Welcome to the Harness Racing Hall of Fame, class of 2025

The induction ceremony is tonight in Goshen, NY.

Tonight (July 6) at the Harness Racing Museum in Goshen, NY, a long list of exceptional people and horses will officially earn the highest honor the industry can bestow – induction into the Harness Racing Hall of Fame. The ceremony begins at 5 p.m.

Congratulations are in order for the newest class of Hall of Famers: Tom Aldrich, Bob Boni, Mal Burroughs and Chris Ryder, and Communicators Judy Davis-Wilson and Debbie Little. We have features on all of the above in this issue, with the exception of Boni, who was featured in HRU last weekend on both Friday and Sunday in Murray Brown's column.

Also being honored are the new members of the Living Horse Hall of Fame: Ariana G, Marion Marauder, Put On A Show and Shartin N and broodmares Fireworks Hanover and Steamy Windows. Lester Hollenback, Bob Key, Harmon Showers, American Winner, Grades Singing, Magician, Romalie Hanover and Town Pro will be inducted as harness racing Immortals. The 2024 Museum Amateur Driving Champion is Lauren Harmon. Twin B Joe Fresh will be honored with the Delvin and Mary Lib Miller 2024 Horse of the Year Perpetual Trophy.

Meanwhile, the Museum's newest exhibit featuring the celebration of the 100th Hambletonian is open to visitors.

Today (July 6) from 11 a.m. – 2 p.m. there will be a Children's Craft at the Fleming Barn, followed by the Hall of Fame autograph session at 3 p.m. Beginning at 6 p.m., the U.S.

Courtesy Harness Racing Museum & Hall of Fame
Tonight in Goshen, NY the class of 2025 will be enshrined in the Harness Racing Hall of Fame.

Trotting Association's Wendy Ross will host a red-carpet style show interviewing some of the evening's honorees and guests, followed by a live stream of the induction ceremony, that will be available on the USTA's social media platforms: Facebook, X (formerly Twitter), and YouTube.

The Harness Racing Museum & Hall of Fame, located at 240 Main Street in, Goshen, NY is open 10 a.m. – 4 p.m. and there is free admission today. Historic Track will also be racing today with a post time of 1 p.m.

Chris Ryder: from Down Under to the top of the sport

The New Zealand native will be inducted into the Hall of Fame in Goshen tonight.

by Matthew Lomon

Picking up the phone to news that his place would be forever etched in U.S. harness racing history inspired a moment of reflection for trainer Chris Ryder.

"I started out at Freehold [Raceway] with a couple of cheap horses," said the native of Greymouth, New Zealand. "Before that, I used to bring up some Down Under horses through California and sell them. I was always pleased to be able to get everything paid for and have a little bit of money to get home."

“[The Hall of Fame is] not something I figured I was in line for but like I always say, ‘Just let my horses do the talking. Don’t overcomplicate, don’t overthink things, just keep the basics.’ But no, it was a nice moment [to get the call about being elected]. I was home with my wife – I just wish my mom and dad were alive because dad loved horses. He always had horses back home in New Zealand.”

~ Chris Ryder

“After a call like that, you look back, not so much on the good horses you had, but where it all started, where you came from... and now, here you are.”

And where he happens to be is amongst the elite of the sport.

It’s been nearly one year since Ryder, who has career purse earnings of $61 million, received word of his selection to the U.S. Harness Racing Hall of Fame Class of 2025.

The stretch between the Aug. 27, 2024, announcement and the July 6 enshrinement ceremony at the Harness Racing Museum and Hall of Fame in Goshen, NY, has given Ryder not only ample time to reflect, but also prepare for the night’s most daunting task: delivering his induction speech.

“I am not renowned for my public speaking, but it is what it is,” said Ryder with a laugh, adding that he is in good hands with fellow industry veteran Bob ‘Hollywood’ Heyden, who will be introducing him.

Jokes aside, Ryder vividly recalls the surreal realization and “great surprise” of learning he was a Hall of Famer.

“It’s not something I figured I was in line for but like I always say, ‘Just let my horses do the talking. Don’t overcomplicate, don’t overthink things, just keep the basics,’” Ryder said. “But no, it was a nice moment. I was home with my wife – I just wish my mom and dad were alive because dad loved horses. He always had horses back home in New Zealand.”

Ryder’s cell phone and email inbox have worked overtime since news broke of his call to the Hall.

“The support was very good,” Ryder said. “It came from all over the place and people you wouldn’t think. A lot of owners I used to have in the past, and people I know in the business – the usual crew. It was quite busy there for a while.”

And then there is Twin B Joe Fresh.

Sporting a lifetime mark of 32-8-1 across 43 lifetime starts, the bay bred by Brittany Farms has earned nearly $3 million during her remarkable career.

In 2024, Twin B Joe Fresh finished no worse than second through 13 starts, winning 11, including nine in a row, en route to claiming Horse of the Year honors at the Dan Patch Awards.

The prolific pacer, who became Ryder’s first Horse of the Year recipient and the second pacing mare to receive the award in its 78-year history, joining Shartin N in 2019, has done wonders for Ryder’s life, personally and professionally.

“It’s been good because between Dexter [Dunn], Pete [Trebotica] that works for me, and one of the owners who holds 10 per cent, we keep asking each other, ‘How long is this going to carry on?’” Ryder said. “She’s in good shape – I think she’s going to be around for a while. At most, it’s getting to be a question of how long we race her for, but that’s the only tough part. Everything else is good. She’s been something unbelievable. It’s been amazing. She’s what you’d call a cornerstone horse that I have to talk about.”

Other standouts who benefitted from Ryder’s tutelage include Cathedra Dot Com, Put On A Show, I Luv The Nitelife, Bettor’s Wish (a double Dan Patch award winner) and Party Girl Hill.

The Allentown, NJ-based conditioner has trained nine Dan Patch and three O’Brien Award recipients.

For Ryder, having the good fortune to hold a full-time role in a sport he has great reverence and respect for is perhaps the biggest reward.

And it is exactly what he found.

Finding success hasn’t come with an ego to match.

“Just to have a good name and to know that you’ve got some integrity, you haven’t cheated people, that you treat people right,” he said. “Whether you need more great horses or not is really beside the point.

“So long as you can rest your head on your pillow not worried about how you treated anybody, and like I said, just being able to make a living doing what I have has been enough for me.”

Soon enough, Ryder will find himself in a New York state of mind – and with a personal cheering section along for the ride.

“My two boys will be there, my wife, of course, and a couple of friends,” he said. “My sister’s arriving from New Zealand.”

The soon-to-be Hall of Famer has traveled plenty of miles of his own, not always under the easiest of circumstances, and reached the finish line more times than he ever could have envisioned.

A Hollywood dream for one of New Zealand’s finest.

“The whole weekend is going to be fun because I think they’re trying to get some horses together for the Hall of Fame driver race,” Ryder said. “We’re going to race a few horses up there over the weekend, too.”

Ryder takes his rightful place amongst harness racing royalty alongside fellow 2025 inductees Tom Aldrich, Bob Boni, the late Mal Burroughs, and communicators Judy Davis-Wilson and HRU’s own Debbie Little.

Ohio's Tom Aldrich joins harness racing elite

by Bob Roberts for OHHA

(Editor's note: This story was originally prepared for the Ohio Harness Horsemen's Association and was shared with HRU with our thanks).

He was on track to argue his way into possibly becoming the next silver-tongued orator. A bachelor's degree from Ohio State University in 1972, and a law degree from the University of Cincinnati's College of Law in 1975. Surely, clients would await him in the corridors of Buckeye courthouses.

Then he took a turn towards harness racing. Back home, in Trotwood, OH, his father was tickled. His mother, not so much.

"Oh, my God," she said. "We've gone through six years of schooling. He was going to be a lawyer. Now he's going to be in horse racing?"

“I’m too dogmatic to be a lawyer, because I can’t argue both sides, so I sent the letter [to Stan Bergstein seeking employment]... My mother was appalled, but my dad was thrilled. He had the Horseman & Fair World magazine at the gas station that he owned. We used to go the races at night at Lebanon. It was a 45-minute drive from home. We usually didn’t get there until the fourth race, and in those days, they only had nine races. But we loved it.”

~ Tom Aldrich

Not to fret, mom. Your son, Tom Aldrich, has done quite well for himself. So much so, that tonight (July 6) in Goshen, NY he will be inducted into the Harness Racing Hall of Fame.

Aldrich earned the honor by piecing together a standardbred career that saw him start at the Harness Tracks of America (HTA) in Chicago, return home for a stint at the Ohio Harness Horsemen’s Association (OHHA) in Columbus, then head into track management at Rosecroft Raceway in Maryland and finally at Northfield Park in northeastern Ohio.

The change of course came about after Aldrich, now 75, read a short story in Sports Illustrated about the legendary Stan Bergstein’s 1974 race call of the Hambletonian (won by Christopher T., driven by Billy Haughton). He sent Bergstein a letter seeking employment at HTA based in Chicago.

