Yearly blood work saved George Brennan's Life

by Debbie Little

Thanks to an annual physical, driver George Brennan is on the road to recovery following major surgery.

Brennan, 58, who was last seen in action at Yonkers Raceway on Friday (March 6), expects to be back on the track by the end of April despite having a life-saving procedure on March 17.

"They took out my prostate," Brennan said.

He went on to say that he's been getting yearly exams since his late 20s, which eventually included a prostate-specific antigen (PSA) test. A high PSA level can be a sign of prostate cancer. According to the Cleveland Clinic website, if men aged 50 to 60 have a PSA higher than 3.5 nanograms per milliliter of blood it is considered abnormal.

Over the last few years, Brennan's PSA number started to rise higher than what they'd like for his age, which triggered the necessity of a biopsy.

"It came back where I had a speck of a tumor," Brennan said. "And when I say a speck, it was the size of a millimeter. So, at that point, my doctor said, 'Well, we've just got to monitor it, and we'll take your PSA every three months.' And we did. And one time it went down, stayed about the same, and then last year it went back up to almost 6.8, so they ordered an MRI, and then another biopsy, and that's when they found two more little tumors bigger than a millimeter. So now there are three in there, cancerous."

Mike Lizzi
Brennan driving Premier Victor at Yonkers.

Brennan said his doctor was clear about what he thought the next move should be.

“He recommended taking it out, because he said, at my age, I’m too young; I don’t hear that that much anymore,” Brennan said with a laugh. “He said I was too young for any treatment. He said if he gave me radiation, 10 years from now, I could get complications from that radiation. So, he recommended just take it out.”

HRU caught up with Brennan 11 days after his surgery while he was taking his daily walk through his neighborhood.

He returned home the day after his operation under the watchful eyes of his “own private nurses,” his daughters, Natalie and Mackenzie.

His youngest daughter, Mackenzie, who actually is a nurse, was immediately impressed by how well he was doing.

“So, I’m sitting in the living room on Thursday [March 19, two days after the surgery], and Mackenzie says, ‘Dad, I can’t believe you just had surgery, you look so good coming out of it,’” George said.

As for his return to the track, he said, “I’m pretty sure the cancer is out of me now, and my body will let me know when it’s time to come back. Of course, I’d like to be there [at Yonkers for the early legs of the McIntyre and Borgata], but Mike Lachance called me and told me, ‘Don’t rush it. Whatever you do, don’t rush it.’

“The paper I got [from the hospital] said, ‘Don’t do anything strenuous for six weeks.’ But I’m not buying that. I’ll be good before six weeks. I’m thinking, right around my birthday, April 20.”

“ [My biopsy] came back where I had a speck of a tumor. And when I say a speck, it was the size of a millimeter. So, at that point, my doctor said, ‘Well, we’ve just got to monitor it, and we’ll take your PSA every three months.’ And we did. And one time it went down, stayed about the same, and then last year it went back up to almost 6.8, so they ordered an MRI, and then another biopsy, and that’s when they found two more little tumors bigger than a millimeter. Even though he may return to the races for his 59th birthday, George doesn’t plan to go full-tilt boogie.

“It’s not like I’m going to tell the judges I’m good for every race,” he said. “I’ll call up my contacts and just say, ‘Maybe just put me on a couple and I’ll handle that, and see how it feels.’”

According to medical websites, prostate cancer is the most common non-skin cancer found in men and symptoms don’t usually occur until later stages of the disease.

“In my case, my prostate wasn’t enlarged, it wasn’t displaced, and I never got up during the night to pee, so I had no symptoms whatsoever,” he said. “And who knows, it might have been too late [by the time I had symptoms]. You know, the tumors could have been the size of an orange by then. Who knows?”

George has a little time before any sort of follow up with his doctors.

“I’ve got to get a blood test taken the first week of June to see where my PSA is at,” he said. “But the one thing about the cancer that I had, it stayed in the prostate, it didn’t go out of the prostate, which was good.

“It could have moved to the bladder, it could have moved here, there, but no, it just stayed isolated in the prostate. And now the prostate is out, so the cancer should be out.

“It’s very common. You know the actor, Ben Stiller? He had his taken out at 48 and Bo Jackson just had his taken out. He’s 63.”

Stiller, 60, is now an advocate for both early prostate cancer screening and PSA testing. If he ever wanted a top-level harness driver alongside him spreading the word, George would certainly be willing to do a PSA (Public Service Announcement) about PSAs, which he thinks men should start getting in their mid-40s.

“Chris Height texted me last week, and he’s about the same age as me, and I said, ‘Height, go get a PSA test,’” George said. “He said, ‘I’m on it right now.’ I said, ‘Well, good for you.’

“It doesn’t hurt [to get a PSA test] and if it comes back and everything’s negative, it puts your mind at ease.”

THE VIEW FROM WOODBINE MOHAWK PARK

with MELISSA KEITH

Dustin Jones' longshot road to the Mohawk Million

by Melissa Keith

Well known for his success with young trotters, the Mohawk Million is one of the few major races for them where trainer Dustin Jones has not left his mark – yet.

The draw for this year's Mohawk Million took place on March 26, with 34 owners, trainers, breeders, and partnerships vying for 10 coveted slots in the Grade 1 race for 2-year-old trotters. Unlike traditional stakes races, each $60,000 Mohawk Million slot can be sold or transferred should the original owner choose not to use it for the Sept. 26, 2026 race at Woodbine Mohawk Park.

"My son [Tyler Jones] and I were going to [bid for a slot] three years ago, because we figured we could double our money, our investment, if we didn't have a horse that would go in it," said Dustin on Friday (April 3). "But then we didn't do it.

"Then last year, I had a couple of trotting colts, so I [entered a bid for a slot] with a few partners. It wasn't just me, by myself. I had seven partners last year, and then this year, it's six guys."

Dustin said his current Mohawk Million slot partners include Golden Bear Racing (Mike DeVries) of California; Andrea Lea Racing Stable (George Lowenfeld) of Quebec; Hébert Horses Inc. (Jocelyne Hébert) of Quebec; Todd Coleman of Ontario; and Sjoblom Racing Inc. (Matt Sjoblom) of Florida.

With owners like that, Dustin was feeling optimistic about having a serious Mohawk Million prospect in his stable.

"Yeah, I think we have a couple," said the veteran trainer, speaking from his winter training base, Palema Trotting Center in Vero Beach, FL. "Actually, we have five fillies and four colts, so we're hoping one of them would be good enough to maybe go, and who knows – Matt [Sjoblom] might have one with Noel Daley if he didn't have one with us."

Dustin added that he was confident that they could "make some kind of an arrangement if there's a couple of owners in the group [who also own] one of the horses that don't have a share," if necessary. The 2026 slots are expected to be in high demand as the Mohawk Million approaches, because "some of the big players didn't get a slot this year," so Dustin said selling it outside the group is also an option.

In early April, it was still much too soon for Dustin to single out a particular trainee aiming toward the big race.

"I have a couple that I have an idea on, but you know how that works; sometimes the ones that aren't training quite as well, once they get behind the gate, they just change completely," he said. "Some of the other ones, once you put them in the first race, they're not as good as you think they are. So, you never know."

“Actually, [our six-person partnership] have five fillies and four colts, so we're hoping one of them would be good enough to maybe go [in the Mohawk Million].”

Trainer Dustin Jones shopping for yearlings in Lexington.

