barn, and is hoping to get 10 more by the time summer begins.

The driver knows that also being a trainer will help in the coming months after the return of the bigger-name drivers to the colony. Dexter Dunn, Yannick Gingras, Todd McCarthy, Scott Zeron, and Jason Bartlett will all be making their Big M 2026 debuts on Saturday. Andy McCarthy is also on the card after making his return a week ago.

"I have to create my own power at times, having my own horses to race is very important," said Bongiorno. "It puts me on the sheet and gives me an opportunity to pick up other drives on the card. Right now, I like being able to do both."

Bongiorno has a plan, and the plan will no doubt please his Big M fans.

"I want to stay at The Meadowlands on Friday and Saturday, for sure," said Bongiorno. "That's where I'm happy."

CARRYOVER REPORT: The stage was set for the $1 PK-8 to get hit Saturday (March 21) night, but for an 11th consecutive offering, the wager did not yield a winning ticket.

Heading into the 10th race – which is the payoff leg – it seemed like a handful of players had set themselves up to collect a handsome payoff, since the total pool was over $100,000. There were $3 of live tickets with even-money favorite Bettors Dontell and $2 worth of action on 3-2 second choice Typhoon Banner N, who was in search of a third straight score.

But after 6-1 chance Sun Of A Show stormed home to take the featured event, only tickets with seven correct selections were redeemable. The payout was $371.10.

Winner's odds for the sequence were anything but outrageous at 4-1, 4-5, 1-1, 4-1, 7-5, 5-2, 1-5, and 6-1.

When racing resumes tonight, the carryover will be $108,452.

The 20-cent Pick-6 had a carryover of $4,444 that motivated punters to pour $38,242 of "new money" into the pot Saturday. After a sequence that saw winner's odds of 5-2, 1-5, 6-1, 9-2, 6-5, and 1-2, those with winning tickets cashed in for $942.84.

The $1 PK-8 is offered nightly on races 3 through 10 while the 20-cent Pick-6 is available on dashes 8 through 13.

LOEBS A GRAND WINNER: Sean Loeb, who won the 2025 Meadowlands Handicapping Contest final and the first prize of $5,000 that went with it, has put himself in a position to repeat.

Leg 3 of the 2026 edition of the competition took place Saturday (March 21) night, and Loeb made an early score by hitting the 20-cent Pick-5 (which paid $294.48) twice. He easily held on to the lead from there, finishing with a bankroll of $1,170 to take the $1,000 monthly challenge. Players start the night with $100 to play with.

Ken Belhumer made a huge score in the 14th and final race by hitting the Pick-3 10 times and the late double 25 times. In addition, he had $20 on the nose of the 7-2 winner as well as having a $4 ticket on the exacta to finish the competition with $928. Thus, while taking home their contest earnings, Loeb and Belhumer also took down the cash prizes of $500 and $250, respectively, as well.

By finishing 1-2, Loeb and Belhumer have qualified for the year-end, invitation-only test, where just 22 entries (based on two for the 11 preliminary legs) will be eligible to go for the $10,000 in cash prizes.

The big-money final takes place on Dec. 12, while the fourth $1,000 leg is slated for April 17.

Weiss Series prospects prep at Pocono

One sign of spring at Pocono Downs at Mohegan Pennsylvania is the appearance of promising 3-year-olds preparing for Bobby Weiss Series action, an annual event for all divisions of sophomores that begins this year on Saturday (April 4). Another sign of a change in the fortunes with weather was the upswing of 14 degrees (from 36o to 50o) that the mercury took during a marathon morning session at Pocono on Wednesday (March 25).

Each of the four sex and gait possibilities contest their own Weiss Series action, and here we focus on the Wednesday winners who were fastest in their divisions.

TROTTING FEMALES – Nightcap Mearas S. a daughter of Walner, was ready for her first charted line of the year, coming from third in the stretch to win in 1:58.1 for driver Andrew McCarthy and Snogarps Gard Inc. Her trainer is Nicklas Oestergaard-Andersen, a 30-year-old native of Denmark, and he was victorious in his first race as a trainer, at least on these shores.

TROTTING MALES – The Devious Man gelding Acoustic Blue Chip, who has had some gait issues during his brief career, was on best behavior Wednesday and made every pole a winning in 1:57 for multiple Pocono driving champion Matt Kakaley; his stablemate for trainer Jared Bako and owners Blue Chip Bloodstock Inc., the filly Aviatrix Blue Chip, was second.

PACING FEMALES – The Huntsville filly Grazia was in fashionable form for her owners, Vincent Ferriero, Jr., Pint Size Racing LLC, Donald Kayser, and Dominic Pavia, sitting the 2-hole until the far turn, then going on to a 1:55.2 triumph. Jason Bartlett was in the sulky for trainer Joe Pavia, Jr.

PACING MALES – The Always B Miki colt Twin B Thriller, four of six at 2 and a winner in a qualifier last week, repeated here, proving a pocket rocket in 1:55 - :55.4 - :27.3. George Napolitano, Jr. drove the winner for trainer Dennis A. Laterza and the partnership of Ginko Stable Inc. and Latz A Luck Stable.