“I did so on a whim,” said Aldrich. “I’m too dogmatic to be a lawyer, because I can’t argue both sides, so I sent the letter. I told myself I had to get out of this. My mother was appalled, but my dad was thrilled. He had the Horseman & Fair World magazine at the gas station that he owned. We used to go the races at night at Lebanon. It was a 45-minute drive from home. We usually didn’t get there until the fourth race, and in those days, they only had nine races. But we loved it.”

Aldrich was hired as Bergstein’s executive assistant and was at HTA from the fall of 1975 through January of 1977. He had second thoughts about not using his law degree and returned to Ohio as a law clerk at the First District Court of Appeals in Cincinnati. He lasted three years before racing again tugged at his shirt sleeve.

It was an up-the-road relocation. Aldrich became the general manager of OHHA, which led to his first racetrack job as the GM of Rosecroft Raceway near Washington, DC. It was a position that changed his personal life for good.

“It’s where I met my wife, Lynn,” said Aldrich. “She was a patrol judge at Free State [a rival track in Laurel, MD]. It’s also where I learned that going past post time is a good thing. She was in the first turn and communicated to the starter that track owner Frank DeFrancis, who never wanted to miss a dollar, needed another minute. I’d watch her do all this and that’s where we fell in love. We got married soon after that.”

Aldrich lost his wife, Lynn Fortna, in 2022. She was just two days short of her 72nd birthday, but she left with him with two treasures – daughters Allison and Christine.

~ Tom Aldrich

What brought Aldrich back home to Ohio was another Bergstein recommendation, this one to then track owner Carl Milstein. It led to Aldrich being hired to be Northfield Park’s general manager.

“That was September of 1985,” said Aldrich. “Carl had brought Northfield out of bankruptcy. It wasn’t a good situation.”

Aldrich, getting support from Milstein, and from a staff that he hand-picked, lifted Northfield into North American racing prominence. Feature races like the Battle of Lake Erie, the Courageous Lady, even a couple of Breeders Crown races, made Northfield a pari-mutuel constant with more than 200 racing dates a year.

“Getting the Breeders Crown in 1987 was a big deal, especially for a half-mile track,” said Aldrich. “We ended up having six of them and I’m happy to see Scioto Downs getting next year’s Breeders Crown. The Battle of Lake Erie became our first [in 1986] signature event, followed by the Courageous Lady, the companion to the Battle for fillies.”

Aldrich doesn’t hesitate in pointing to Mary Calabrese, who worked beside him as Northfield’s assistant general manager, as pivotal to the track’s success.

“Mary was the absolute linchpin of the operation” he said. “I get the publicity and the credit, but the pageantry and promotional talent was all her. Her dedication and workaholic approach were truly special. She was the heart and soul of Northfield.”

One of Aldrich’s special work relationships began when he sorted through his mail in 1991 and found a letter from Dave Bianconi.

“I was in the University of Louisville’s racetrack management program, and I started sending out resumes for a summer job, probably to 30 tracks,” said Bianconi. “The only one to get back to me was Aldrich. He told me he hired me because he said I had a perfect resume. No mistakes on it. It helped that my sister was the editor of the Yale Review and that she looked it over. So, I was an intern for the summer of 1991 as assistant race secretary and assistant publicity director. I’ve never left.”

Today, Bianconi is Northfield director of racing and operations. He doesn’t hesitate to give Aldrich full credit for his life in racing.

“I love him,” said Bianconi. “I owe him everything for my career.”

During Aldrich’s leadership, Northfield battled with Thistledown, its thoroughbred rival located just six miles away. They had several epic showdowns over racing dates and simulcast signal rights that played out before the Ohio State Racing Commission.

“Tom was always a tough competitor,” said Bill Murphy, Thistledown’s former general manager and now an executive with Xpressbet. “I respected Tom. He was knowledgeable. We had our differences, but it was always professional.”

Brent Reitz has a unique perspective on Aldrich and racing in northeastern Ohio. He’s been the general manager at both Thistledown and Northfield.

“I got to know Tom during my last three years at Thistledown,” said Reitz. “He was a man I wanted to work for, and I’ve worked for some incredible leaders, Bill Murphy being one of them. I had an inkling I wanted to learn from Tom. I have the utmost respect for what he’s done over the course of his career.”

Aldrich’s last year as the full-time leader of Northfield was 2012. He bought a retirement home in Reno, NV and continued as a consultant to the track. He now fills in as an associate judge at both Northfield and the Cuyahoga County Fair.

As for the future of harness racing in Ohio?

“I’m optimistic,” said Aldrich. “I think it can still prosper because the harness industry has been very pro-active in educating the legislators, remaining in good graces, politically. We’re strong. The OHHA covers every county fair. It’s well spent money. People across the country invest in Ohio harness racing, the breeding program, because of it. The leadership at OHHA is phenomenal.”

Amateur driver Mal Burroughs guided Malabar Man to victory in the 1997 Hambletonian.

Mal Burroughs built The Meadowlands and a Hall of Fame worthy career

by Jay Wolf

Malvern C. "Mal" Burroughs lived a great life and enjoyed thrills that fellow amateur drivers could only dream about. His hard work and dedication allowed the New Jersey native to hoist the sport's biggest trophies and eventually get him the ultimate honor as one of the newest members of the Harness Racing Hall of Fame.

Burroughs grew up in New Jersey and at the age of 14 was forced to support his mother and siblings when his father died in a car accident in 1954.

In 1961 at the age of 21, Burroughs borrowed $8,000 to purchase a used dump truck and thus began his construction company, Burroughs and Son.

Burroughs and Son would steadily grow and later gain a solid reputation that propelled the company to work on projects such as the New Jersey Turnpike, the site work for the Meadowlands Sports Complex and Racetrack and the excavation of the World Trade Center site.

“I will say with 99.9 per cent certainly that [Mal Burroughs’] milestone of being the only amateur to win the [Hambletonian] Oaks and Hambletonian will never be duplicated. That is the dream of every amateur driver out there. You have to be lucky and you have to have a good horse. You have to check a lot of boxes to win a Hambletonian and he did it.”

~ Tom Charters

Burroughs’ passion for harness racing began in the 1970s due to his involvement with The Meadowlands and grew quickly when he became a horse owner.

Thanks to a suggestion from Hall of Fame driver/trainer Del Insko, Burroughs purchased the pacers Distant Thunder (career earnings of $162,289) and Satin Doll ($177,808).

Despite his early ownership success, Burroughs was looking for more, so he purchased Malabar Farms and started driving his horses in the Billings Amateur Series in the early 1980s.

His desire to become a better driver led to a partnership with future Hall of Fame trainer, Jimmy Takter.

“He was very dedicated and wanted to learn how to drive and wanted to get better,” Takter said. “If he did something wrong, I let him know about it.”

Takter and Burroughs combined to win the 1994 Hambletonian Oaks with Gleam.

Again, Burroughs looked for more, and this time he set his sights on much higher goals.

“I want the big one,” Burroughs reportedly said.

In his first Hambletonian, Burroughs drove Climbing Bud to a fifth-place finish in the 1995 Hambletonian elimination and a fifth-place finish in the final.

Burroughs would soon reach the mountain top with the homebred product of Supergill and Lady Love McBur.

“[Mal Burroughs] had good soft hands and never fought the horse. He handled his horses very well... He made it look easy.”

~ Jimmy Takter

Malabar Man was born on March 1, 1994, the first horse foaled on Burroughs' new farm.

Before Burroughs ever had a chance to sit behind the colt, he found himself recovering from five bypass surgeries.

Burroughs would recover and Malabar Man's freshman year would include victories in the Breeders Crown and Campbellsville Stakes and a runner-up finish in the Valley Victory – stamping them as leading contenders for the 1997 Hambletonian.

Malabar Man cruised into the Hambletonian on a six-race win streak, including the Hambletonian elimination.

In the $1 million final, Burroughs floated Malabar Man off the starting gate and took the lead in the opening quarter. Trond Smedhammer and Bowlin For Dollars took control before the half-mile station, putting Burroughs in the pocket.

Many thought the amateur made a mistake by allowing himself to be boxed in behind the tiring leader and with a handful of challengers advancing on the outside.

Burroughs never panicked and found enough of an opening along the pylons and skimmed his way into the lead, emerging victorious by a length over Takter trained stablemate Take Chances.

With the win, Burroughs became just the second amateur to capture Hambletonian glory – Harrison Hoyt won the 1948 edition with Demon Hanover.

Combined with his Hambletonian Oaks title in 1994, Burroughs was the only amateur to win two of the sport's greatest trotting events.

“I will say with 99.9 per cent certainly that his milestone of being the only amateur to win the [Hambletonian] Oaks and Hambletonian will never be duplicated,” said Tom Charters, long-time president and CEO of the Hambletonian Society/Breeders Crown. “That is the dream of every amateur driver out there.

“You have to be lucky and you have to have a good horse. You have to check a lot of boxes to win a Hambletonian and he did it.”

Takter said, “I give Mal a lot of credit. He was under a lot of pressure and all the pressure came from me and himself. He handled the situation quite well.”