“I’ve done this for a long time. Sometimes you get surprises when the baby races start. Last year, we thought Bingo Night was good, but how do you know she would’ve been that good?”

~ Dustin Jones

Proudly self-employed since 1982, the formerly Quebec-based horseman said he was always watching for early underachievers to step up later on.

“I’ve done this for a long time,” he said. “Sometimes you get surprises when the baby races start. Last year, we thought Bingo Night was good, but how do you know she would’ve been that good?”

Now 3, the Green Manalishi S filly recorded five wins from 12 starts in her first year of racing. Bingo Night (2, 1:53.4s; $307,162) only missed the board once, finishing second in her Ontario Sires Stakes division. Bingo Night broke her maiden in her first start, July 4 at Mohawk, in line to Tyler Jones. They won going away in OSS Gold leg 1 on July 11, and repeated in Gold leg 3 on Aug. 4 at Mohawk. Second in the Peaceful Way (G1) and Champlain Stakes (G3), Bingo Night returned to the winner’s circle after a lifetime-best victory in the Oct. 11 OSS Gold Super Final, and ended her freshman season after a seventh-place finish in the Breeders Crown.

“She was always there, right from the start to the end,” Dustin said. “We owned her grandmother [Tommi My Girl] and bred the mother [Cant Stop Tommi], and then we bred her [Bingo Night]. The mother never raced; she had a chip in her knee, and that was the first foal of the mare.”

Dustin said he likes to start his horses a little later than most at the beginning of each stakes season.

“You see a lot of the horses that race in [early stakes], they get over-raced in there and they don’t seem to get any better over the summer,” he said.

Bingo Night has been sustained to this year’s OSS Gold events, the Simcoe (G3), the Elegantimage (G1), the Breeders Crown (G1), and the Matron (G2).

With 20 horses in training at Palema Trotting Center, Dustin planned on staying in Florida until May 2, and then returning to Golden Horseshoe Lanes in Flamborough, ON.

“Some years are better than others,” he said. “The last couple of years we started to get partnerships with different owners... We’re doing that more, and we have more broodmares. Some of the babies we don’t put through the sales; some we do. Some we sell for good money. We try to keep the fillies; the colts, we put in the sale.”

He and one partner also own stallion shares in Captain Corey, Tactical Landing, Ecurie D, and Six Pack.

In a full-circle coincidence, Tyler is now training a filly owned by the man Dustin called “the first paying customer I ever had, Litwin Racing Team from Montreal.” Cas El Mystic (2, 2:07.3f; $6,683) made 10 starts as a 2-year-old in Quebec stakes for trainer/driver Dustin, who had formerly campaigned homebreds.

The “Cas El” prefix gained prestige when Emilie Cas El (3,1:57.1f; $245,199) was voted Canada’s 1994 O’Brien Horse of the Year as a 2-year-old. Bred by Fermes Angus Farms of Bedford, QC, the Garland Lobell daughter was the firstborn foal of her Canadian and U.S. Hall of Fame dam, Amour Angus.

“We changed her name,” recalled her trainer/driver. “The partner that I had on Emilie Cas El, his name was Wendell Cass. He was the breeder of Cas El Mystic. [Emilie Cas El] was the first horse I bought him at a sale.”

As Dustin looks forward to his 44th consecutive year as a trainer/driver, he remains perplexed as to why Emilie Cas El is still on the ballot for the Canadian Horse Racing Hall of Fame, rather than inducted years ago. The mare passed away in 2021, after an exceptional career both on and off the track in North America and Europe. She had made the ballot in the past, but never came out on top. The class of 2026 will be announced April 8.

“That is mind-boggling,” he said. “It’s incredible that she hasn’t [been inducted]. She was Horse of the Year, undefeated at 2; set a track record at Mohawk and at Blue Bonnets; she’s given us a Hambletonian winner [Trixton, in 2014] and a Breeders Crown winner [Impressive Kemp, in 2010]. Every time she’s up, she’s been up against an Ontario horse like Pure Ivory and had no shot. This year, she’s up against Put On A Show... It’s sort of disgusting that she’s not in there [already]. I don’t understand that.”

As a horseman who launched his career in Quebec, Dustin expressed empathy for those who were racing at Rideau Carleton Raceway, which officially closed as a pari-mutuel track on March 2.

“The guys from Three Rivers and Quebec and Montreal were doing well there, and it would give those guys another opportunity,” he said. “It’s a shame. It’s a total disgrace. The only way these casinos were [originally] able to operate was because the horsemen let them into their tracks. Now they’ve just cannibalized them... They did the same at Pompano and now they’ve done it at Rideau and in B.C. [Fraser Downs]. They never would have had a place to get in and have a casino, but because the horsemen agreed to it, the cities agreed to it also.”

Although Dustin and Tyler were able to continue their careers at Mohawk, the 64-year-old horseman expressed doubts that many from Rideau Carleton would relocate to other Ontario tracks.

“They won’t go anywhere,” he said. “They’ll just stop. I [relocated] in 2008 when Blue Bonnets closed. I left home with I think six horses, and maybe one of them was able to compete at Mohawk. It was tough. I had to change everything and it took two or three years.”

He was forced to sell most of his racing and breeding stock. It took six years to sell his farm, at a significant loss.

Fortunately, another 2-year-old filly trotter put Dustin back in the game: Martiniontherocks (5, 1:55.3f; $498,658), who set a stakes record in her 2010 Breeders Crown final at Pocono in a 30-1 upset. Whatever the odds against winning his first Mohawk Million, Dustin can never be counted out.

Inexess Bleu (Alexandre Abrivard) winning the $125,000 Prix Kerjacques on Saturday at Vincennes.

EUROPEAN REPORT

with THOMAS HEDLUND

Inexess Bleu dominates Prix Kerjacques

by Thomas Hedlund

Laurent-Claude Abrivard's Inexess Bleu (Vittel de Brevol), driven by his son Alexandre Abrivard, justified favoritism in Saturday's (April 4) $125,000 Prix Kerjacques at Vincennes.

Following a sharp early pace, the pair advanced to the lead with 1,600 meters to go. The move was far from straightforward, as Inexess Bleu had to race three- and four-wide before clearing to the front, shortly after Ino du Lupin had made his own bid for the lead.

Once in command, Alexandre was able to dictate terms at a tempo that suited his horse, with fractions that were not particularly demanding for this level.

Inexess Bleu drew clear for a comfortable victory in a 1:56.2 mile rate over 2,700 meters. Replay here.

Ino du Lupin followed the winner throughout and finished second, while Iroise de la Noe closed strongly from the back of the field to take third.

As for dual Prix d'Amérique winner Idao de Tillard, he was handled very conservatively throughout. Driver Clément Duvaldestin angled him wide in the stretch, but the former champion never threatened and finished seventh.

After the race, connections of Inexess Bleu – who has received an invitation to the Elitloppet – indicated uncertainty about participation. At present, it appears more likely that he will skip the race than take part.

ITALIAN SPOTLIGHT: GRAN PREMIO COSTA AZZURRA

On Monday (April 6), attention shifts to Turin, where the $240,000 Gran Premio Costa Azzurra headlines a major card for the older elite.

Alessandro Gocciadoro once again fields a strong team, sending out Free Time Jepson, Always Ek, and Dany Capar, with the trainer himself driving the latter from post 3 behind the gate.