This division also generated the day’s fastest qualifier, although the accomplishments of Hunt Off The Press at 2 kept him out of the Weiss Series. A four-time NYSS winner who was second in the Empire State’s Sires Championship, Hunt Off The Press showed he may be ready for bigger game right now, with the Huntsville gelding sprung out of the pocket and posted back numbers of :55 - :26.2 to win by himself in 1:52.1 for Tyler Buter and Team Bako / Blue Chip.

In the seven qualifiers won by Weiss eligibles, Team Orange Crush (driver Andy and trainer Julie Miller), driver Jason Bartlett, and trainer Jared Bako had doubles. For the overall 16-race qualifying session, Bartlett guided five winners, with the Millers and Bako authoring four success stories.

Replays of the Wednesday Pocono qualifiers can be found at www.ppha.org. Pocono is next in pari-mutuel motion on Saturday at 1 p.m.

'Sun' shines bright at Big M

Sun Of A Show displayed wicked speed at both ends of his mile Saturday night (March 21) at The Meadowlands to pull off a mild upset in the featured $19,000 claiming handicap for pacers in for a tag of no less than $40,000 and no more than $60,000.

Departing from post 5 in the seven-horse field, driver Braxten Boyd had Sun Of A Show on the go, grabbing the lead out of the first turn. He held a slight edge on 3-2 second choice Typhoon Banner N at the quarter in a sizzling :26 before that foe took the point.

Bettors Donttell, the even-money favorite, motored up on the rim to take the lead at the half, which was timed in :54.3, but there would be no peace for the leader, as Mamba and Komodo Beach sprinted up into contention at the five-eighths racing 1-2 on the rim as Bettors Donttell clung to a narrow advantage at three-quarters in 1:24.1.

At this point, Sun Of A Show was an afterthought, racing along the rail with nowhere to go in the 3-hole, but as the field turned for home, Boyd moved his horse off the rail and into the fray. With a little more than a sixteenth-of-a-mile to go, "Sun" found room and was swung out to the five path and displayed explosive late pace to grab the win by 1¾ lengths in 1:51.3. Komodo Beach rallied off a live second-over tow to finish second with Typhoon Banner N holding on for third.

"I had to use him a little harder off the gate than I was hoping and so I wasn't really planning on coming back first-up once that happened, I was just kind of hoping I could find a seam," said Boyd. "We got a little bit of a seam and boy did he ever explode today. He really appreciated me burying him until the top of the stretch. He can leave the gate in 25 seconds and then he can come home in :27. That's a pretty good weapon to have."

Sun Of A Show, a 10-year-old gelding by Sunfire Blue Chip—Star Of Show who is trained by Tee Wine, paid $14.20 to win as the 6-1 third choice in the wagering. Owned by the Wine Stable, he now has 46 wins from 209 career starts, good for earnings of $545,312.

CARRYOVER REPORT: The stage was set for the $1 PK-8, which sported a carryover of just over $100,000, to get hit, but for an 11th consecutive offering, the wager did not yield a winning ticket.

Heading into the 10th race — which is the payoff leg — it seemed like a handful of players had set themselves up to get paid. There were $3 of live tickets with even-money favorite Bettors Donttell and $2 of action on 3-2 second choice Typhoon Banner N, who was in search of a third straight score.

But after 6-1 chance Sun Of A Show stormed home to take the featured event, only tickets with seven correct selections were redeemable. The payout was $371.10.

When racing resumes tonight (March 27), the carryover will be $108,452.

Winner's odds for the sequence were 4-1, 4-5, 1-1, 4-1, 7-5, 5-2, 1-5, and 6-1.

The 20-cent Pick-6 had a carryover of $4,444 that motivated punters to pour $38,242 of "new money" into the pot. After a sequence that saw winner's odds of 5-2, 1-5, 6-1, 9-2, 6-5, and 1-2, those with winning tickets cashed in for $942.84.

The $1 PK-8 is offered nightly on races 3 through 10 while the 20-cent Pick-6 is available on dashes 8 through 13.

LOEBS A GRAND WINNER: Sean Loeb, who won the 2025 Meadowlands Handicapping $10,000 final and the first prize of $5,000 that went with it, has put himself in a position to repeat.

Loeb made an early score by hitting the 20-cent Pick-5 (which paid $294.48) twice, and easily held on to the lead from there, finishing the night with a bankroll of $1,170 to take third leg of the $1,000 monthly challenge. Players start the night with $100 to play with.

Ken Belhumer made a huge score in the 14th and final race of the night by hitting the Pick-3 10 times, the late double 25 times, to go along with $20 to win on a 7-2 shot as well as having a $4 ticket on the exacta to finish the competition with $928. Thus, in addition to taking home their contest earnings, Loeb and Belhumer also took down the cash prizes of $500 and $250, respectively, as well.

By finishing 1-2, Loeb and Belhumer have qualified for the year-end, invitation-only test, where just 22 entries (based on two for the 11 preliminary legs) will be eligible to go for the $10,000 in cash prizes.

The big-money final takes place on Dec. 12, while the fourth $1,000 leg is slated for April 17.

A LITTLE MORE: Joe Bongiorno completed an incredible weekend, as the 32-year-old pilot cinched a second straight Driver of the Week Award with 10 victories after winning five races on both Friday and Saturday. His 30 wins for the year now have him tied for third in The Big M standings... All-source betting on the 14-race card totaled $2,956,059.