After their Hambletonian victory, Burroughs received offers from breeding interests overseas for the champion. The only invitation that Burroughs accepted was to race Malabar Man in the Italian classic, the Orsi Mangelli.

“I stayed an amateur because I am an amateur. Some guys have yachts and airplanes. I have trotters.”

~ Mal Burroughs

Burroughs and Malabar Man would later win the $594,000 Breeders Crown final.

Burroughs drove Malabar Man in every start during his 31-race career, except for the 1997 Bluegrass Stakes at The Red Mile.

“Mal had a bad back and the horse didn’t race well in his previous start [a second-place finish in the C. I. Smith Memorial at Freehold Raceway] and he wanted me to sit behind him to make sure everything was alright,” said Takter.

Malabar Man retired at the end of his 3-year-old season with a record of 26 wins and a bankroll of $2,143,903. He was named the 1997 Dan Patch “Horse of the Year.”

Malabar Man was elected into the Living Horse Hall of Fame in 2008.

“I stayed an amateur because I am an amateur,” said Burroughs in a 2007 interview with the United States Trotting Association. “Some guys have yachts and airplanes. I have trotters.”

He drove 109 winners in 564 career efforts – earning a .322 Universal Driver’s Rating.

His last win of his driving career came in 2005 with Malabar Memories, fittingly the son of Malabar Man and Gleam.

Burroughs was often described as a “self-made man,” who credited his learning about life by living it with the assistance of the Seton Hall (NJ) Seminary, the school which Burroughs would donate much of this driving earnings to in order to maintain his amateur status.

He was actively involved in leading organizations within the sport, including the Harness Racing Museum and Hall of Fame, the Hambletonian Society and the Harness Horse Youth Foundation.

Burroughs passed away on Sept. 20, 2024, just over two months after his election to the Hall of Fame under the Veterans designation was announced by the United States Harness Writers Association. “He had good soft hands and never fought the horse,” Takter said. “He handled his horses very well... He made it look easy.”

Debbie Little on her unexpected route to the CHOF

by Debbie Little

When honored at February's Dan Patch Awards banquet, I told people to read my column on July 4th weekend and I would tell the story of the mind reader, but I think a little background might be needed before I get into that narrative.

No one gets into the Communicators Hall of Fame (CHOF) on their own and there are people that need to be recognized for putting me on this path.

First, I would like to thank my childhood friend, Lisa Nicholas Cardillo. She got me the job at Yonkers Raceway that started the ball rolling. And God bless the late Tom Cosentino for hiring me sight unseen.

Unlike many in the CHOF, being involved in harness racing was never on my radar. I was a science and math major with an aptitude for accounting, but I did grow up loving horses.

Even though I currently write a weekly HRU column about the top track in the world, The Meadowlands, Yonkers Raceway will always have a piece of my heart, because it's my hometown track, and where I met and married my husband. Tim Rooney and Bob Galterio taught me what it was like to work for people that truly care about their employees.

Early on in my nearly 27-year tenure at the New York Post, I learned that harness racing was never going to be given the same light or space as its thoroughbred counterpart, but that never stopped me from trying.

Whenever I was going to a big race out of town, I would politely ask if I could file a few paragraphs. It didn't cost the Post anything because I was paying to travel to the Jug or Le Trot Mondial and since I was an employee, they never paid me to write about harness racing.

Multiple people have told me that working at HRU over the last few years is what got me into the CHOF, but I will always believe doing what I did at the Post was more important for publicizing the sport.

People always say you should write what you know, but I've always said you should write about what you love, and the Post was great about letting me freelance for harness racing magazines.

I started out with TIMES: in harness. David Dolezal and Frank Cotoło saw something in me that I don't think I saw in myself at that time.

In critiquing my work, Cotoło once told me, "You don't know where to put a comma, and don't always use the right tense, but if that's the worst you do, editors will love you."

I would like to think I've gotten better at both, but I will leave that judgement up to Dave Briggs.

While at TIMES, I wrote a story about the difference in penalties for TCO2 positives between the states of New Jersey and Illinois. Not long after my story was published, Illinois put together a task force to revamp their rules and a copy of my story was included in the folders given to each member.

When TIMES: in harness went out of business, I eventually moved on to TROT Magazine.

Darryl Kaplan, Kim Fisher, and currently, Dan Fisher, have always been amazingly open to receiving my story ideas. Even though they don't like them all, they continue to let me pitch, which is all a writer can ask for.

My defining story for TROT was the one that won me the 2020/2021 Hervey, The Legend of Walter Case, Jr.

I always felt if I could ever get Case, Jr. to agree to the interview that I could hit it out of the park. After so many attempts, I was ready to give up, but Dan Fisher convinced me to make one more call and that made all the difference.

Magazine writing gave me a creative outlet that I didn't generally have writing race advances and recaps at the Post, but on occasion I did freelance for other departments at the paper, which did allow me to spread my wings. Writing for the Travel section allowed me to do a story on a small zoo in Oklahoma where I came to sponsor several hybrid wolves. Since I was writing pretty regularly for TROT at that time, all the money I made from them I donated to caring for the wolves.

Although my time at the Post ended sooner than I wanted it to, I will always be grateful for the opportunities it gave me, including jogging Niatross before his 1996 North American tour.

If you have ever worked for a newspaper, you will understand that it's a job you want to have for life. The phrase "They'll have to pry that keyboard out of my cold dead hand," was a typical refrain.

Being laid off in 2020 because the Post was "hemorrhaging money" during the COVID-19 pandemic, was difficult to take. Trying to find a job when everyone is looking to downsize was daunting and disheartening.

When everything looked to be at its bleakest, Dave Briggs asked me to write something for Harness Racing Update on the 2020 Hambletonian. Since I lived close to the track, I could give a first-person account of what the normally bustling place was like during the pandemic.

It turned out to be the first of several pandemic related stories I would write for HRU over the next couple of months. I remember filing one on Oct. 1, four days before I wound up in the hospital for six days with COVID-19.

As an asthmatic, it was a slow recovery, but Briggs continued to give me assignments, before giving me my own column, Meadowlands Matters, that debuted on Nov. 22.

And then, in April of 2023, I was named HRU's associate editor. Reading the columns submitted by our talented writers has made me better at what I do. I can't thank you all enough.

I said this at the Dan Patch awards, but it deserves repeating, "I would like to thank every caretaker, owner, trainer, driver, racetrack employee and fan that has taken the time to speak with me. This is your award as much as it is mine, because I may be the artist, but you are the paint and without you the canvas is blank."

Finally, it's time for the mind reader story.

For those of you who don't know, I met my husband of 35 years, Dave Little, on the phone. I was confirming entries and results from Yonkers Raceway and he was working at the New York Post. We met in person when he came to do the radio show, the Hervey award winning Live From Yonkers Raceway, with my boss at the time, Cosentino.

I quickly dumped the guy that I had been dating for three years to go out with Dave in April 1988. We got engaged in November and married the following September in the winner's circle at Yonkers Raceway.

A couple of months after Dave and I started dating, the Westchester County Fair rolled into town at Yonkers Raceway. One of the attractions was a mind reader named Russ Burgess.

The basics of the act is that Burgess would be blindfolded and somehow connect with members of the audience to answer questions.

In order to participate, you wrote your question down on a small piece of paper, which you then folded in half. The papers were gathered by an assistant and put into a tray that was held in front of Burgess.

As a participant, your job was to concentrate on your initials.

Since this was an afternoon performance in the middle of the week, there were maybe 25 people there, none of which I knew.

Burgess picked out a piece of paper, crumpled it in his hand and said the initials, DD, for my maiden name.

He then asked me to think about my question, which was, "Did I make the right choice?"

He said, "Yes, you made the right choice, and when you go home, say hi to Dave for me."

Dave and I are the only married couple in the CHOF, and although there are other husbands and wives in the Hall, at least one was enshrined as an Immortal, so we are the only living married couple to be elected and inducted in the entire Hall.

I've always told people I had a Hall of Fame marriage; this induction and the mind reader show I'm right.

CHOF inductee Judy Davis-Wilson is an originator and an original with a work ethic that's unmatched

by Dave Briggs

When asked if she wanted to write a piece with her thoughts about her induction into the Communicators Hall of Fame (CHOF) tonight (July 6) in Goshen, NY, Judy Davis-Wilson politely declined.

"I still haven't wrapped my head around this," she said.

Truth is, Davis-Wilson, whose given first name is Zoe, is both an originator and an original – and one of the hardest-working people this sport has ever known.

"I always say I am a bit different than most in the CHOF because I was born into the industry," she said. "My parents were stabled at Ocean Downs when I decided to arrive in the world. Mom missed her 'Sunday' dinner because she wanted her family doctor from her childhood to deliver and he was in Chesapeake City which back then had to be a good two-hour drive from Berlin. So, yeah, I was born on the backstretch."

Davis-Wilson is deeply proud of her roots in the sport.

"If you go upstairs at the Harness Racing Museum and look at the boards on the women in racing you will see my mother," Davis-Wilson said. "She drove at Freehold in 1947. She was a chemist with DuPont and the horses were a hobby.