“ [Allegiant] can really move. It'll be exciting to see her against top competition this year. There's reason to dream – then we'll see how far it takes us. ”

~ Örjan Kihlström

French raider Laurent-Claude Abrivard also travels with two runners. Inmarosa, a standout performer during the Paris winter meeting, tries the mile distance – possibly with ambitions of securing a place in the Elitloppet – while Elegance Kronos also represents the stable.

Gocciadoro is widely expected to dominate the $220,000 Derby dei 4 Anni ANACT Stakes divisions. In the fillies' event, he trains five of the 10 starters, with Glamour Queen (Face Time Bourbon) looking particularly hard to beat. In the colts' division, he fields three runners – all drawn in the inside posts.

REDÉN'S AMERICAN STARS IMPRESS

At Färjestad on Friday (April 3), Daniel Redén showcased two of his top American-bred horses, both delivering convincing wins.

Keep Asking (Chapter Seven) led throughout in the $60,000 Hertigen av Värmland's Race, scoring in 1:53 on a track that was far from fast.

Allegiant (Tactical Landing) also found the front mid-race and impressed visually, winning in 1:55.2 over 2,140 meters.

Allegiant's driver Örjan Kihlström said: "She can really move. It'll be exciting to see her against top competition this year. There's reason to dream – then we'll see how far it takes us."

The day before, Redén and Kihlström also unveiled La Yuca (Face Time Bourbon), who impressed by overcoming a 40-meter handicap over 2,640 meters.

Looking ahead, superstar Don Fanucci Zet is set to make his seasonal debut on Wednesday (April 8) in an E-Series race at Solvalla.

A FAIR DAY INVITED TO ELITLOPPET

Amateur-trained A Fair Day (Maharajah) has received an invitation to the Elitloppet, marking his third consecutive appearance in the prestigious sprint event on May 31.

Trained by Elisabeth Almheden, the gelding finished fourth in last year's edition and has since added eight wins, including the C.L. Müllers Memorial. He also captured the Meadow Prophets Minne, won three heats in the Gold Division, and in his latest start in the C.T. Ericssons Memorial he never found racing room from the pocket and finished fourth.

TALES FROM THE CURMUDGEON

with MURRAY BROWN

A conversation with Jim Whelan

by Murray Brown

Jim Whelan is a generational horseperson proud and true. He is the son of a horseman who raced in Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia during the warmer months and throughout Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts at times when racing was down in the Maritimes.

“I’ve never known anything but being around horses and being involved in the horse business,” Whelan said.

Like so many Maritimers involved in our sport, Whelan, in effect, heeded the advice of Horace Greeley and as a young man headed west, specifically to Ontario, more specifically to Flamboro Downs. It was in 1979 following his move to Flamboro Downs that we pick up the tale of Whelan’s harness racing career.

You’ve done most everything in this great sport of ours, beginning, as most have done, as a groom, then becoming a trainer, a driver, a sometime breeder and numerous other equine pursuits, but it is as an advocate for horsepeople and your involvement with the Ontario Harness Horse Association (OHHA) through which you are perhaps best known.

“I’m still very much involved with most of the facets of our sport. I still groom some of my own horses. I breed a few. I have my own farm and training center. I maintain my training track. We have about 20 head on the farm, somewhat equally divided between harness and pleasure horses. In addition to training them, my wife and I enjoy riding. I’m actually consistently down to drive a horse named Ten Carat Garrett that we own at Mohawk on Saturday evenings. This particular horse means a lot to us. He is named for our son whom we lost from a brain tumor in 2023. In addition to my immediate horse related activities, I am also president of the Ontario Harness Horse Association and the Ontario Equine Education and Employment Program (OEEEEP). OHHA is an office I have proudly represented

“By every metric the current leadership has failed. Wagering, attendance, purses, breeding, participants and opportunity are all down dramatically, while costs skyrocket. Make no mistake, there is zero alignment between gaming and racing. Arguably, we are competing interests, so assigning the future of horse racing to gaming executives is clearly counter-intuitive to creating a path to a sustainable future for the equine agricultural industry.”

during various times in the past 40 years. I’ve been back in the chair since 2013. I am also an elected director of Standardbred Canada, our national breeding register.”

(Editor’s note: For clarity, the official representative of Ontario’s harness horsepeople at the province’s racetracks is the Central Ontario Standardbred Association (COSA))

From a personal perspective how are you doing today?

“I suppose that many looking in might say that I’m not in the best of health. I’m 70 years old. I have lived a good life, and horses have played a major role. I’m currently awaiting a double lung transplant. I have a condition called pulmonary fibrosis. It’s a hereditary disease, which when, taken to its conclusion, results in the lungs rendered non-functional. Thus, the need for the transplant. If and when a new set of lungs become available, my family and I will be in the hands of God and the best doctors at the University of Toronto. All we can do is hope for the best.”

~ Jim Whelan

What is your role as president of OHHA?

“Broadly, I would say it is to represent, promote and protect horsepeople and our rights. That includes helping horsepeople whose livelihood has and continues to be threatened by overzealous, uninformed politicians and bureaucrats who have proven over and over not to have the slightest idea of what horse racing and the equine agricultural industry provides for our communities and our economy. We must make it our joint mission to self-sustain and promote our industry, rather than watch it be diminished to irrelevance or worse, disappear altogether.”

Could you please expand upon that?

“Under the present construct, our collective industry future appears bleak. Here in Ontario, the regulator just eliminated 45 race days, with the probability of even more in the future. As I speak, Rideau Carleton Raceway – located in our nation’s capital, Ottawa; a 60-plus-year venue – has been immediately closed by its gaming owner Hard Rock. So, yet another 70 plus race dates wiped out.

“The province of Quebec, previously a bastion of Canadian harness racing is down to only 40 or so race days, none in Montreal, the largest city in the province. British Columbia no longer has any form of horse racing. For all intents and purposes Saskatchewan, and Newfoundland have no sustained forms of horse racing. Manitoba has a 10-day meet and New Brunswick schedules 11 race dates. Alberta continues to soldier on. Nova Scotia’s racing is only a shadow of what it once was. Prince Edward Island, our smallest province, to their credit is the only province, having established two new gaming and racing facilities, that has shown any growth in recent years.”

Why is that happening?

“There are likely many reasons. But in my opinion the major one is industry leadership or lack thereof. By every metric the current leadership has failed. Wagering, attendance, purses, breeding, participants and opportunity are all down dramatically, while costs skyrocket. Make no mistake, there is zero alignment between gaming and racing. Arguably, we are competing interests, so assigning the future of horse racing to gaming executives is clearly counter-intuitive to creating a path to a sustainable future for the equine agricultural industry. The current structural model makes absolutely no sense, unless of course the goal is to completely end the horse racing industry.”

So what is the solution?

“Genuine representational unity and self-determination. From my perspective, it’s time for horsepeople to band together under a horse-person-centric banner to promote and advocate for our industry. Billions of dollars and thousands of agricultural industry jobs are at stake. It is time for a new model designed for self-sustainability. Pari-mutuel wagering on its own cannot support the industry. Gaming has forever changed that. As such, gaming has to be part of the solution. Therefore, we are calling for a new model and business plan to sustain and grow the equine agricultural industry; one built upon a not-for-profit equine agricultural center, its leadership composed of democratically elected people that have a vested interest in the industry. This long-term business plan would partner with key government stakeholders to reinvest revenues right back into the equine industry. The physical plant would encompass a complete equine agricultural entertainment and educational center and a raceway and amenities designed for all breeds. Only then will the industry find itself on a real path to sustenance. Without this paradigm structural shift, horse racing and horsepeople will continue to circle the drain into financial oblivion.”