"My dad came home from WWII [where he served in the South Pacific] and started driving horse vans for Thomas Transportation. He stepped into a private training and driving gig with his uncle, J.M. Davis and it lasted until 'Uncle Med' passed away. For 40 years, the entire stable was homebreds started with a couple of foundation mares purchased from Walnut Hall and the Village Farm of Langhorn, PA."

Despite being born into, as Jerry Connors wrote, "one of the biggest and most successful harness racing families in the state of Delaware," Davis-Wilson made her name on the frontside of racetracks, beginning at age 15 at Georgetown Raceway. It wasn't long before she became the program director at a number of tracks – much-loved Brandywine prominent among them – and was instrumental in implementing the United States Trotting Association's (USTA) computerized program system. That work was invaluable when Davis-Wilson began working at The Hambletonian Society, where she served for many years as its stakes manager.

When Delaware became one of the first jurisdictions to open racinos, Davis-Wilson was instrumental in reinvigorating the Delaware Standardbred Breeders Fund (DSBF) when some of the slot machine revenue was directed toward purses. As Connors wrote, Davis-Wilson "can handle most any phase of the complex workings of a breeders and stakes program, and is frequently called upon to do so."

She remained the director of the DSBF for well over two decades until her retirement in April of this year.

If all that wasn't enough, Davis-Wilson has been a director of the United States Harness Writers Association (USHWA) for 22 years. She is one of the very few to have held five different USHWA officer positions, including president and treasurer. She also has served the association with aplomb as the long-time head of Dan Patch Banquet ticket sales and as the gala's chief seating organizer.

Not surprisingly, given her resume, work ethic and the fact she is extremely well liked by her peers, Davis-Wilson's induction into the Communicators Hall of Fame is not her first honor. She received a President's Award from the USTA in 2006 and was voted USHWA's Member of the Year in 2013.

Yet, through it all, she has remained true to her beloved Delaware roots in harness racing and instrumental in sustaining the sport in the state for years to come.

TALES FROM THE CURMUDGEON

with MURRAY BROWN

Longtime horseman Robbie Siegelman believes charity begins in the barn

by Murray Brown

Robbie Siegelman has been involved with horses all of his adult life — mostly as a trainer of standardbreds, but in recent years those of all breeds and types. Currently, his stable is home to 27 horses with the youngest being 16 years old. How did this all evolve one might ask?

“I was born, raised and still live in Roslyn, NY, about a 10-minute drive from Roosevelt Raceway,” Siegelman said. “I was one of the lucky guys. I lived through the best years of Roosevelt and Yonkers and then those of The Meadowlands. I am now a volunteer with three different equine charity groups. I still have an interest in harness racing. I manage the horses of Barry and Jeff Rubenstein who I’ve been with in different capacities for over 40 years. I doubt that there is a longer association in the sport than that which I’ve had with those guys. They’ve not only been great clients, but they’ve been the best friends a person could have.”

How did this evolve? How did horses become such a huge factor in your life?

“I was in the ninth grade here in Roslyn. A man by the name of Nunzio Ceriello owned a service station in the town. I wanted to earn a few bucks. I went to work for him part time, pumping gas and doing odd jobs around the station. We developed a friendship. Nunzio owned some horses with Tony Abbatiello as his trainer. He would often take me to lunch with him at Tally Ho Farms, then we’d stop by Roosevelt Raceway to spend some time with his horses. Through Nunzio I met Tony and his brother Carmine. Tony was to become the person from whom I learned more about horses and horsepeople than any other. I got some jobs grooming with John Paton and Tommy Giamenco. After high school, I went to college in Florida - more to play soccer than to educate myself. I came back to Long

“On Saturdays I drive out east on [Long] Island and volunteer at Warrior Ranch, a program that works with military veterans and their families. Many of these folks are damaged, both emotionally and physically. I should mention that Jeff Gural and Jason Settlemoir at The Meadowlands have been most kind in helping and hosting these people who have done so much for America.”

Island and got a job grooming for Tony. Talk about a guy being lucky. Tony was a great horse trainer and his younger brother Carmine was the best driver, on the best racing circuit in the world. If a person didn't learn from being in that school, then he was incapable of learning. We did extremely well. After about three years with Tony, in 1982 I went out on my own."

What motivated you from leaving what you describe as a perfect job?

"Probably two main reasons. The first was, it was time. There comes a time when most people decide that they want to captain their own ship. The second was probably the makeup of Tony's stable. It was great. Tony and his horses were terrific. But they were almost entirely overnight horses with a good many claimers among them. I didn't particularly like the claiming game. Early on I welcomed the challenge of buying yearlings and trying to develop my own stars."

Haven't you been with Barry and Jeff Rubenstein almost from the first when you went on your own?

"I met Barry and Jeff; we seemed to hit it off from the start. We've been together ever since — through the good times and some not so good times. They've been the best and most loyal owners a guy could have. Another early owner was Gordie Freeman a close friend of the Rubensteins. They had confidence in me. I've tried to repay that confidence in the best way I could. The first time I went yearling shopping I went to Lexington with Dr. Bernard Brennan. If there has ever been a better or more knowledgeable equine veterinarian than Dr. Brennan, I haven't known that person. We did reasonably well, especially for a small stable. Then disaster struck. I hate even thinking of it. After Roosevelt shut down, we moved to Gaitway Farms. We were having maybe our best year ever when a fire destroyed almost our entire stable. Among the horses we lost were both the champion New Jersey and New York 3-year-old pacers. I never thought we could recover, but somehow, we did. The guys were great. They stuck with me. Fortunately, the yearlings in the stable were in another barn. One was Cheyenne Rei who became a major stakes winner and went on to earn over $700,000 for the stable."

Where does Cheyenne, the name that many of the Rubenstein horses carry, come from?

"The ownership of the horses bred or owned by the guys carried that name the Cheyenne Gang. Barry Rubenstein is a high-tech guru. Barry's first plane was a Cheyenne; the company he founded was Cheyenne Software, thus the name of the horses. Subsequently the software company was sold to Computer Associates here on Long Island."

“ [My son Max’s] business has grown to the point where the two most iconic sports figures in New York City, Aaron Judge of the Yankees and Jalen Brunson of the Knicks, wear Siegelman Stable hats. The best part from my vantage, other than my pleasure at his success, is that a percentage of all that he sells goes to equine charities. ”

~ Robbie Siegelman

Even though you dip your toe into the standardbred world occasionally, your work with horses today is mostly involved with equine charities. Please tell us how that came about?

“I suppose that it started when I was racing at The Meadowlands. I’d leave Roslyn early in the morning and often, especially when we were racing in the evening, wouldn’t return home until late at night. We’d train in the morning. That left a large void of several hours with little or nothing to do in the afternoon. Together with Chris McErlean at The Meadowlands and with the help of Steve Wolf and the Harness Horse Youth Foundation, we developed a program called Horses Helping People. We introduced a group of inner-city kids to horses and the horse business. The kids would spend time at the stable with the horses and learning different aspects of the business. Sometime later the program expanded with the help of George Zofinger, then the CEO of the Authority to add another aspect to it. We began a program called Horses with Hearts aimed at kids who were cancer patients at the Hackensack Hospital. This allowed those kids to not only interact with the horses but also allowed them access to the entire the entire Meadowlands Complex. We got the kids into to the sports and entertainment venues taking place throughout The Meadowlands. I not only was playing a small part in doing something good for people who needed and appreciated the help, but I loved doing it.”

The original program has now morphed into Horse Ability, a program where you help handicapped kids, sick kids, kids with autism and military kids.

"We have 27 horses resident on 20 acres or so in the midst of the State University of New York [SUNY] campus in Westbury. The program is administered by a board and is funded by donations. I'm not a board member. I'm a volunteer worker. But I'm there five days a week - Monday through Friday. Because of the nature and possible fragility of the kids, it's important that the horses are docile and easy to work with and be around. That's part of the reason why our equine herd is made up of geriatrics. On Saturdays I drive out east on the Island and volunteer at Warrior Ranch, a program that works with military veterans and their families. Many of these folks are damaged, both emotionally and physically. I should mention that Jeff Gural and Jason Settlemaier at The Meadowlands have been most kind in helping and hosting these people who have done so much for America.

"Another equine charity with which I am involved is a group of military vets from Illinois called Brave Hearts."

Your son Max has taken the equine charity aspect to the next generation.

"He is really good at marketing. He was working with a firm called Out Front Media, one of the largest producers of billboards in the country. Then COVID came along. He was prevented from going to work, necessitating his remaining at home. To keep him occupied, he began making very limited amounts of harness racing memorabilia, mostly hats and T shirts carrying the Siegelman Stables logo for family members and some of us involved with the stable. Some of his friends saw then and wanted some for themselves. 'I can sell this stuff,' he told me.

"The business has grown to the point where the two most iconic sports figures in New York City, Aaron Judge of the Yankees and Jalen Brunson of the Knicks, wear Siegelman Stable hats. The best part from my vantage, other than my pleasure at his success, is that a percentage of all that he sells goes to equine charities."