Hambletonian Day history

by Bob Heyden

It's 125 days until the 101st edition of the Hambletonian, number 46 held in East Rutherford, NJ. The race has been examined, and will continue to be, for years. But the day itself often gets overshadowed by the enormity of the world's primo trotting race.

Here's a look at a baker's dozen of happenings on the first Saturday in August since its move to the Garden State.

BLUE DAY FOR 'RAINBOW'

The 2004 Horse of the Year Rainbow Blue won her first dozen, then on Hambletonian Day in the Mistletoe Shalee broke stride early losing any chance. Her 20-for-21 slate at year's end was good enough though to gather in year-end honors over the star of Hambletonian Day Windsong's Legacy.

CLAIM TO FAME

New Bucks appeared on two Hambletonian Day cards, and on July 1, 1995 he won a $40,000 claimer in 1:49.3 for trainer Jim Mullin and driver Jack Moiseyev. The son of Nihilator became the first claimer to do so in sub 1:50, and in the exact same time that his dad won in on Hambletonian Day 1985, the first ever sub 1:50 race winner.

READY OR NOT

Rule The Wind debuted in 1988 in the Hambletonian. A 5½ length qualifying romp prompted the unusual decision. Richie Silverman drove the son of Speedy Crown—Ah So racing for Jerry Silverman, who finished second in his elim at 12-1 and then seventh, parked the mile at 11-1, in the final.

NORWAY'S DAY

Hambletonian Day 2004 was Norway's Day as Trond Smedshammer trained and drove Hambletonian winner Windsong's Legacy and Jorgen Jahre, Jr. owned Hambletonian Oaks upsetter Silver Springs.

THE OLD 1-2

The "Old 1-2" took on an entirely new meaning in 1995. Who doubles their career win total, in one day, and winds up in the Hambletonian winner's circle? A son of Super Bowl named Tagliabue, who was just one-for-seven lifetime going into that day where he won his elim and the final.

STAKING A CLAIM

Claims on Hambletonian Day are not exactly common, but on the 2001 card, in the opener, Ted Wing reached in for $50,000 and corralled Art Attack. He was 21 3-4-2 on the season good for $73,660. Wing would bank 650G the next 5 seasons with the son of Artsplace.

ONCE IN A LIFETIME

Gallo Blue Chip and Eternal Carnation both retired as the richest male and female pacers, a title she still holds. They met exactly once, Hambletonian Day 2001, in the U.S. Pacing Championship. He was second and she failed to cash.

#BETONHARNESS

HOW MUCH DID YOU BET TODAY?

LUCKY 13

Did someone say “Lucky 13” on Hambletonian Day 2009? On that fateful day, Lucky Jim captured the Cashman and became the first trotter to win 13 consecutive races in East Rutherford.

HISTORIC HAMBLETONIAN DAY

Hambletonian Day 2010 was historic. Ron Pierce became the only driver to win America’s Trotting Classic twice with $1.5 million on the line. He won in 2010 with Muscle Massive following Donato Hanover in 2007. It was also on that day in 2010 where Ron Burke showcased his first repeat Dan Patch winner Buck I St Pat as well as his first Breeders Crown repeater Won The West. George Brennan was the meet’s leading driver 237-203 over Brian Sears. Foiled Again was also in action with $1,454,183 on his dance card and a mere $6 million to go.

JIM CLASS

In 2012, in the Peter Haughton Memorial, Jim Oscarsson drove and trained the winner Aperfectyankee, while Jimmy Takter trained the runner-up Corky, and Jim Campbell trained the show finisher Fashion Blizzard driven by Jim Morrill, Jr.

YOUNG AND YOUNGER

The 1982 Hambletonian featured the youngest winning driver, 25-year-old Tommy Haughton, but he was not the youngest in the heats that day, as 21-year-old Per Eriksson had Cadet Eden. It would be three years until Eriksson won the Hambletonian at 24 with Prakas in 1985 making him the youngest trainer.

LUCKY ‘SEVEN’

Chapter Seven has had a glorious history on Hambletonian Day. He was fourth in the 2011 Hambletonian but was a lifetime best 1:50.1 winner in the Cashman at 4 in his HOY season.

MONI MONI MONI

On Hambletonian Day in 2000, Moni Maker, then 7, figured that day in her Meadowlands swan song. The two-time defending HOY won her third Cashman, the most ever to this day, posted her lifetime mark of 1:52.1, and set a still-existing Hambletonian Day only mark for victories with five.

MANE ATTRACTION

with JOHN BERRY

About our future

by John Berry

Way, way back in 1949, my grandfather took me to my first major league baseball game – the Cubs vs. the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Over the years, of course, I was – and still am – a Cubs fan.

Handsome Ransom Jackson, Roy Smalley, Eddie Miksis, Dee Fondy, Hank Sauer, Frankie Baumholtz, and Paul Minner, to name a handful.

Oh, I had an interest in other sports, as well, pro football – the Bears, of course – Johnny Lujack and George Blanda among the greats.

They were all “old” guys, as far as I was concerned. After all, I was 6 or 7 years old when I first got interested in sports, and they were much older – in their 20s and 30s, and some “ancient” guys in their 40s and even, rarely, a tad older.

Every single season, without exception, a new generation of future stars popped up – all in their early 20s and a few phenoms in their teens – like Bob Feller. At age 17, or, now that I think of it, Joe Nuxhall, who was 15!

Compare that to the icons that I met when I first got interested in harness racing when I was 16.

It started in the bowling alleys of Chicago when my teammates and competition ranged from their 20s all the way up to many veterans in their 70s.

From the bowling alleys of Chicago I was taken to Sportsman’s Park on Aug. 22, 1959.

As I was approaching my late teenage years, I got to be friends with gentlemen and ladies who became my idols – Bob Farrington, Bruce Nickells, Lou Rapone, Gene Vallandingham, Edith Mouw, Dwayne Pletcher, Edgar Leonard, Curly Smart and, when they came to town for the Grand Circuit, Stanley Dancer and Frank Ervin.

Years later, my added idols included Mr. Campbell, Mr. O’Donnell, Mr. Doherty and, along the way, Tom Merriman, Peter Blood, Mike Deters, Jimmy Mac, Mike Murphy, Jake Huff, Jimmy Mattison and, of course, JoAnn Looney, Jacquie Ingrassia and Kelly Case – all of whom added so much to my harness racing landscape since I wrote my first article in 1964.

As time paced and trotted by as the never-ending phenomena of age continued over the next 30 years and beyond, these “ Things have changed and this industry has not, and when land values and circumstances became too good to ignore, the inevitable began to happen – so slowly we hardly even noticed until it was too late. ”

~ An astute observer

wonderful friends, thankfully, aged but, eventually, faced the inevitable.

So, over that time, my list of “idols” was “refreshed” and, today, thankfully, includes, Tim and Dave and Peter and George and Wally and Mickey, to name a few, and the great trainer Fred Grant.

Oh, and, by the way, I almost forgot my new young idols, Matt K. and Doug Mc and Brett and Brax, to name close to a handful, and therewith lies the problem.

Just as every other major sport refreshes every year with a new roster of potential greatness and idol status with farm systems honing future stars, the numbers for our grand sport are just not there.

The 14th century idiom, “The proof is in the pudding” has never been more evident since there may be as many as 5,000 trainer-drivers in our sport these days, but less than half a per cent are aged 25 and under.

Sure, we have budding stars like Brett Beckwith, now 23 years old, and Braxten Boyd, who just turned 26, and Marvin Luna, 24 and Justin Irvine, also 24.

And Luke Hanners, 25, Trae Porter, 24, Jacob Cutting, 25, Kyle Cummings, 25, William Carter, only 21, and Kyle Swift, 20, and some new names popping up like Adarryl Gates, Jr., Carson Conrad, and Jeremy Bobbitt, too.

And I cannot forget Braiden Rhoades, who just turned 21 a few days ago and has five years under his girth already.

But these few very talented young men, themselves, cannot be the sole future of a sport that has a history going back over two centuries and is losing its future to competition and earning potential in countless other ways.

As much as we all dislike facing the inevitability of aging, it never stops, year by year, month by month, day by day, second by second.

Our fan suggests that every single program could and should be a “day/night at the races,” sponsored by the casino with all those guests given a casino voucher available only before the first race for $25 in free slot play and redeemable after the 10th race is official.

Wally and the two Daves – Miller and Palone – cannot go one forever. Art Stafford, Jr. cannot go on forever.

Same for gentlemen like Sam Widger, Brent Holland, Larry Stalbaum, and two or three thousand others in our sport who are no longer in the age bracket of the aforementioned Beckwith, Boyd, Porter, and Carter.

In fact, they are now far away and getting further away with every racing night.

Yes, 18-year-old Ryder Skinner won the big stake at Bally's Dover Downs recently – but we need a thousand more young horsemen like him to sustain the future.

And, yes, we have our wonderful Harness Horse Youth Foundation with their outstanding workshops and camps that are held in various locations, including the Goshen Historic Track.

But that is a single drop in our water bucket compared to other major sports, and I am one who still considers ours a MAJOR SPORT!

In discussion with a few outside of our industry, some valid, critical points were made with one comment honing in on my lamenting, “J. B. You're too much of an optimist.

“There were those shrewd enough to realize that this began a long time ago – 40-50 years – when tracks began selling their property as land increased in value to a point that harness racing was a bad bet.

“We cursed out the ones that deserted harness racing for the big bucks from land but, you have to remember, harness racing is an industry filled with optimists and have no time to look beyond their individual needs to stay afloat and earn a living.

“Trainers send the bills to the owners and they stay at least able to put a burger on the table.

“The elite drivers dominate the scene and there is no room for the mom-and-pop driver anymore.

“Things have changed and this industry has not, and when land values and circumstances became too good to ignore, the inevitable began to happen – so slowly we hardly even noticed until it was too late.

“Harness racing had a stronghold in many of the major cities that had pro sports teams – Chicago, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Detroit, and Washington, D.C..

“Chicago is just about done, Hollywood Park is gone, Liberty Bell is gone, and Hazel Park, too.

“The handwriting was on the wall and the optimists didn't want to accept it, and here we are.”

Yet another astute observation came in the form of our lack of any viable farm system to hone the skills of anyone interested in our sport.

Yet another comment hit home as one veteran said, “Every single racetrack should offer an intern program for high schoolers and college kids to get involved in harness racing.

“There's no better ‘professor’ in our sport than the day-in, day-out trainers that work with horses.

“These kids, who may not become doctors or lawyers or computer techs, may be very well suited for our business – and we sure could use the new blood.”

In closing this Mane Attraction, here's another idea from a fan, partnering casinos with our tracks, when applicable, to benefit all parties involved.

As we all know, casinos use the “free play” incentive to lure players back to the casino.

The average ranges between, roughly, $10 to over $100 per player with the total, for example, at Pompano Park, when they were racing, being over $2 million per month with Gulfstream Park free play usually over $1.5 million per month.

Our fan suggests that every single program could and should be a “day/night at the races,” sponsored by the casino with all those guests given a casino voucher available only before the first race for $25 in free slot play and redeemable after the 10th race is official.

Yes, I admit, I am an optimist and will remain so until my last breath, but I need a lot of help in justifying my stance on the future of a really great sport.

SUPERSTAR FEMALES OF HARNESS RACING

with VICTORIA M. HOWARD

Kristina Smith keeps horses and drivers safe

by Victoria Howard

When it comes to carrying on family tradition in the sport of harness racing, Kristina Smith ranks at the top of the chart.

Born in Milford, MA, her story and love for standardbreds began with Smith's grandfather, whom she never got to meet, for he passed away when her father was a young boy.

The family patriarch's name was Byron Smith, who was a leading driver in New England in the '50s and '60s.

Kristina was raised by her father Randy Smith and grandmother Linda Nelson.

Nelson drove in horse races primarily at the Maine tracks in the '70s and Kristina's great aunt, Phyllis Smith was the first licensed female pari-mutuel driver in North America and is in the Hall of Fame in Goshen, NY.

“Just last year I had a runaway at Hoosier that pushed me and my horse into the infield towards the fence surrounding the pond. I had to make a split-second decision to bail off my horse and hold onto the other horse as he dragged me through the fence into the pond with him. I was able to land under the horse and hold his head above water until more help arrived.”

It's quite a lot to live up to, but Kristina has held her own in making her family proud.

"My father started training a small stable racing at Plainridge Park, Rockingham Park, and several pari-mutuel and fair tracks in Maine," Kristina said. "I learned a lot about training horses from my dad and my grandmother.

"When I was young, I worked at the barn with my grandmother and tried to absorb everything she taught me about caring for the horses and how to treat injuries. Both my father and grandmother were my two biggest role models growing up.

"I chose to be an outrider as my career, and I'm doing that today. Before that I owned and trained standardbreds which I truly love and admire.

"I guess you could say that Fancy Footwork was my 'heart horse.' I raced him through his 14-year-old year and then retired him where he is enjoying his time in the field. Fancy Footwork was actually the last Western Hanover sired horse to ever race. He always loved to race, and I couldn't have asked for a better horse to grow and learn from.

"Today, I still drive a few horses in the summer at the fairs for my father. My favorite race that I look forward to every year is the 'Family Race.' A race my father and I put together which is held at the Greene County Fair.

"In this race everyone enters as pairs, mother/father, son/daughter. I think it's a great way to support the families with generations in the sport. I still occasionally help my dad with a handful of his horses when he ships to Hoosier Park to race during the racing season."

Do you have any horses of your own?

"I currently own four horses: three are 'finished outriding horses.'

"Hank, my very first outriding horse, is a 23-year-old OTTB [off-track thoroughbred]. CoJo is a 15-year-old quarter horse, Bennett is a 9-year-old OTTB who was the first horse I broke to outride from scratch, and last but not least is Detective, a 6-year-old OTTB.

"They are all stabled at Harrah's Hoosier Park in Anderson, IN where I am the outrider."

How did you start off in your career and do you outride at any other tracks?

"I first started riding at a young age and got into the Riding Under Saddle Races for standardbreds in the East Coast. I raced my dad's trotter Blue Boy Yankee at The Meadowlands, Vernon Downs, Ocean Downs, and the Cornish Fair in Maine.

"When we made the move to Ohio, I took notice of the outriders at the racetrack. I thought it would be a fun job and had a lot of riding experience. I actually caught several loose horses at the county fairs I was racing at on foot before outriding. I knew then it was what I wanted to do with my life.