THE VIEW FROM WOODBINE MOHAWK PARK

with MELISSA KEITH

Was Switch born to trot?

by Melissa Keith

In baby race 12 at Woodbine Mohawk Park's June 21 "rookie showcase" for 2-year-old trotters and pacers, a quiet buzz surrounded a gelding who wasn't fully either.

Switch, a pacing-bred son of Cattlewash—Party In Rome, finished second to winner Classified in a qualifier with seven trotters, two of whom made breaks. Individually timed in 2:00.4, Switch closed in :29.1 for driver Trevor Henry, holding off Felix Hanover down the stretch.

Originally named Roman Home, the aptly-renamed Switch made his pari-mutuel debut Tuesday (July 1) at Mohawk. In line to Travis Henry in an event for 2-year-old non-winners of a race or $8,000 lifetime, the gelding finished third to Green Manalishi S filly Calgary Morning. He trotted a personal 1:59 flat mile without trotting hobbles or miscues. It was becoming clear that the Terry Gallant trainee was all trot, despite his pacing pedigree and the misgivings of early spectators.

But where did it come from?

"Bill Manes raised him; he owns the mare," said Gallant, pointing out that both Switch and dam Party In Rome are owned by a partnership consisting of Rockwood, ON resident Manes, William Cripps of Acton, ON, and Steven Papillon of Rockwood, ON. The trainer added that doesn't share ownership with them.

"I'm not lucky enough," he said.

Gallant told HRU that he usually works with young horses owned by Manes, which led to him breaking and training Switch.

"He's a homebred," said Gallant. "I just brought him in from the field after the London Sale... He came in from the field at the end of October-first of November, after being out as a baby. He was out at the [former] Warrawee Farms; a new owner runs it now [as Everton Farms Equine], Sarah Roberts from Guelph. Bill has maybe five broodmares over there."

The former Summerside, PEI horseman told HRU that Switch was the unlikely fulfillment of a longstanding hope.

"Bill owns Il Sogno Dream [4, 1:50.2m; $1,128,533], and he's standing in Ohio now," said Gallant. "I begged him for years to let me train a trotter, one of his babies."

Then Switch came along.

“He wasn't nice to break,” said Gallant. “There was nothing nice about him! I had to tranquilize him. I had to twitch him. I had to practically hog-tie him just to get the harness on him... In my younger years, it wouldn't have worked, but I have more patience than any horse now.”

Gallant added that he never abused or hurt Switch, and that the measures were taken to protect the temperamental colt and those around him.

“I put the harness on and left him in the stall,” said Gallant. “I told him, ‘When you stop being an idiot, then we'll go.’ He's always had a mind of his own and done whatever he wanted.”

What about gelding Switch?

“That was the next stage,” the trainer said.

First, Gallant got to know him a little better. When Switch was initially brought in for early lessons, “one part of his foot was worn off from running in the field.”

Gallant said, “I told Bill. He said, ‘Just jog him, that's all. He'll just be a little behind everyone else for a while.’”

Farrier Larry Small worked on the colt's feet with guidance from Gallant.

“I'm not telling them, I'm talking to them,” said the trainer.

It helped that Small has a background as a trainer and driver, allowing him to assist by sitting behind Switch as Gallant observed.

“I have great help,” said Gallant. “He's had some good trotters himself. He's the only one who's sat in a jog cart behind him, besides Trevor and Travis Henry. [Small] loved [Switch] all the way through.”

Once Switch hit the training track, he made it clear that anything but trotting was not an option.

“Good trainers were laughing at me [about my pacing-bred trotter Switch]. Then six or eight weeks ago, they were high-fiving me when I walked out the [paddock] door.”

~ Terry Gallant

“He’s alert,” said Gallant. “When he learns something once, he’ll never forget. When I broke him and put him in the jog cart, he never paced a step in his life, I swear on my mom’s arm.”

The Rockwood, ON trainer said he also wanted to make sure that Switch wasn’t one-dimensional on the racetrack.

“I was so scared to train him down... Trevor Henry knows that I learn them how to leave when I train them down,” said Gallant. “I told Trevor not to leave with him or he’ll want to do that the rest of his life... He’s so smart, it’s unreal.”

Gallant had firsthand experience with Party In Rome (p, 3, 1:52s; $191,035) and her other offspring, none of whom showed interest in trotting.

“I had every foal out of the mare,” he said. “I sold one to Ron Burke, a half-sister [Third Time Lucky (p, 4, 1:53.4f; $48,040), by Bettors Delight], and I still have [Sportswriter gelding] Roman Gladiator [p, 3, 1:57.3s; $9,433].” The latter took his mark at Mohawk on March 1, before being scratched sick March 15 and encountering interference twice in his comeback efforts.

Meanwhile, Switch was showing promise on the trot.

“He was only in 2:05 before the [June 21] baby race, and I asked Trevor [Henry] not to break two minutes,” said Gallant, a longtime friend of the Arthur, ON driver. “Every time he’s raced, he’s dropped a little bit more.”

Switch has attracted curiosity because of the gait he seemingly chose for himself.

“He’s never paced or run a step in his life. He’ll kick the jog cart and he won’t run. He’s right back trotting,” said Gallant, adding with a laugh that the gelding “ain’t never going to be double-gaited or bisexual or whatever you want to call them.”

Looking into the tail female line of Switch, which originates from foundation mare Medio, might provide more insight into where the pacing-bred trotter got his gait. His dam Party In Rome is out of Davincis Choice, maternal granddaughter of the Dan Patch 1985 3-Year-Old Filly Pacer of the Year Steinam (p, 3, 1:53.4m; \$1,355,474). Steinam's maternal great-grand-dam is Beppy Hanover (p, 3, 2:05.2h; \$25,717), a daughter of trotter Bertha Hanover (3, 2:08 $\frac{3}{4}$ m).

It's Beppy Hanover's maternal grand-dam who raises intrigue about Switch's potential: Miss Bertha C (3, 2:10 $\frac{1}{4}$ m) produced 1966 Hall of Fame inductee Miss Bertha Dillion, dam of 1930 Hambletonian champion Hanovers Bertha (3, TT1:59 $\frac{1}{2}$ m; \$71,779), who was also inducted into Goshen, NY's Harness Racing Hall of Fame in 1957. Hanovers Bertha became the first Hambletonian winner, stallion or mare, to produce a Hambletonian-winning foal: Her daughter Shirley Hanover won the 1937 edition.

Curiously, Hanovers Bertha also produced two double-gaited sons: Edgar Hanover (p, TT2:00 $\frac{1}{4}$ m; \$18,547; 2:09m; \$1,857) by trotter Calumet Chuck, and Sparkle Hanover (p, 2:04h, \$21,474; 3, 2:03 $\frac{1}{2}$ m, \$9,805) by trotter Mr McElwyn.

Bertha Hanover, half sister to Hanovers Bertha, produced one trotter and one double-gaited horse from 10 foals who raced. The rest were pacers. Bertha Hanover is Switch's tail female great-great-great-great-great-grand-dam.

As Switch trained down, he attracted attention and skepticism for his incongruous gait. On Wednesday (July 2), Gallant told HRU that Ontario Sires Stakes Gold is next on the agenda for the 2-year-old gelding. Gold leg #1 is slated for July 12 at Mohawk.

True to his name, there's been a Switch in how the trotter and his trainer are being looked at now.

"Good trainers were laughing at me," said Gallant. "Then six or eight weeks ago, they were high-fiving me when I walked out the [paddock] door."

EUROPEAN REPORT

with THOMAS HEDLUND

Jepson bests 'Jepson' in Sprintermästaren

by Thomas Hedlund

Carl Johan Jepson is the leading driver in Sweden in 2025. Jepson has been in the top 10 among the Swedish drivers for several years, but this season is something special and his development as a driver is strong every year.

When Halmstad hosted the $240,000 Sprintermästaren for 4-year-olds, with two heats Thursday (July 3) night, Jepson secured a spot in the final as the runner-up in the elimination behind Jerry Riordan trained Far Wise As (Face Time Bourbon). Far Wise As couldn't reach leader Loxahatchee (Greenshoe), but finished well with plenty of power saved for the final some hours later.

Preacherman (Father Patrick) upset big favorite Free Time Jepson in the first elimination and Daniel Wäjersten claimed next race behind Before Takeoff (Nuncio) before Robert Bergh sent J.Kagan Brick (From Above) to final via a safe wire-to-wire win.

Free Time Jepson, Alessandro Gocciadoro's new star trotter, was the favorite from post 10 in the final and the initial part of the race became furious, with Loxahatchee and J.Kagan Brick in a hard battle for the lead. Loxahatchee made a break in the first turn whereupon J.Kagan Brick became the horse to hunt.

Jepson showed why he's considered to be the best driver in Sweden as he left second over for a first over trip with a kilometer to go and his drive Far Wise As proved strongest in the mile race this evening. Far Wise As promised a lot when he started his career as a 2-year-old and continued the sophomore season by winning the $200,000 E3 final in August last year.

Now, the Italian bred trotter showed that he's back on top and he won the final in 1:53.4.

Free Time Jepson finished strongly and approached the winner in the last few meters, but ended with a silver medal. Preacherman was third after an inside trip.

The 4-year-old mares had qualified for the $180,000 Stosprintern 10 days ago and Adrian Kolgjini's Kilimanjaro Face (Googoo Gaagaa) was the one that impressed the most, which led to a position in the final where she was the horse to beat, according to the bettors. Kilimanjaro Face, bred as a Danish trotter by Adrian's father Lutfi, stormed to the lead in the first turn and then nothing much happened. Kolgjini was allowed to keep the pace at a very moderate level and Kilimanjaro Face showed great willingness to stay in her position in front of the field.

She was just superior to her opponents on Thursday evening. Kilimanjaro Face flew in the stretch and won easily in 1:55.4.

Elegance Silvio was second ahead of Oriana Boko.

GOCCIADORO DOMINATED IN MODENA

Alessandro Gocciadoro's Derby winner First Of Mind (Face Time Bourbon) claimed his third Group 1 victory for the season when he won Saturday's (June 28) $165,000 Gran Premio Unione Europea in Modena, Italy.

First Of Mind came to the lead and had control all the way to the wire. The mile rate for Gocciadoro's trotter was 1:55.1 over 1.3 miles and First Of Mind is definitely establishing his position as a top trotter in the Italian 4-year-old-crop.

Gocciadoro, Face Time Bourbon, and an Italian bred 4-year-old proved best in the $70,000 mares division of the Gran Premio Unione Europea. Funny Gio (Face Time Bourbon) disarmed leader Faharajah One after a second over trip and claimed the victory in 1:54.2.

Just like the $220,000 Anact Stakes Plus races earlier this year, Gocciadoro had the same winners in both divisions.

MASSIMO HOIST VICTORIOUS TWO DAYS IN A ROW

Finland's $180,000 Suur-Hollola-ajo in Lahti is not a race for weak horses. Races two days in a row requires strong, hardy horses and it was pretty well deserved when merited Massimo Hoist (Muscle Hill) claimed the win in Sunday's (June 29) final.

Massimo Hoist was hard to beat from the lead in Saturday's (June 28) elimination and when he reached the same position after 500 meters in Sunday's final, Massimo Hoist was more or less outstanding in a mile rate of 1:56 over 1.3 miles.

Massimo Hoist was Finland's contribution in Elitloppet this year and he was runner-up behind Borups Victory in the Kymi Grand Prix and Seinäjoki Race in Finland earlier this season.

A fun fact about the winner is that his mother, Venice, won the Suur-Hollola-ajo two years in a row, 2016-17.

with FRANK COLTOLO

Hambletonian dominance: praise for the bigger and stronger win

by Frank Cotole

Sports journalists and writers of horse-racing literature and pulp and screenplays and race charts always define dramatic horse races with the same competitive dynamics at their finishes. Horses dueling down the stretch in pairs result in razor-thin finales or explosive last-to-first-come-from-behind wins and then by a nose or a whisker; those are the stuff that horse-racing adventures thrive upon.

I never found those scenarios breathtaking. They were obvious and contrived and they sucked the thrills from all true drama; especially in races where I have a wager.

My heart always beats faster – whether a race was a classic stakes or a high-or-low claimer or an allowance or any level of maiden – when the horse I backed controls the field from start-to-finish.

What is even better for me in a wire-to-wire contest is when the horse I back increases its lead en route to the victory. This for me is not a single win; it is multiple wins in the same race. I get a win at the first quarter and at the half and at the three-quarters and at the finish line. It is an experience of great beauty and splendor. And it demands watching the replay before cashing.

In the Hambletonians I watched either live at The Meadowlands or on TV or streaming online at home – I have seen my share of wire-to-wire wins. But I was not involved in betting most of them, and betting was necessary for my ideal winning conditions. That situation developed in the 2011 edition of the storied stakes race.

On Aug. 6 at The Meadowlands, I was the lone harness racing handicapping/wagering/reporter for the Internet's Advanced Deposit Wagering platform called TwinSpires.com (TS) and I was also on the Hambletonian Society's reporting team.

TS ran a Players Pool the week leading up to the stakes-ridden Hambletonian Day program. It was a simple gimmick. TS members invested money to buy shares of the total wagers I was responsible for choosing and making during the racing day.

Win, place, show, exacta and trifecta bets were made and recorded from the huge Players Pool bankroll participants

“Every horse that took the front [early] got beat today [on Hambletonian Day, Aug. 6, 2011]. [Broad Bahn is] like a big steam engine.”

~ Ole Bach

created to be used only on any races during the Hambletonian Day program. Players Pool boss Ed DeRosa punched in the bets via a computer connection to Churchill Downs' TS headquarters to the New Jersey track's press box.

The traffic for Meadowlands racing at TS was huge because the Players Pool was a popular attraction. (We would be successful on occasion later in the year when TS ran the gimmick for huge exotic-pool carryovers at Mohawk).

It took some fancy keyboard work for Ed and I to get big bets in on time but it was a special thrill to see our financial impact on the tote board as it assembled odds from in-house and online bettors worldwide. We provoked a handsome profit for participating players through the races leading to the main event but the Hambletonian itself would be the pinnacle of the day's success.

Our win and exotic wagers involved in the Hambletonian field centered around Broad Bahn. These were the largest wagers the Players Pool presented for the whole card and the four-digit win wager the single highest. The profit possibilities were terrific considering Broad Bahn was not the favorite. Two others in the field shared the top three embraced by the betting population.

Manofmanymissions and Whiskey Tax took the most money; Broad Bahn offered 4-1. Chapter Seven (who would become the most prolific sire of the powerful soph-colts in the 2011 final) was also in the field. Handicappers provided many scenarios to support wagers on the quartet but my fervent theory made Broad Bahn a major overlay; he would go to the front and not give up the lead.

An abbreviated review of the race: Broad Bahn (George Brennan) went wire-to-wire without a serious challenge to win the $1.5 million Hambletonian in 1:53 by 3½ lengths.

My son Ray and I stood on the apron at the finish line and watched Broad Bahn win for us at the first, second and third quarters and jumped in exaltation as he completed the victory for us and every companion bettor in the Players Pool.

The leading-all-the-way win was not the popular strategy that day.

"Every horse that took the front [early] got beat today," said trainer Ole Bach. "[Broad Bahn is] like a big steam engine."

I recall watching the Belmont Stakes before I was involved in pari-mutuel betting and horse race reporting; it was the day Secretariat devastated rivals to win the Triple Crown by an historic 31 lengths. When I began betting on harness races, I embraced every chance to recapture the multiple senses of cheerful joy when a wager won a bigger and stronger win by taking control from start-to-finish.

A sport, like any business, can spiral downward quickly. Some players in our sport follow pending state legislation with the same intensity as buyers study yearling catalogs. The racing scene today will not remain the same in the long run. Nothing stays the same.

For many years, my wife, daughter, and I took baseball trips every summer to catch minor league baseball games in the New York Penn League. When the schedules were released, we selected options from the menu of at least 14 NYP towns hosting games in the upcoming season. Then we booked quaint Bed and Breakfast Inns, explored the city during the day, and visited the ballpark in the evening. I cannot explain the magic of the summer days and evenings watching young professional players with big dreams and meeting friendly people.

Then, one day, shockingly, the league was gone.

Gone? The New York Penn League had been around since 1939. It was America's oldest and longest-running minor league, with lovely towns in mountain foothills and near the shores of the Finger Lakes.

That's a lot of teams, a lot of cities, a lot of history, a lot of ballparks, a lot of players, a lot of competition for seats at next season's league table, and a lot of broken hearts when the lights went out on the venerable league. So, what happened?

The reason that this historic league disappeared is a lesson for harness racing; it was just business, nothing personal. Businesses do not care that the city of Auburn, NY, is lovely and that the sport has been played there in quaint stadiums for a long time. Businesses do not run on nostalgia. Businesses run on money.

The COVID-19 pandemic disrupted the 2020 baseball season, accelerating changes. Major League Baseball decided to restructure the minor leagues and reduce the number of affiliated minor league teams. They eliminated several leagues, including the New York Penn League, a Class A Short Season circuit, primarily serving as a developmental stage for newly drafted players. The business plan was to streamline player development and cut costs.

The elimination of the NYP league is sad but shows how quickly events can change, leaving disappointed fans, workers, and players with no place to turn or no one to turn to.

But that is not the end of this story.

Some individuals and groups would not let the lights go out. They would not let the green outfield grass wither and die. Innovators, go-getters, visionaries, passionate advocates, investors, individuals, and incorporated Town Councils did what many people do when knocked down. They rose, determined not to be the ones holding the reins for the end of the game they loved. Baseball continues in many, but not all, cities that hosted a New York Penn League team.

How did teams and cities adapt to keep baseball alive after the New York Penn League dissolved in 2021? Different cities took different paths to the future.