"I started training to outride at Scioto Downs. From there I rode at both Hollywood Dayton and Miami Valley Gaming. I also outride at two county fairs in Ohio for their race days in the summer months.

"My father, Randy Smith, has been stabled at the Greene County Fairgrounds in Xenia, OH, for the past 10 years. Greene County's Horsemen's Association was the first track to give me the opportunity to pursue outriding, and I am forever grateful. Once I made the move to Indiana, I promised to always come home every year to ride at the fair.

"Last year I started outriding at the Mercer County Fair in Celina, OH. I have friends stabled there at the fairgrounds and it always is such a fun environment to be in.

“ [I’m an outrider] because I’m able to give back to a sport and community that has given so much to me and my family throughout the years. Being able to be a lifeline and help someone in need is the most rewarding part of my job. ”

~ Kristina Smith

What do you like so much about being an outrider at the fairs?

“I really enjoy getting to ride at a couple of fairs for a several reasons. It makes my job feel less of a job being around family and friends and is a great opportunity to slow down and catch up with everyone.

“I believe that fair racing was and will always be the ‘heart and soul of harness racing,’ for it is so much fun and everybody cheers on each other. It’s like one big happy family.

“Racing at the fairs also helps me stay diverse as an outrider, when riding on different sized tracks. I mainly ride at Hoosier Park which is a seven-eighths-mile track.

“Having the opportunity to ride on a half-mile track throughout the summer gives me a chance to brush up on a different riding style. On the smaller tracks things happen at a faster pace; less time and less room when things go wrong to execute the job.”

An outrider is a very important job but can be dangerous. What has been the most dangerous situation you have been in?

“As far as being in dangerous situations, yes, it is dangerous for you have to be alert every minute and watch every horse on the track and be ready to go if there is a wreck, loose horse or if one refuses to go behind the gate.

“There was one time at Miami Valley when a driver in the bike had a broken line. The horse was bearing into the light poles and put me in a tight situation to get everyone safe.

“Just last year I had a runaway at Hoosier that pushed me and my horse into the infield towards the fence surrounding the pond. I had to make a split-second decision to bail off my horse and hold onto the other horse as he dragged me through the fence into the pond with him. I was able to land under the horse and hold his head above water until more help arrived.

“I wasn’t prepared to go swimming that day, but you never know what situation you will be up against.”

Since it can be dangerous and you are a young woman with your whole life ahead of you, why do you do it?

“I do it because I’m able to give back to a sport and community that has given so much to me and my family throughout the years. Being able to be a lifeline and help someone in need is the most rewarding part of my job.”

Is there anything you would like to add about your job and your horses?

“I am fortunate enough to have a string of incredible outriding horses. The most crucial tool to have as an outrider is having a great horse. 80 per cent of the job is having a strong enough bond with a horse, that when you ask them to run into danger they do without hesitation.

“Horses are flight animals, and their natural instinct is to run away from danger. The bond that I have with my horses is something that is very special to me and I trust each of them with my life.”

The heart of the matter

by Trey Nosrac

“No,” I said. “Just riding and thinking out the window. I’ve always liked this state.”

Xavier slid the moonroof shut to make it easier to hear each other.

“Do you really think anyone’s going to run with any of those crazy plans?”

“I’d say it’s 99-1 against.”

“Not enough wacky people like you?”

“There does seem to be a shortage of madcap dreamers and doers in the trotting and pacing world. Horse racing is viewed through the lens of handle, purses, slot subsidies, and chicanery. We’re long past tweaking the image. Racing people keep their heads down, hang on, and hope nothing else goes south.”

“That’s human nature.”

“Sure. But for how long? Why not go south, literally and figuratively? Try a reboot, that places the horse front and center. Keep the history and accessibility. Lose a lot of the baggage. Create an oasis from the warp-speed world. Make it fresh. Removing gambling changes the whole vibe. I don’t see why we can’t race for money without wagering.”

He smiled. “Paint me a mind picture.”

“Okay, what city is the funeral in?”

“Okay. Imagine a new harness racing complex nearby, first-class all the way, big, and beautiful. As you approach, there’s a sign: Welcome to Walterboro, Home of the Leland Trotting Society. A few miles down, visitors turn under a large white arch. A wooden signpost stands just inside the entrance, arrows pointing left and right.”

Xavier and I were taking an unexpected road trip to Walterboro, SC. His grandfather died, and we were going to the funeral. We passed a green Welcome to South Carolina sign, and Xavier steered his Tundra off I-95. He tapped the button to slide open the moonroof and headed south down the two-lane blacktop.

“My pawpaw died two weeks short of his 98th birthday. We thought for sure he’d make triple digits. The guy lived one hell of a life – wars, hippies, family, flitting from place to place. My aunt Nellie always called him a loose cannon. Somebody should’ve written it all down.”

I nodded, “Every life is worth writing down.”

“The last time I talked to him was Christmas, maybe three or four years ago. He said he was glad he lived when he did because the last 10 years this country’s been ‘losing depth.’”

“Losing depth,” I said. “Interesting phrase. Hard to argue against it.”

He glanced over. “So, what’s this trip about for you? A scouting mission for your imaginary racetrack? The radical one without gambling?”

Maybe the heart of the matter is depth. It isn't wagering and gambling. Maybe, just maybe – the way forward for this sport is to build something with enough depth that people want to belong to it, not just bet on.

- Hiking path
- Stables
- Paddocks

“Visitors see spacious, beautiful barns they can walk through, a small museum with photographs of local horsemen, and equipment from decades past. They compare old sulkies with modern ones. There are black and white photos of big crowds in wooden grandstands and film clips of archived races. There are public paddocks where fans can safely observe horses, learn how much care goes into the care and training of a racehorse.”

Waving my hands now, I continued, “There are walking paths around the property. Gazebos overlooking the track. A restaurant serving Sunday brunch. Maybe a farmers’ market in the infield on summer Saturdays or a Sunday church service in the hotel auditorium. Fridays and Saturdays will have racing.

“Retirees watch beautiful trotters from the shade. A trainer explains why he gave his filly an extra week off because ‘she felt a little flat.’ The narrative shifts from money to stewardship, from betting to belonging, and visitors old and new get a new vibe.”

“It may sound that way,” I said, “but underneath it is serious business. There are real advantages in benevolence. Animal sports face scrutiny, so it’s smart to lean into transparency and horse welfare. A facility that has high care standards, invites public observation, and offers retirement pathways for the horses isn’t naïve. It’s smart.

“Education, youth horsemanship programs, and agricultural scholarships could be part of the program. We position the sport as forward-looking. At The Leland Trotting Society, there are no debates over doping horses or cheating scandals. The focus is on the trotting horses, the historic sport, agriculture, and community.”

Xavier shook his head. “All this benevolence makes you sound like the Music Man rolling into River City.”

“Benevolence isn’t weakness,” I said. “And happy people in the fresh air is good.”

We drove the rest of the way in silence, pine trees blurring past the windshield. Somewhere between I-95 and Waltherboro, I thought about his pawpaw’s phrase.

Maybe the heart of the matter is depth. It isn’t wagering and gambling. Maybe, just maybe – the way forward for this sport is to build something with enough depth that people want to belong to it, not just bet on.

Always Bstunning N shines in MGM Ursula McIntyre Pacing Series

by Yonkers Raceway media

Always Bstunning N was put into action in the early stages and posted a major upset, handing Louies Girl N, who had previously been unbeaten in North America, her first defeat in capturing the first of four $50,000 divisions in the second leg of the MGM Ursula McIntyre Pacing Series at MGM Yonkers Raceway on Friday night (April 3). Driven by Tim Tetrick, Always Bstunning N paced the mile in 1:52.1, flying home in 27 seconds flat.