Some teams, such as the Hudson Valley Renegades, upped their game, joined other affiliated MLB Leagues, and became a New York Yankees High-A affiliate.

Some orphaned teams moved to the Independent Leagues. The MLB does not fund Independent Leagues. The Tri-City ValleyCats entered the Frontier League, maintaining professional Baseball outside MLB's structure.

Some rumors are that a "League of Their Own" is percolating.

Some of the abandoned baseball cities joined Collegiate Summer League Teams. Several teams, including the State College Spikes, shifted to collegiate summer leagues, allowing them to continue hosting games with amateur players.

A few franchises, like the Lowell Spinners, folded or suspended operations. These franchises did not devise a plan or could not secure a new league and ceased baseball operations.

The analogy to harness racing is simple.

A beloved sport shockingly disappeared. Other entities pulled funding, leaving the local participants alone. A core of people who loved the sport wanted to continue. The obstacles were/are many – the primary obstacle is that the restarts begin without any guaranteed funding. Today, after the storm struck the NYP League, baseball action in the towns that lost their franchise ranges from oblivion to surprising success. While extremely difficult, a restart of a defunct baseball league can succeed.

If a disaster hits harness horse racing, will we have the resilience to race on? Can we convert from an engine driven by gambling to a more self-funded sport? A non-gambling or a minimal gambling horse racing world is challenging to ponder because the pari-mutuel model is the only model we have ever known. Could a harness racing league of our own be possible?

These are difficult questions to ponder.

But right now, we are planning a trip to watch the Mahoning Valley Scrappers, one of the teams that rose from the rubble of the New York Penn League. The Scrappers now play in a collegiate summer league. The game will not be precisely the same, and the players will not play for money, but the game will continue – and that's something.

Sabonis bags dominant win in Bergstein Graduate Pace final

by Ray Coto for The Meadowlands

Off a grinding return-to-form effort in defeat in the last preliminary, driver Dexter Dunn took authority with Sabonis for a slam-dunk 1:47.3 victory in the $230,000 Stan Bergstein Graduate Series Pace on Saturday night (July 5) at The Meadowlands.

Sabonis pushed from post 2 and landed third in the early firing line with Captain Luke swooping forward from post 7 and marching to grab the lead through a :26.1 first quarter. Dunn then vacated his seat at the cones and brushed towards the top – with Nijinsky and Captain Albano following suit – entering the backstretch.

While Sabonis easily crossed and cleared the lead before a :54 half, Nijinsky struggled to push past when first over into the far turn. Sabonis stayed on the muscle while pressed by Nijinsky to three-quarters in 1:21.2 and shrugged away that rival spinning for home. Captain Luke became the main threat in the stretch with a furious rally through an inside seam off the pocket trip, but Dunn kept Sabonis to task in the final-quarter sprint to stave off that charge by three-quarters-of-a-length. Nijinsky held third from Captain Albano, who tipped wide from his second-over trip to take fourth.

Sabonis (Dexter

the $230,000 Stan
Bergstein Graduate
Series Pace on July 5 at The Meadowlands.

"I was happy to let Nijinsky to go," Dunn said, "but he just couldn't quite get around me and my fellow was traveling so strongly at the time. Once he fought off Nijinsky and I asked him to speed at the top of the straight, he knuckled down good."

Diamond Creek Racing acquired Sabonis from previous owner Pat Miller and trainer Aaron Stutzman — off a sophomore campaign with 16 wins from 18 starts — before the 2025 season, but the 4-year-old stallion by Tellitlikeitis—Gypsy Bellevue floundered in his first two starts. Both Dunn and trainer Brett Pelling said some equipment changes got the stallion back in the right direction.

"The one race he disappointed everyone there [on June 13], he went three high on the turn, got hung up on the head pole... I was concerned, but Dexter said he was good," Pelling said. "We just needed to let him run in a little bit, let him do his thing and we'll be fine. So, we just put the equipment on a little differently and he's gone forward ever since."

Diamond Creek Racing shares ownership of Sabonis, an 18-time winner with $621,750 in earnings, with Pelling Racing LLC. He paid $11.60 to win.

Warrawee Michelle storms to Bergstein Graduate Trot win

by Frank Cotoło for The Meadowlands

Last season's Hambletonian Oaks winner Warrawee Michelle, one of three mares in the field and a rank outsider in the wagering, won the $230,000 Stan Bergstein Graduate Series 4-Year-Old Open Trot on Saturday night (July 5) at The Meadowlands.

Trainer/co-owner Ake Svanstedt was in the bike to guide the daughter of Walner—Sound Check to a personal-best 1:50.2 effort.

It was a flashy mile with a lot of movement as Warrawee Michelle left swiftly off the gate along with Gruesome Twosome, 7-5 favorite Private Access and Amazing Catch. Scrambling for control, the early leavers cut the first quarter in a scorching :26.3.

The shuffling began and Warrawee Michelle took back to race wide towards the middle of the pack when Gruesome Twosome pressed by Sir Pinocchio for the lead. Private Access then pushed forward for the front with Highland Kismet catching his cover and the half remained fiery to a :54.3 clocking. Warrawee Michelle meanwhile caught a perch second over and Private Access took over the lead to the turn. Highland Kismet continued to pressure outside, but began to waver as Private Access strode through three-quarters in 1:22.3.

As the early muscle weakened, Svanstedt's mare powered off cover full of trot going into the stretch while Elista Hanover flew from the rear to make a late bid. Warrawee Michelle was too much for Elista Hanover's charge and won handily by a neck. On the pylons, Private Access held third and Security Protected rallied for fourth.

This was the fourth start in 2025 for Svanstedt's mare — and her first win since August of 2024 — while she collected her eighth victory from 23 starts in her career.

"She was out the entire way," Svanstedt said, "and she was really good."

He said he was confident coming into the race.

"She had bad post positions several times but was good enough to beat the boys," Svanstedt said. "She can compete against the best."

The lifetime-mark win sent the 4-year-old's earnings to the millionaire level, having now made $1,076,990 for owners Ake Svanstedt Inc., Santandrea Inc. and Young Guns. Sent off at odds of 13-1, she paid $28 to win.

Ontario SIRE STAKES REPORT

Beau Jangles dances to impressive 1:50.1 victory in first Gold action

by Dave Briggs / Ontario Racing

Beau Jangles was ultra impressive in his pari-mutuel debut on Saturday (July 5) at Woodbine Mohawk Park in the first Ontario Sires Stakes (OSS) Gold Series test of the year for 2-year-old pacing colts. The $140,000 event attracted a field of 10.

The Cattlewash—Mrs Major Hill colt, driven by Bob McClure, sat third through the :27 opening quarter, but blasted to the front shortly after to take the field through remaining fractions of :56.1 and 1:23.1 to win by three lengths over Tilthecowscomehome (Jody Jamieson) in 1:50.1. Windsor (Doug McNair) was third, followed by Borderline Mobby (James MacDonald) and No Waitlist (Travis Henry).

Beau Jangles, trained by Dr. Ian Moore, was the 2-1 betting favorite.

Watch the replay here.

“This colt, he’s exceptional,” McClure told Woodbine broadcaster Chad Rozema in the winner’s circle. “He can leave the gate, he’s perfect-gaited, great mouth. You can sit him in the three hole, move him to the front and he melts for you. Yeah, I had to yell at him down the lane to keep his attention, but he was waiting for more to come. He wasn’t done.

“He’s got gears that I haven’t seen many 2-year-olds have. It’s surprising because horses [that large] usually are not perfectly gaited. They’re usually growing into their legs. But this guy is an athlete.”

Bred by Tara Hill Stud of Port Perry, ON, Beau Jangles was purchased for $65,000 U.S. at the 2024 Standardbred Horse Sale Company yearling auction in Harrisburg, PA by Graham Grace Stables of Clifton, VA, Jonathan Roberts of Laplata, MD and Bolton Stables of Clemont, FL.

“This guy’s got a real quick turn of speed,” Moore told Rozema. “I trained him on Thursday and I just asked him one time and it was like he put the gear shift down and away he went.”

Beau Jangles already sports earnings of $70,000 after one career start.

A CLEAN DEAL WINS 2YOFP GOLD

On Friday (July 4) in the lone $140,000 OSS Gold event for 2-year-old pacing fillies, A Clean Deal was impressive winning in 1:50.4. It was the first 2-year-old OSS Gold event of the year in any division.

Doug McNair drove the daughter of Cattlewash—Ideal Talker to the one-length victory in the field of nine for trainer Rob Fellows, owners Yolanda Fellows of Rockwood, ON, Blair Corbeil of Leduc, AB, Windermere Stable LLC of New York, NY and James Ross of Wingham, ON.

TH Check Me Out (Tyler Borth) was second, followed by Jay (Bob McClure), Jen Tilly (Billy Davis, Jr.) and A Bets A Bet (Scott Young). Favorite Shes A Bulldog went off-stride and finished eighth.

Bred by Winbak Farm, A Clean Deal was purchased for $20,000 U.S. at the 2024 Lexington Selected Yearling Sale. She is now a perfect two-for-two with earnings of $78,000.