Rocket Deo, Always Bstunning N, and Louies Girl all left the gate hard at the outset, with Rocket Deo crossing to the front into the opening bend for Dexter Dunn. Tetrick had Always Bstunning N away in good order and kept 1-10 favorite Louies Girl N parked three-wide initially before Jason Bartlett elected to reserve the heavy choice midway on the first bend. Meanwhile, Always Bstunning N assumed command at the quarter in :27.4 and Tetrick backed the pace down nicely, hitting the half in just :57.1.

Bartlett put Louies Girl N in motion on the third turn at the behest of Square Deal, who flushed her cover, and the pair set in motion on the backstretch. Tetrick was aware of the favorite's action and picked up the pace, hitting three-quarters in 1:25.1 and setting sail in the final turn. Rocket Deo struggled to keep with the leader, and Louies Girl N, for the first time in North America, had no answer to get close to the eventual winner. Always Bstunning N, a 12-time winner in 2025, won for the first time in 2026, following up a solid third-place finish in her Yonkers debut a week earlier for trainer Gretchen Athearn and owner Richard Poillucci.

As the 9-2 second choice, Always Bstunning N returned $11.54 to win and keyed a $18.86 exacta with the favorite. The trifecta with Rocket Deo was worth $51.40.

Millwood Bliss N made a break before the start in the opening round, but the 6-year-old daughter of Sweet Lou erupted in the second leg with a forceful first-over assault for Dunn and rolled on to a dramatic upset at 52-1 odds in the second McIntyre division, completing the mile in 1:53.

Favorites Seaside Diva (even money) and Walkin On Sunshine (3-5) dueled in the early stages, with Yannick Gingras and Seaside Diva seating the favorite with driver Scott Zeron off the opening bend before cutting the opening fraction in :28.2. Seaside Diva, a first leg winner, then hit the half in :57.3 and appeared to have the race at her control.

Dunn pulled the Nifty Norman-trained Millwood Bliss N on the third turn, and the mare responded quickly to be the heat on the leaders, gaining equal terms with Seaside Diva passing three quarters in 1:26 flat. Silk Cloud A and Lauren Tritton had rallied up second-over on the final turn, but Millwood Bliss N was determined and drove past the leader, kicking home in 27 seconds flat to earn the victory. Silk Cloud A had to settle for second, with Walkin On Sunshine finding some room between horses in the stretch for third. Seaside Diva faded to fourth.

Owned. By Tom Vassiliou, Cool Cat Racing, Nicholas Tallarico, and Archie McNeil, Millwood Bliss N paid $106.60 to win and keyed impressive exotics, with the exacta worth $497.90 and the trifecta $2,400.06.

A favorite finally got on the board in the third McIntyre division as Coastal Babe N and Gingras made it two straight in the series, utilizing the pole position for the second straight week to create another virtual wire-to-wire performance. Coastal Babe N scored decisively in 1:52.3.

Fearless Ginger and Scott Zeron blasted to the front on the first turn while Lydeo and Colin Kelly ducked in behind Coastal Babe N in the early stages. Second choice and last year's series champion Aardie B Miki N tried to leave from post 7 but had to find a 4-hole tuck on the opening bend to keep from being parked.

Coastal Babe N and Gingras regained the lead on the backstretch and proceeded to cut fractions of :27.3 and :56.4 for the first half-mile before shifting into high gear on the third turn. Dunn, driving My Sweet Lily, tried to flush Aardie B Miki N's cover on the third turn, but Bartlett only pulled briefly with Aardie B Miki N before moving back to the pylons off the third turn. While that was going on behind her, Coastal Babe N paced three-quarters in 1:24.4 and sprinted home in :27.4 for the victory for trainer Jared Bako. Fearless Ginger held second, with Lydeo winning a photo with Aardie B Miki N for third.

Owned by Kap Singh Racing Stable, Stephen Klunowski, Earl Hill, Jr., and Don MacRae, Coastal Babe N, as the heavy chalk, returned $2.68 to win and keyed a $22.74 exacta and a $151.88 trifecta.

Tarapasta and Matt Kakaley turned in the fastest of the four divisions, scoring a wire-to-wire victory in the final $50,000 stanza. Tarapasta paced to a 1:52 mile, sprinting a final :27.3

quarter in the process while winning for the first time in eight starts in 2026.

Tarapasta unseated favorite Huntress for the top spot off the first turn and rolled on to the opening quarter in :27.2. With little challenges, the Greg Luther Racing LLC.-owned daughter of Downbytheseaside set fractions of :56.1 and 1:24.2 for the middle-half, with Bath Bomb and Andrew McCarthy taking up the challenge without cover on the backstretch. Tarapasta would draw clear for Kakaley in the homestretch, and Bath Bomb bravely defeated favorite Huntress for the second spot. Huntress, making her first start in the series, finished third with Stayingwiththewind fourth.

Tarapasta is trained by Travis Alexander and returned $10.16 to win as the third choice in the field. Tarapasta keyed a $26.28 exacta and a $125,16 triple. Tarapasta had a troubled trip in the opening leg but recovered to finish second off a first-over trip.

The MGM Ursula McIntyre Series prelims continue through Friday (April 24) before a $200,000 (added) final and a $100,000 (guaranteed) consolation on Friday (May 8).

Stakes action continues at MGM Yonkers Raceway Monday (April 6) and Wednesday (April 8) with the second legs of the MGM Borgata Pacing Series and the John Brennan Trotting Series, respectively. In the Borgata, two of the opening round victors – Donegal Luther N and Chase H Hanover – meet up in the last of four $50,000 sections (race 7). Meanwhile, the John Brennan Trotting Series was divided up into a pair of $30,000 splits.

In addition to the Borgata races, Monday's program also has a $10,332.20 carryover and a $25,000 guaranteed pool in the Pick-5 sequence after no winning tickets were held Friday night.

The guarantee in the Pick-5 is being offered as part of the United States Trotting Association's Strategic Wagering Program. Free past performances for the Pick-5, courtesy of TrackMaster, will be available at handicapping.ustrotting.com. The Pick-5, which begins in race 5 and has a $1 minimum, has a takeout rate of 20 per cent.

MGM Yonkers Raceway is operating on a Monday through Friday live racing schedule with post time each night at 6:45 p.m. (EDT).

Dilly Hanover grows into Weiss Series hopeful

by Ken Weingartner / USTA media relations manager

Dilly Hanover got his career off to a perfect start and co-owner/trainer Emily Bost hopes he will continue to put his best foot forward when the Bobby Weiss Series for 3-year-old male trotters begins next week at Pocono Downs at Mohegan Pennsylvania.

Unraced as a 2-year-old, Dilly Hanover won his debut this past Tuesday (March 31) by four lengths in 1:56.3 at Pocono Downs. Driven by Braxten Boyd, the son of International Moni–Dornello went to the front from post 7 and set all the fractions, including a :56.3 clocking for the second half of the one-mile race.

“We were all very impressed,” said Bost, who owns Dilly Hanover with R K 4 Racing and Bruce Potter. “My partners were tears-of-joy happy. I couldn’t have asked for anything more. I just wanted him to have a good experience, and he sure did. And he was a gentleman the whole time. He’s a true professional.”