Emoticon Legacy dashes to Zweig win at Vernon

Emoticon Legacy (Louis-Philippe Roy) outlasted Maryland (Dexter Dunn) to capture the $320,000 Dr. Harry M. Zweig Memorial Open Trot for sophomore trotters at Vernon Downs on Thursday (July 3).

Meshuggah (Scott Zeron) was first to the quarter in :26.3. Onajetplane (Andrew McCarthy) then took over the lead heading to the backstretch. Emoticon Legacy ($3.30) then made his move first-up heading down the backside. He surged to the front and led to the half in :55.1. Maryland then made his move heading around the final turn, going from sixth to second in a flash. Emoticon Legacy led to three-quarters in 1:24.1.

As they made the turn for home the race was on. Second place finished Maryland confronted Emoticon Legacy, who found another gear and won in 1:51.4. Meshuggah finished third.

Emoticon Legacy is a 3-year-old colt by Walner, owned by Determination, and trained by Luc Blais. He is now three-for-three in 2025 and it was his seventh career victory.

Torrise (Yannick Gingras) beat What A Bid Hanover (Ake Svanstedt) in a thriller getting the win in the $135,000 Dr Harry M Zweig Memorial Fillies Trot.

Shes A Shoe In (Mark MacDonald) took the lead and led to the quarter in :26.2. Torrise ($24.20) took over the lead followed by Voguish (Todd McCarthy) going down the backstretch. Torrise was first to the half in :56.2, before Voguish took a short lead but went on a break. Torrise was back in front heading to the final turn. What a Bid Hanover came first-up heading around the final turn and reached three-quarters first in 1:25.2.

Second place finisher What A Bid Hanover and Torrise traded blows all the way down the stretch, but Torrise dug in and used one late surge to win in a lifetime best of 1:54. My Debt Collector (Tyler Buter) finished third.

Torrise is a 3-year-old filly by Walner, trained by Nancy Takter for owners Caviart Farms, Pryde Stables, John Fielding, and Herb Liverman. It was her first win of 2025 and she now has two career victories.

Vernon also hosted two divisions of the New York Sire Stakes (NYSS) for freshman pacing fillies.

Odds On Enigma (Matt Kakaley) charged late to capture the $55,500 first division.

Miss Genie Mae (Tyler Buter) was first to the quarter in :28, before Savage Cindy (Jason Bartlett) took command and led to the half in :56.3 and was first to three-quarters in 1:25.2.

As they reached the stretch second-place finisher Miss Genie Mae came first-up to challenge for the lead, but Odds On Enigma ($14.60) came flying three-wide and went right on by winning in 1:54.2. Savage Cindy had to settle for third.

Odds On Enigma is a 2-year-old filly by Huntsville–Yellow Diamond. She is owned by Odds On Racing and trained by Scott Di Domenico. She is now one-for-one.

Odds On Monetary (Matt Kakaley) grabbed the $56,500 second division.

Odds On Monetary ($20.40) was first to the quarter in :26.3, and she used a :30.1 second quarter as she led to the half in :56.4. Onaorchardhunt (Mark Hershberger) was first to make a move heading around the final turn, as Odds On Monetary led to three-quarters in 1:26.2.

As they reached the stretch Odds On Monetary widened the lead and won easily in 1:55.1. Party Pumps (Braxten Boyd) came on late to finish second. American Cheese (Scott Zeron) finished third.

Odds On Monetary is a 2-year-old filly by Huntsville—All On Top Hanover, owned by Odds On Racing and trained by Travis Alexander. She is now one-for-one.

Record book demolished at Hughesville (PA) Fair

Three-year-old trotters and pacers took to the track Thursday (July 3) during a “Two-Day Meet” at the Lycoming County Fairgrounds in this northcentral Pennsylvania borough, following the 2-year-old racing of the day before, and the sophomores put a battering on the local speed record book, the likes of which has seldom been seen at any Keystone State twice-around oval.

Start with the fastest mile of the day – and the fastest mile ever at the Hughesville oval, 1:55.2, paced by the Always B Miki filly Milagro for the driver-and-trainer husband-and-wife team of Tony and Linda Schadel. The previous overall local standard had been 1:56.1, also set by a filly, Blank Cheek, in 2023.

Setting records is nothing new for Milagro, who rewrote the championship record for her division last year with a 1:54.2 victory at The Meadows, but this win not only gives her the overall bragging rights at Hughesville, but also matches the fastest mile ever at a Pennsy fair for the sophomore filly pacer ranks. R N Artist first posted that time at Bloomsburg in 2003 (at the time the fastest mile ever at any Pennsylvania fair; that overall speed record now stands at 1:53.4 by Midway Island); Tiamogonedancin equaled the standard at Bedford in 2021; and now Milagro adds her name alongside those talented fillies.

Lowering the overall track trot record to 1:58.4 – 15 minutes before Milagro strutted her stuff – was the Bar Hopping gelding Set The Bar, who not only broke the old speed bar, but smashed it, with the previous local trotting record of 2:01, set by Aloysius in 2015, left in the stone dust. Trainer/driver Todd Schadel also co-owns Set The Bar, who won at Butler last week, with his wife Christine and Rick and Regina Beinhauer.

Todd Schadel would lower the Hughesville standard for sophomore trotting fillies to 2:00.3 with the International Money filly Tally The Tab – and then return in 14 minutes to lower it again to 2:00 with the Cantab Hall filly Shalamar Hanover. Todd and Christine Schadel own both of these promising fillies.

The only “A” division not lowering a local record was the pacing colts, with the Captain Crunch colt Bettor Not, who opened the card by winning in “only” 1:57.4 in the only “A” division. Todd and Christine Schadel not only own this one as well, but also are the parents of Cody Schadel, the driver of the second-place finisher Wheelhouse Hanover.

But the pacing colts would record two more 2:00 miles – in the “B” divisions: Home Run King (driver Joe Chindano, Sr.) in 1:58.3, and a 2:00 clocking by Alvin Hanover – driven by Cody Schadel. That’s six 2:00 miles on the day over a fairgrounds oval, two by trotters, for those keeping score.

The 2-year-olds on Wednesday (July 2) did not rewrite any Hughesville standards, but each division had a winner faster than the season’s leader established at Butler. Fastest freshman was Quill Gordon, a Stay Hungry—Pueblo Blue Chip gelding who won in 2:00.3 for driver Eric Neal and trainer Mitchell York, co-owner with Erin York.

Steve Schoeffel handled the rest of the day’s headliners: the Captain Corey—First Tracks trotting colt Liege, a 2:05.1 winner, fastest freshman on his gait, for trainer Craig Knude, co-owner with Robert Mcmillan; and the sweepers of the pacing filly action, both of whom he trains: Beachy’s Mistress (Always B Miki—Zane Hanover) in 2:03.1, and Unawatuna (Sweet Lou—Somebeachbythesea) in 2:05.

Eric Neal won six races during the two days of racing to lead the sulky colony; Todd Schadel topped the trainers by sending out an equal number of visitors to the winner’s circle.

And the really scary thought to contemplate is that by this time next week, much of what is written here might be old news! This was the special “Two-Day” meet at Hughesville; the racing at the Lycoming Fair proper is this coming Wednesday (2-year-olds) and Thursday (3-year-olds), so the fast Fair Sire Stakes crew will get another shot at what is obviously a honed oval. Post time for both cards next week will again be 4 p.m.

Cohen: USTA needs to level with its members

As a frequent critic of the USTA, I had hoped the association would at least level with its members when the U.S. Supreme Court took action this week in the three pending lawsuits that have arisen over the Horseracing Integrity & Safety Act (HISA). So, I was profoundly disappointed when the USTA's press release on Monday came nowhere close to accurately describing what the Supreme Court did. Because so many HRU readers get so much of their harness news from the USTA's website, I think it's really important to set the record straight.

The Supreme Court sent all three pending lawsuits, including the one in which the USTA is a litigant, back to the lower federal appeals court for reconsideration in light of a ruling the justices in Washington, D.C. made last Friday. That means that the justices rejected the USTA's request to hear a HISA challenge now and to rule against federal racing regulators now. It means two more years or so of litigation before the Supreme Court is ready to reach a decision on the merits of a law which, I will remind folks, does not apply to harness racing. It means that HISA will remain in effect in most U.S. thoroughbred jurisdictions for at least another two years (and probably more).

There was no grand USTA victory. There was no grand HISA defeat. The justices punted and it means more delay. That's the truth. So is the fact that the ruling the Supreme Court issued last Friday, in a similar case, went in favor of the federal government by a vote of 6-3. I know that many of us disagree about HISA and about the decision by USTA executives to spend USTA funds litigating against it. But it does no one in the standardbred industry any good to walk around thinking that the Supreme Court did something the Supreme Court didn't actually do in the HISA cases.

The USTA's press-release propaganda, so consistent when it comes to HISA, is a disservice and insult to its members, who deserve (at the least) to be told both the good news and the bad news about the expensive litigation their leaders have dragged them into.

Andy Cohen, USTA member from Colorado