Dilly Hanover was purchased for $20,000 at the 2024 Standardbred Horse Sale. His dam, Dornello, had nine previous foals – each with at least one lifetime victory – led by Grand Circuit winner Lauderdale. Dilly Hanover’s second dam is 1990 Dan Patch Award winner Me Maggie, and a deeper look into his family finds millionaires Oh Well, Lifetime Pursuit, Southwind Tyrion, Whiskey Tax, and Credit Winner.

“We loved his video; we thought he trotted very nice in his video,” Bost said about buying Dilly Hanover as a yearling. “We always go to put our hands on the horses and see them before we buy them. We liked the look of him. He was small, but he was nicely put together, and he seemed reasonable to deal with. We took a chance.”

Dilly Hanover qualified once as a 2-year-old, but after a third-place finish in 2:03.3 at Pocono, he was turned out and given time to mature.

Curtis Salonick

Dilly Hanover (Braxten Boyd) winning at Pocono Downs at Mohegan Pennsylvania.

“He just had some xgrowing to do,” Bost said. “I have great partners and they always want to do the right thing for the horse, so we just shut him down for about seven months. We turned him out and just let him do some growing – and boy did he grow. We started him back in late December, early January, and it seems like the time off did him well. He’s come back great. He’s a stunning horse to look at. He turns heads. It’s nice to see that is translating onto the track so far.”

On Monday (April 6), Dilly Hanover will compete in the first of three $17,500 first-round Weiss divisions for sophomore colt and gelding trotters. He will leave from post 5 in a field of eight, with Boyd in the sulky, and is the 3-1 second choice on the morning line. The 5-2 favorite is Bee Positive, a son of Walner out of 2013 Dan Patch and O’Brien Horse of the Year Bee A Magician, who got his first career victory in 1:55.3 last week at The Meadowlands.

“I just hope he continues to do well,” Bost said about Dilly Hanover, who is staked to the Pennsylvania Sire Stakes, PA All-Stars, Liberty Bell, and Simpson Memorial this season. “We’re hopeful. He trots beautifully; he always has. He’s got a great gait. He’s willing. On the track, and in the barn, he listens to you; he’s not unreasonable. He’s a lovebug, too. He loves his scratches, loves his cookies.

“He’s just an all-around nice horse – and I’m glad he is in my stable.”

The morning-line favorites in the remaining two Weiss divisions Monday are Drinking Problems, who is 5-2 in the second, and Confident Volo, who is 5-2 in the third.

Drinking Problems, a son of Bar Hopping—Designed To Be and half-brother to 2019 Dan Patch Trotter of the Year Greenshoe, has hit the board in seven of 12 career races, winning two, for trainer Nancy Takter. The earner of $30,360 lifetime will be driven by Jason Bartlett.

Confident Volo, a son of Bar Hopping—Context, has hit the board in five of eight lifetime starts, winning two. He is one-for-one this year for trainer Todd Buter and has earned $28,281 in his career. He will be driven by Tyler Buter.

The Bobby Weiss Series, named after the longtime trackman at Pocono, also features divisions for 3-year-old male pacers that began on Saturday (April 4), and for 3-year-old female pacers and trotters, both beginning Tuesday (April 7). Following three preliminary rounds, the top horses from each group will meet in $50,000 finals beginning April 25.

Racing begins at 1 p.m. (EDT) at Pocono Downs at Mohegan Pennsylvania. For free Pocono Downs programs, visit the Pennsylvania Harness Horsemen’s Association website here.

HARNESS RACING PRESS RELEASES, NOTES & ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bally's Dover 2025-26 season concludes

Live harness racing for the Bally's Dover 2025-26 season concluded on Thursday (April 2) with a 16-race program. This evening also honored our leading driver, trainer, and the Delaware Valley Chapter of the United States Harness Writers Association Horse of the Meet.

Tim Tetrick won the leading driving title with 157 wins followed by Anthony Morgan (103 wins) and Corey Callahan (100). Leading trainer was Chuck Crissman, Jr. with 75 training wins over Joe Columbo (57 wins), and Traci Berry (49 wins).

Downers Delight was voted the Delaware Valley Chapter of the United States Harness Writers Association horse of the meet trained by Traci Berry. The 7-year-old pacer had 14 starts with six wins, two seconds, and one third place finish, banking almost $123,000 for the meet, owned by TLB Racing LLC. and driven by Pat Berry.

The War Horse Pace was also contested on the closing night for 11-year-olds and older. The winner was Proper One. Owned by Louis Tomczak of Dover, DE, for trainer Carlo Polisenio and driver Cody Polisenio. Last season's winner Silver Fox J finished fourth.

The Delaware circuit now moves to Harrington Raceway for the spring/summer season. Live racing will resume at Bally's Dover on Nov. 2, 2026.

Bally's Dover

'Angel' gives foes a devil of a time in Big M feature

Bravo Angel S was handled cautiously by driver Brett Beckwith in the Friday night (April 3) feature at The Meadowlands.

And her backers were more than OK with it.

She only had one qualifier on her card since a second-place finish in last November's FanDuel Mare Trot, getting beat by M-M's Dream and finishing immediately in front of Warrawee Michelle, who walked away with divisional honors at the end of the year.

So, the resume was there, but her win Friday was still extraordinary in the $27,500 winners-over trot as things panned out, as the 6-year-old daughter of Readly Express—Cilla Sisú came from way back to beat a stellar field in 1:52.1.

Take All Comers, the slight 9-5 second choice, had things well under control for a vast majority of the one-mile dash, quickly moving to the lead out of turn one, and taking the field past the first three splits in :28, :56.2, and 1:25.1.

Bravo Angel S was far back in seventh in the eight-horse field at the half and did get a little closer at three-quarters, racing sixth on the outside. Beckwith didn't have high hopes, but swung the Per Engblom trainee wide into the stretch nonetheless.

"I moved her off the last turn and she was passing a lot of them, so, I was like, I should fly home for a good third or fourth, but, man, she just kept digging down the stretch," said Beckwith.

The stretch drive was nothing short of crazy.

Take All Comers did not have it. Resolve To Win, the slight 9-5 favorite, joined the fray nearing the wire after sitting a pocket trip. Asteroid, who was overloaded with trot, burst onto the scene after splitting rivals late. But at the wire, it was Bravo Angel S, who so many times during a big 2025 campaign showing tremendous late trot, did so again to get up by a nose. Asteroid was second with Resolve To Win third in the three-way photo.

"She was very honest and that was a really good first start off the bench," said Beckwith. "Jason [Bartlett] never asked in her qualifier [when second on March 28]. I didn't want to do much with her too early off the layoff"

As it turned out, he didn't have to.

Bravo Angel S now has 11 wins from 51 career outings, good for earnings of $283,076 for owners Consus Racing Stable Inc. As the 5-2 third choice in the betting, she returned $7.40 to win.

A LITTLE MORE: Beckwith padded his lead atop The Big M driver standings, as his five victories on the program lifted his 2026 total to 68, 33 more than Joe Bongiorno, who is in second place... Engblom and Mark Silva led the trainers with two victories apiece... 73-year-old driver Dante Scattolini drove his first-ever winner at The Meadowlands after guiding 11-1 chance Cheese Omelet to victory lane in the seventh race MADC 1 pace. John Rallis, who served as co-host of the live simulcast presentation, gave out that $25.20 winner on top... All-source handle on the 14-race program totaled $2,454,305.
